$100,000 Trimmed From Record Total As Hearings Commence

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors hammered for eight hours yesterday on the county's proposed $47.4 million budget but succeeded only in inflicting a meager $100,000 dent.

"We didn't do too well," lamented Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste following the lengthy session which resumed today and will continue through next Friday.

In all, the $100,000 worth of cuts from the proposed budget for fiscal 1972-73 reduced the estimated tax rate of $2.765 per $100 assessed valuation by slightly more than 1 cent.

As in years past, the first day of deliberation was marked by pleas from taxpayers' groups that the budget — drafted by County Administrator John F. Barrows —be drastically reduced.

Supervisors responded with promises of "cutting the fat" from the document but by day's end found themselves blaming the state Legislature for "locking in" costly budget expenditures.

Some 13 sections —representing $5.5 million —of the budget were reviewed yesterday by the board which was short Supervisor John F. McInnis who is recovering from surgery.

The district attorney's proposal, which appeared as if it would spark some debate, was approved routinely after Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales withdrew his request for another deputy attorney.

"Keeping the taxpayers in mind," he told the board, "I'll defer my request for another attorney and struggle along with the staff I have now."

Bales proposal to add another member to his 15-member legal staff had drawn opposition from some who claim the closing of San Quentin Prison will reduce his workload.

Supervisors, in approving a reduced $672,076 spending program for the district attorney, also rejected a request for $2,400 to hire a law student-intern.

The board did approve, however, increasing the size of Bales's staff from 34 employees to 37 with the addition of two typists and an investigator.

About $21,000 of yesterday's $100,000 cut occurred when the board agreed arbitrarily to reduce office supplies by 5 per cent and employee convention expenses by 10 per cent in each department.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar urged a flat 10 per cent cut be made for all "service and supply" items in the budget since "that's the way industry does it."

"I know there is 10 per cent fat in this budget," he said, but failed to find support from his fellow supervisors.

(Service and supply items include not only convention and office supply costs but also such things as telephone bills, auto mileage, training, books and periodicals, outside equipment rental, etc.)

Other cuts from the budget included a $20,000 slash in the county's projected $130,000 postage bill for next fiscal year.

County Administrator Barrows explained the high figure was due to increased mailings from the planning department, among others, in notifying residents of rezonings in the county.

In cutting the postage allotment, the board advised Barrows to investigate paying third-class rates instead of first-class, as is now the practice.

Elsewhere, the board reduced the proposed $431,201 spending program of the superior court by about $20,000.

The $20,000 cut came in the court's request for $60,000 to pay attorneys for representing those unable to finance legal services.

Barrows, who noted that the county is one of the largest employers of local attorneys, said he is working with the county bar association to get special reduced rates but so far has made little progress.

The board rejected a request from the Sausalito School District for $64,000 to offset costs of educating 159 children from

Airliner Explodes Over South Vietnam, 81 Killed

U.S. and South Vietnamese aircraft joined in a large-scale search of the crash site, 30 miles south of Pleiku, and found six bodies before darkness curtailed rescue efforts. U.S. authorities said there was no chance of survivors being found.

The Convair 880 was en route from Singapore to Hong Kong via Bangkok when the explosion came. It was the second aircraft disaster in Asia within 24 hours. A Japan Air Line DC8 crashed while approaching the New Delhi airport Wednesday night, killing 87 persons, 16 of them Americans. (See story, picture page 2).

Military sources in Pleiku said two of the bodies were taken to the mortuary at Camp Holloway, the key American base in the Central Highlands, on the outskirts of Pleiku, and the rest were brought to a South Vietnam hospital in Pleiku, 230 miles north of Saigon.

One U.S. officer said no survivors were found and that none was expected to be found — "Nothing blows up at 26,000 feet and anyone lives."

One U.S. officer said the Cathay plane "broke up, blew up or was hit" over South Vietnam. The aircraft went down near a half mile high mountain used by North Vietnamese troops as a Central Highlands base area.

Cause of the explosion was a mystery. There was speculation it might have hit another plane, possibly a B52, which flies at that altitude. U.S. spokesmen said no American planes were missing but they did not say whether any were hit.

There was some speculation in Washington the airliner could even have been hit by a Communist SAM missile although no such missiles have previously been reported in the area.

A Cathay spokesman said today's crash occurred at about 2 p.m. Saigon time (2 a.m. EDT). He said the last radio message from the Convair was a routine voice reporting to Saigon Airport at 1:53 p.m. saying the plane was in a position in an air corridor near Pleiku codenamed "Papa Echo Five."

Military sources in Saigon said U.S. Army helicopter pilots flying over the scene of the crash identified the airliner, Cathay's flight CX700, by its tail number.

The airliner took on 36 passengers in Singapore, a Cathay spokesman in Hong Kong said, and another 35 boarded in Bangkok. Fifteen of the passengers were reported to be Japanese.

The Convair normally carries a crew of nine, the spokesman said, but today's flight had 11 crew members.

Navy Plane Down Near Tonkin Gulf

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. fighter-bombers swept into North Vietnam Wednesday, hitting a supply facility, a railroad bridge and blasting three fuel storage areas, military spokesmen said today. The attacks steered clear of Hanoi, where Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny began talks with North Vietnamese leaders.

U.S. command spokesmen said a carrier-based U.S. Navy A7 Corsair was shot down off the Gulf of Tonkin in one of the raids and the pilot was listed as missing. The spokesman said he believed the plane was downed by a surface-to-air (SAM) missile.

U.S. B52 bombers flew into North Vietnam for a record eighth consecutive day today. Their targets were Communist supply bunkers around Vinh and Dong Hoi in the panhandle area, a command spokesman said.

The air strikes set off a large secondary explosion at the Nam Dinh petroleum products storage area 40 miles southwest of Hanoi, spokesmen said. The planes swept close to Vinh, 164 miles south of the capital, where pilots reported their bombs caused three large fires at a tank farm and sent black smoke gushing 1,000 feet into the sky.

Carrier pilots of the U.S. 7th Fleet also hit a petroleum area just north of Thanh Hoa, 85 miles south of Hanoi, spokesmen said. During the 24-hour period ending at 5 p.m. Wednesday, they said, U.S. planes hit a troop and supply facility 33 miles northwest of Hanoi, a railroad bridge 38 miles away and the three petroleum storage areas.

In the ground war, South Vietnamese commanders today reported a new outbreak of heavy fighting between government rangers and North Vietnamese forces in the month-long struggle for the Central Highlands city of Kontum.

The U.S. Command said today six Americans were killed in action last week and 32 wounded. The previous week 11 U.S. soldiers were killed and 20 wounded. The Saigon command said 632 government soldiers were killed and 2,302 wounded last week and placed Communist casualties for the period at 3,719 dead.

Communist mortarmen fired a dozen rounds at the Marble Mountain Airfield in Da Nang shortly after midnight today, the command said. A small observation plane damaged in a similar barrage Saturday was hit again in the attack but there were no casualties, spokesmen said.

Brig. Gen. Ly Tong Ba, commander of the South Vietnamese 23rd Division guarding Kontum told UPI reporter Matt Franjola that the Communists

Zumwalt Chosen Watershed Chief

Clerin W. Zumwalt of Greenbrae, resident naturalist for the Audubon Canyon Ranch in Stinson Beach, was hired yesterday by the water district board as the district's manager of land management.

In the newly-created $20,000-a-year post Zumwalt, who was selected from a field of more than 300 applicants, will have charge of the district's watershed lands.

His duties will include directing environmental and land use planning and management of district horticultural and recreational programs and watershed patrol activities. He will also be responsibile for insuring that district property is kept aesthetically and recreationally attractive guaranteeing the security of the watershed and the pure water supply and working with community groups interested in land management.

Zumwalt holds a bachelor's degree in forestry (with a major in land management) from Colorado State University and was employed from 1935 to 1958 in various professional and managerial positions with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

In 1958 he was transferred to the U.S. Forest Service Regional Office in San Francisco where he worked as assistant chief of range and wildlife management programs in California until his retirement from government service in late 1966.

CLERIN W. ZUMWALT
New environment chief

From 1967 until the present, he has been employed with the Audubon Ranch and is currently vice president of the Marin Audubon Society.

The new water district land manager is a charter member of the Society of Range Management and a member of the Sierra Club and the Marin Conservation League.

He and his wife Alis reside at 73 Via La Cumbre. The couple has two grown sons.

Arms Pact Approval Urged By President

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon personally urged key members of Congress today to approve the arms limitation agreements with Russia by Sept. 1 so that a second round of negotiations could begin in October.

At the same time, Nixon told more than 120 senators and House members at a White House meeting that U. S. defenses must remain strong so that the Soviet Union would have reason to negotiate the more stringent arms control measures.

It was the first disclosure that the next round of arms negotiations was scheduled to begin in October. It will be aimed primarily at further limitations on offensive intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Nixon said he was "totally convinced" that the treaty limiting ABMs and the five-year interim agreement limiting offensive nuclear weapons was in the interest of national security and world peace.

But he urged the congressmen to make a "very searching inquiry because only in that way will you be convinced yourself and will the nation be convinced."

"What we are asking for is cooperation with, not just rubber stamping by, the House and Senate," Nixon said.

He characterized the accords signed last month during his summit meeting in Moscow as an agreement in which "both sides won and the whole world won."

Also urging approval of his defense budget, the President noted that the Soviet leaders had "made it absolutely clear that they're going forward with programs for offensive weapons not covered by the agreement."

He added that for "the United States not to go forwardwith its programs, or to reduce them, any incentive for the Soviet Union to negotiate a follow-on agreement would be removed."

"We need a credible defense posture so that the Soviet Union will have an incentive to negotiate a permanent offensive weapons freeze," Nixon commented.

Attending the unusual meeting were members of the Senate and House Arms Services Committees, the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee.,

Nixon opened it with a brief statement and then turned the session over to his national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, to explain details of the accords.

Kissinger told the legislators that the United States and the Soviet Union "are ideological adversaries and will remain so in the foreseeabte future." But he added, "we are compelled to co-exist because each has an arsenal that could wipe out the human race."

He said the arms agreement was "without precedent in the nuclear age and indeed without parallel in modern history. Never before have two so-called superpowers agreed to place

Lawmakers Toil To Pass Record Budget; Reagan May Make Cuts

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The legislature today raced the deadline for passage of a biggest-in-the-nation $7.959 billion state budget as Republican leaders warned that Gov. Ronald Reagan won't hestitate to chop it down with vetoes.

The compromise spending proposal for the new fiscal year starting July 1 surpassed New York's state budget of $7.908 billion for the first time in recent years.

Both houses of the legislature planned to debate the budget this afternoon. Deadline for passage is midnight and Reagan has 12 days after he receives it to sign it.

The Senate had planned to act on the massive bill, which includes $263 million in extra state support for schools, Wednesday afternoon.

But Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, the Senate sponsor, delayed the debate until completion of last-minute discussions with Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, the Assembly author.

Collier declined to disclose the nature of the hang up but other sources said it dealt with a possible mistake involving the salaries of University of California and state college employes.

Republican leaders Sen. Fred Marler Jr. of Redding and Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan of Tracy said a major source of concern for the GOP was the proposed commitment of $263 million for schools without at the same time coming to grips with the state Supreme Court's landmark school finance decision last year.

The court ruled the current school finance system unconstitutional, an action that will have the effect of shifting a major responsibility for support of education from local property taxes to statewide taxes.

Marler noted the school allotment consumed most of a forecast $458 million budget surplus next year and said that committing it now to schools without meeting the court decision "could put us right back in the deficit bag" and could trigger a tax increase.

Monagan noted there were "lots of items" which Reagan would reduce with his bluepencil veto power and Marle said the school funds were "something that the governor would look at."

Reagan has said he would support allocating $188 million in extra aid to local education, approximately $75 million less than the sum proposed by the compromise budget.

Asked whether Reagan would approve the full $263 million, state Finance Director Verne Orr replied, "I would be very surprised if the governor accepted all of it."

Meantime, a bipartisan group of 54 assemblymen calling themselves "Legislators for Educational Assistance Right Now" circulated petitons indicating they would not vote for the budget until Reagan assurred them the $263 million would remain in the spending program. It takes 54 votes in the Assembly to pass the budget.

Hanoi Off Limits To U. S. Bombers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States has temporarily suspended bombing strikes around Hanoi during the visit of Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny, informed U. S. officials said today.

Officials were hoping that Podgorny would be able to persuade Hanoi's leaders to take a more conciliatory line at the Paris peace table.

Bombing of the southern sector of North Vietnam apparently is continuing during Podgorny's visit

Michigan To Fight Detroit Bus Order

DETROIT (UPI) — The state of Michigan will go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court to halt a federal court-ordered busing program to integrate Detroit schools with those in the suburbs, Attorney General Frank J. Kelley said today.

U.S. District Judge Stephen J. Roth Wednesday ordered a nine-member panel to submit, within 45 days, a specific plan for carrying out an integration plan that would involve hundreds of thousands of students in the nation's largest school busing program.

Talks Open On Ending Hostility

BERLIN (UPI)—Representatives of East and West Germany met in East Berlin today in the opening round of talks aimed at ending 23 years of hostility.

The talks were expected by Western officials to end, early next year with treaties regulating the ties between the two rival states and application for United Nations membership for both.

Western officials said the most difficult problem would be to find a compromise between the East German demand for full recognition by West Germany under international law and the West German insistence that both German states are part of one German nation.

Another problem was posed by the Western demand that the East-West German treaties confirm the responsibility for all of Germany of the victorious Big Four World War II powers.

A nine-man West German delegation and a six-man East German delegation began the talks in the East German cabinet office building in East Berlin.

The chief negotiators were West German State Secretary Egon Bahr and East German State Secretary Michael Kohl, who last month signed a treaty governing road, rail and canal traffic, the first treaty between the two German states.

The successful negotiations on the transport treaty, the West German nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland, and the Big Four agreement to lessen tension in Berlin cleared the way for the new round of talks.

Western officials said if the

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Martha: Kennedy's The Man

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell, who has recovered from a recent illness, is back on the political firing line again with the prediction that "Teddy Kennedy will get the Democratic presidential nomination."

Mitchell

In an interview yesterday, Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the former attorney general who now heads the Committee to Re-elect President Nixon, said that "regular Democrats can't tolerate" Sen. George S. McGovern.

"He's trying to make this country another Russia or China," she said.

Mrs. Mitchell said she has been receiving telephone calls from prominent Democrats — "the names I could give you would floor you" — who will not vote for McGovern.

As for Nixon, "he's going to win big," she said.

Like most prominent Republicans these days, she won't say absolutely that Spiro T. Agnew has the vice presidential nomination in the bag.

"I don't know who will get it."

Nixon, Echeverria To Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Presidents Nixon and Luis Echeverria Alvarea of Mexico begin the 22nd meeting of the heads of state of both nations today with an agenda that includes the subjects of trade and illegal drug traffic.

Echeverria, the fourth Latin American president to visit Washington during the Nixon administration, will arrive at the White House for the start of a six-day state visit to the United States.

After the first of two private meetings with Nixon, Echeverria will address a joint session of Congress.

The Mexican leader leaves for New York, Chicago, San Antonio, and Los Angeles on Saturday after two days in Washington.

Apollo 17 Systems Test

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— Apollo 17 astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. Schmitt put their command ship through an important systems test today in a vacuum chamber simulating the environment of space.

The three astronauts, scheduled for launch to the moon Dec. 6, boarded their command module at 8 a.m. EDT. They wore pressurized spacesuits.

The exercise was delayed a day when an unmanned test in the airless chamber turned up a faulty oxygen pressure sensor in the environmental control system. The device was replaced and the ship was reexamined briefly yesterday.

Fidel Hits U.S. 'Provocation'

BERLIN (UPI) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has accused the U.S. of using its Guantanamo naval base for subversive activity against Cuba, the East German press reported today.

Castro made the charge in a speech to guards who patrol the Berlin Wall to halt the flight of refugees. He praised the guards, saying they face the same imperialist enemy as Cubans.

"In our country there is a piece of territory that is occupied by the United States," he said in the speech Wednesday.

"The U.S.A. has a naval base there. This base is in Oriente province in the Guantanamo area. We also have a strong border brigade there.

"For years, we have learned there the methods and the provocations, the criminal acts of the imperialists, for the Americans always have used this area for subversive activity, for attacks.

"For this reason, we understand and value the service you are doing here."

More Quakes In Ancona

ANCONA, Italy (UPI) — Tens of thousands of persons spent the night in cars in the countryside today after Ancona's worst earthquake in a five-month series of temblors collapsed walls, damaged buildings and touched off a panicky exodus.

Police said one unidentified person died of a heart attack shortly after being taken to a hospital. They said several more were treated for shock or light injuries from falling masonry.

The central government in Rome, fearing possible further earthquakes, ordered police and firemen in the Marche region to converge on Ancona for relief work and put firemen in five other regions on standby alert.

Scientists said two shocks hit Ancona at 8:56 and 11:01 p.m. yesterday. They said the first measured between eight and nine on the 12-degree Mercali scale and 4.5 on the Richter scale. The second measured seven Mercali and four Richter degrees.

Poverty Head

VISALIA, Calif. (UPI)—The director of Tulare County's antipoverty agency has been charged with armed robbery.

Henry Borbon, 35, who spent 17 years in jail, was a controversial appointment to the community action agency in April 1971. Recently, he succeeded in beating an attempt to fire him because of alleged discrepancies in the agency's operations.

Wednesday Borbon was charged with the robbery of $172 from a fried chicken restaurant in Turlock in late May.

He was released on $5,000 bail.

Murder Contract Reported Out On Vegas Hotelman

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)— The underworld has put out a $2,000 murder contract on a hotelman indicted in a killing connected with the "hollow chip" gambling cheat ring, according to law enforcement sources.

The sources said the hotelman, John William Hicks, has been warned that he is the target of the contract.

The information came from agents of the Justice Department's organized crime task force in Los Angeles, where Hicks is reportedly staying, the sources said.

Hicks is one of two men indicted on charges of murder, attempted murder, conspiracy to commit murder and burglary in the death of Robert Lee Murphy, who was shot to death May 30.

Hicks, 28, is the son of the late Marion Hicks, who owned the Thunderbird Hotel on the Las Vegas strip more than a decade ago. Hicks has no interest in the Thunderbird but is involved in the operation of the Algiers Hotel next door.

Murphy was linked with the casino cheating ring when officers found a "hollow chip cup"—the device that is the key to the swindle.

Talent Agency Licenses Urged

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tighter licensing laws and stiffer penalties are needed to cope with the spread of phony talent agencies that prey on naive Hollywood hopefuls desperate for stardom, the Screen Actors Guild told a federal-state hearing Wednesday.

Actor John Gavin, president of the guild, said the spread of fly-by-night agencies had reached "epidemic proportions."

Gavin testified at the opening session of a hearing sponsored by the Federal Trade Commission and state authorities.

Japanese Jet Crash Kills 87; Bomb Hint

JAITPUR, India (UPI)— Japan Airlines said today it had not ruled out the possibility of sabotage in the crash of a JAL jetliner that exploded as it approached Palam International Airport in New Delhi Wednesday night.

The crash killed 87 persons including two Indian laborers struck by the flaming wreckage on the ground.

Five persons including two sisters aged two and four survived the crash in this desert village 18 miles southeast of New Delhi.

Seventy of the 78 passengers and 11 crew members were not Japanese. Fifteen Americans were listed among the dead by JAL officials in Tokyo.

JAL sent a planeload of investigators from the airline and the Japanese Transportation Ministry from Tokyo along with doctors, nurses and lawyers in the inquiry into whether the jet was blown up with a bomb.

The airline said its offices in India and throughout the Middle East have received numerous bomb threats since the Lod Airport massacre in Israel in which three young Japanese terrorists opened fire in the airport terminal and killed 24 persons.

"We have alerted Indian authorities of the details of the Tel Aviv (Lod) incident," a JAL spokesman said. He said the airline had ordered more strict security precautions since the Israeli massacre. But he said the possibility of terrorism was not ruled out.

Witnesses said the plane exploded and burst into flames as it headed toward the airport, then hurtled into a dry river bed.

C.R. Rao, India's director of civil aviation, said the plane was in touch with the Palam control tower at 6,000 feet at a point 11 miles from landing and that the pilot was given permission to make an instrument landing. He said visibility was cut by dust and haze.

One of the survivors was Sophie Webber, 2, who kept moaning "Mommie! Mommie!" The child and her sister, Lucy, 4, told doctors at All India Institute of Medical Sciences they were on their way to London to visit their grandmother. Their mother died in the crash.

"People were still screaming when we arrived 20 minutes after it happened," said Police Deputy Inspector Amuychand Sharma. "The ambulances took 13 people away still alive. Some died on the way to hospitals."

Grotesquely contorted bodies sprawled over a half-mile area along the dry bed of the Jamnua River, many of the corpses covered with thick dust, prevalent over Northern India during the dry season.

Police said many of the gravely injured shouted for help, asking for water as they lay pinned in the wreckage in sweltering heat.

Among those on the passenger list were Dr. Matsuki Miyazaki, 72, sometimes called the Albert Schweitzer of Japan for his work among lepers; Canadian diplomat Wayne Hubble, 37, who was en route to New Delhi to marry his Canadian sweetheart heart, Brazilian actress Diniz Leila Roque.

Clausen Introduces Reforestation Bill

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, has introduced legislation to establish incentives toward reforestation of private timber lands.

The house already has passed a Clausen measure that would finance reforestation in federal forests.

The new legislation would enable federal cost-sharing, limited to 50 per cent, with owners of small, nonindustrial forest lands and on nonfederal public forest property.

Missing Rapid City Flood List Is Sliced By 1,200

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI)— The list of missing Rapid City flood victims has been cut by more than 1,200 persons following marathon radio broadcasts, but the number unaccounted for remains staggering.

Officials said today that the original list had been reduced from 2,000 to 864 persons missing. Officials had said Wednesday the list was reduced to 800 persons, but after going over the computerized list they discovered in some cases entire families were listed under one name and revised the missing number to 864.

The official death toll—204—has not been changed, but UPI reporters saw at least five bodies pulled from debris Wednesday.

A Red Cross survey Wednesday showed 700 homes were destroyed in last weekend's flood, 1,724 others sustained major damage and 1,900 minor damage, 500 house trailers were destroyed and 150 small businesses were destroyed or damaged.

Cameron Ferweda, a forest service spokesman, said a number of campers were still stranded because of the flood, but were safe in areas south and west of the city.

A flying service will begin spraying 4,000 acres in the Rapid City area Friday to kill concentrations of house flies breeding in sewage-laden pools and prevent any outbreaks of disease, officials said.

Joseph Schtal, an official of the National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration, told the City Council Wednesday that officials were handicapped by a "very archiac" flood warning system when they sought to alert residents to the imminent disaster.

DDT Ban—Optimism And Pessimism

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The switch from now-outlawed DDT to other pesticides should be relatively easy because the transition has been going on for several years, spokesmen for environmental groups said today.

But the farm industry was less optimistic about both the cost and the side effects of DDT substitutes.

In banning DDT except for a few scattered uses Wednesday, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) said its chief substitute would be methyl parathion—a highly toxic chemical dangerous in the hands of untrained users. The EPA delayed the start of its ban until Dec. 31 so the government could extend its training programs on methyl parathion use.

But the Environmental Defense Fund, a party to the original 1970 court suit which ultimately brought about Wednesday's DDT ban, told UPI that methyl parathion has been used for some time with good safety results on cotton crops in California and Arizona—states where DDT already was banned.

It has an equally good safety record, the fund said, in Texas and Arkansas, states which do not recommend DDT use on cotton. And in other cotton areas methyl parathion has for some time been used in combination with DDT, also with relative safety.

In addition, it is far less toxic than its chemical cousin—ethyl parathion—a few drops of which can be fatal when absorbed through the skin. It was ethyl parathion which caused four deaths and 10 cases of illness in the tobacco fields of North Carolina and elsewhere in 1970 after DDT use on tobacco was banned.

DDT, attacked because it remains virulent for years and can be passed up the food chain from plant to animal to man, and even mother to child, declined in use from 79 million pounds in 1959 to 12 million in 1970. But 86 per cent of the remaining use has been on cotton.

James M. Brown of the National Cotton Council said the ban "will mean higher production costs and higher insect losses for cotton farmers. It's going to have a serious impact on cotton production," he added, especially in areas where the boll weevil is a problem.

And an American Farm Bureau Federation spokesman said the ban was adverse to the interests of not only cotton planters but all farmers and ranchers.

Methyl parathion, when properly applied, is highly effective and degrades rapidly, disappearing from the soil in a matter of days. But this very attribute may require more frequent treatments, thereby increasing costs. And some Agriculture Department researchers believe it may kill beneficial insects which normally feed on the boll weevil and other cotton pests.

While the ban does not cover DDT exports—or domestic public health uses—some experts have expressed concern the ban might cause some less developed nations to follow suit, perhaps endangering malarial and other disease control projects.

Nor is the DDT case completely closed at home. The ban has been appealed in court.

Pesticide Ban Could Push Prices Higher

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—One of the first effects of the federal government's ban on DDT may be higher prices for some farm products.

Pesticides to replace the all-purpose DDT cost more, and the higher costs probably will be passed on to consumers, according to agricultural officials in California, the nation's leading farm state.

Among the hardest hit will be the citrus industry, officials said Wednesday. Alternatives to DDT already have been found for a majority of other farm products because of growing criticism of DDT in recent years.

"The citrus industry won't be happy with it," said John Hillis, chief of the agricultural chemicals unit of the state Department of Agriculture. "They'd like to have it on the shelf in case of emergencies."

The University of California, he said, is not expected to have a substitute for DDT for the state's $217 million citrus industry for close to another year. The DDT ban goes into effect Dec. 31.

Dr. John E. Swift, an entomologist at the University of California, said substitute pesticides have been developed for all crops except for citrus, alfalfa seed, peppers and onions.

"The substitutes are mostly phosphates," Swift said. "They are more toxic than DDT and must be used more carefully. One of the reasons for the increased cost is that they do not have the longevity of DDT and therefore must be applied more often."

In Fresno County, which for more than 20 years has topped the nation in farm income, a spokesman for the agricultural commissioner's office said the big impact would be on seed alfalfa.

"The job of finding substitutes is between 90 and 95 per cent done already," said O. W. Fillerup, executive vice president of the 20,000-member Council of California Growers.

Terra Linda Chief's Home Is Firebombed

Two molotov cocktails were thrown last night at the home of George A. Walser, Terra Linda's fire chief and public safety officer.

Walser, who wasn't home at the time of the bombing at 11:03 p.m., said one of the missiles landed in the front side yard and caused a minor fire in a planter. The other landed in the driveway.

It was the second fire bombing aimed at Walser in the past 13 months. A molotov cocktail was thrown at his car in the carport of his home, 557 Whitewood Drive, on May 8, 1971.

Walser said some of the contents of the fire bombs landed on the roof of his home and on top of the Terra Linda Community Services Districtcar, causing $60 damage to the car and minor damage to the roof of his home.

He said the bombs consisted of a substance that appeared to be kerosene or coal oil in a quart-sized beer bottle with a wick.

The minor fire was spotted by a neighbor at 564 Whitewood Drive, and the Terra Linda Fire Department put it out, Chief Walser said.

Chief Walser, who has the power to make arrests, described himself as "the cop for the area." Marin County sheriff's deputies are investigating the fire bombing.

Lieutenant Promoted By Fire Chief

The 34-year-old Quayle has been a Sausalito fireman since 1965 and has served as lieutenant since March 1967.

He holds an associate of science degree in fire science from the College of Marin and a special lifetime community college teaching credential.

Chief Halon said Quayle's duties in the $1,143 a month post will include assuming of the chief in his absence, directing the firefighting force, making work assignments and developing and supervising training and fire prevention programs.

The new assistant chief will also serve as the city's fire marshall, Halon said.

Quayle is past president of the Marin County Fire Training Officers Association and a member of the Marin County Fire Prevention Officers Association, the Northern California Training Officers Association and the Northern California Fire Investigators Association.

He and his wife Barbara have four children and live in Mill Valley at 28 Vasco Drive.

BUDGET

low-income families living in federal housing at Marin City.

The county clerk's budget, meanwhile, was slashed from $453,764 to $424,121 and requests for two new employees denied. The clerk's spending program t is year totaled $384,570.

The administrator's proposal for the municipal court was cut $8,000 to $920,000, which is still $100,000 more than this year.

Also left virtually untouched were the public defender's request of $330,000 (up $30,000 from this year), the Louise A. Boyd Museum's request of $14,000 (up $1,500), the county assessor's request of $1,076,000 (up $100,000), communications' request of $506,000 (up $110,000) and the grand jury's request of $30,000 (up $10,000).

Hall of Justice and library bond payments totaling about $650,000 were also approved.

Pilot Blamed In Star's Death

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Transportation Safety Board has blamed poor weather conditions in which the pilot should not have been flying for the crash which killed war hero-movie star Audie Murphy and five other persons.

The crash occurred May 28, 1971 near Roanoke, Va.

The board, in a report issued Wednesday, said the crash apparently was caused by "the pilot's attempt to continue visual flight into adverse weather conditions at an altitude too low to clear the mountainous terrain." It said there was no evidence the airplane failed or malfunctioned.

Terminal Plan Due

Sonoma Sees Budget As Conservative

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A $61.8 million budget, reflecting a decrease in welfare costs for the first time in 20 years, was proposed yesterday to run Sonoma County government for 1972-73.

The spending program, offered to the board of supervisors by County Administrator David G. Nichols, is up $3.8 million over the present fiscal year. Still, Nichols termed it the most conservative budget in years.

The administrator said $1.3 million of the increase is for road projects supported by federal and state funds, not local property taxes.

The welfare budget is down $700,000 to $21.27 million.

Nichols said he slashed county staff spending requests by nearly $5 million. The budget recommends adding nine new employees, smallest increase in a decade.

County
pact of the budget on the county tax rate is not yet known due to uncertainty as to assessed valuation.

Weapon Threat Charges Killed

Assault charges against two central Marin men have been dismissed for lack of evidence by a Marin Municipal Court judge.

Judge David R. Baty dismissed one assault with a deadly weapon count against Joseph Ray De Costa, 22, of San Rafael and two against Keith Norval Caslake, 28, of Fairfax, but gave the district attorney until Tuesday to file a misdemeanor charge of exhibiting a gun against Caslake.

Fairfax police arrested the two May 22 after they allegedly burst into the bedroom of Caslake's former girl friend and threatened her.

Dog Match Set At High School

Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club will sponsor a dog match at Marin Catholic High School from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, according to Mrs. Judy Beaton, match chairman, of 16 Tampa Drive, Novato.

There are 800 entries for the match which will include confirmation, obedience and junior handlers. There will be no licensed handlers unless they show their own dogs.

The Kennel Club also will sponsor a dog show at Peacock Gap on Saturday with more than 2,400 entries.

talks were successful they could result in an exchange of East-West German diplomatic missions, a third summit meeting between West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and East German Premier Willi Stoph, and United Nations membership for the two German states.

Bahr and Kohl described the opening talks as an "exchange of opinions on the normalization of relations."

"The talks will be difficult," Bahr said. "Problems can arise from the complicated legal situation and the emotions surrounding the division of Germany."

Sonoma Has Nod To Quit Bay Agency

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The State Council on Intergovernmental Relations, reversing an earlier decision, said yesterday Sonoma County could join a regional government of North Coast counties.

The vote of 10-8 paved the way for withdrawal of the county from the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Although the council had rejected the county's request in December by a 5-4 vote, it granted a rehearing yesterday at the reported urging of Sen. Randolph L. Collier, D-Yreka, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

Collier has been a supporter of a north coast regional alliance of Sonoma, Napa, Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties that would clear federal and state grants and perform area planning functions.

At least seven members of the council were absent at yesterday's session and voted by telegram or letter, bringing objections from Joseph Bort, a newly appointed council member and an ABAG official, according to an ABAG spokesman, Lizette Weiss.

Sonoma voters approved withdrawal from ABAG in 1971, but opposition to joining the North Coast group has continued, particularly among city officials.

At yesterday's hearing, Supervisor Robert Theiller and Petaluma City Councilman Robert E. Daly were among those who spoke in favor of the change, while Mayor Helen Putnam of Petaluma and Burdette A. Shannon, city chamber of commerce manager, favored the county staying in ABAG.

The council had received a staff report in December which said the county's economic interest lay in the San Francisco-Marin area, that up to 55,000 cars traveled daily between Santa Rosa and San Francisco-San Rafael and that Sonoma County is in the San Francisco air basin.

Proponents of the switch feared domination by more populous counties if Sonoma stayed in ABAG, while ABAG supporters wondered about erosion of a local voice in a North Coast agency and about certification of such a body to funnel federal and state aid.

Petaluma Auction To Help Schools

A sketch by cartoonist Charles Schulz, use of a Lake Tahoe condominium for a weekend and various art objects will be on the auction block at 7:30 p.m. today at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building.

The event is sponsored by the Save Our Schools Committee, seeking to raise $34,000 to keep six of Petaluma's elementary schools off double sessions in the fall and prevent closing of the seventh.

Other donated items to be auctioned include a lamb, a gourmet dinner for eight persons, a personal development program, a plumber's services for a day and a Polynesian-made bikini. Value of the items ranges from $2 to $400.

Weatherman Plot Probe Is Revived

(Former Novato resident, Karen Duncan, 25, who now lives in Venice, Los Angeles County, has been held in contempt for refusing to testify before the grand jury but she is free while her citation is on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.)

While all sessions were senret and Goodwin refused comment, it was believed that the government is anxious to place as much of the Weatherman case before the jury as possible before the panel finishes ts 18-month term later this month.

At least four witnesses were called before the jury Wednesday by Goodwin.

The investigation was started in October, 1970 by a previous federal grand jury here and it appears the case will go on at least through the rest of 1972.

The first grand jury issued the only indictments to come out of the probe so far.

Indicted were John A. Fuerst, 24, Oakland, Calif.; Robert Smith, age and address unknown, and a third person whose identity is being kept secret by the government. All three remained at large.

The indictment charges that Fuerst and David A. Scheffler, 24, Venice, Calif., drove from California here in May of 1970 to purchase explosives.

It charged that Fuerst bought 120 sticks of dynamite, 30 electrical blasting caps, 20 fuse caps and 50-feet of fuse, all without registration and then transported it back to Venice to be used by a Weatherman group.

CYA Sentence On Armed Robbery Count

Charles Anthony Henry, 19, of Marin City was sentenced yesterday to the California Youth Authority for the armed robbery of a San Rafael couple at their home.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court imposed the sentence as part of a plea bargain that he had refused to follow the day before because of an unflattering probation report.

The probation report said Henry was enrolled in an ethnic minority program at the College of Marin that paid him $120 toward school expenses, but he spent most of his time "jiving around and playing pool in Marin City."

Henry had previously been committed to the youth authority in 1966-67 and 1969-70 and the district attorney recommended he be committed to prison.

Henry is one of four persons linked to the robbery Oct. 29 when John David Mackie and Sandra Ann Pazamickas were bound and gagged and robbed of $600 in possessions and cash, according to San Rafael police.

Ernest Barrow Biard, 18, a second defendant in the case, to be sentenced July 24, pleaded guilty to the armed robbery Tuesday on condition he be given a state prison sentence concurrent with one he is already serving for a San Francisco conviction.

A third man, George Gregory Watts, 18, of San Francisco is awaiting trial and the fourth man is still being sought.

have lost 5,000 men killed in trying to capture the city.

Ba said he had 500 troops killed and 1,500 wounded in the fighting for Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon.

The latest fighting around the Central Highlands city began early Wednesday when North Vietnamese artillery rained mortar and recoilless rifle fire on South Vietnamese Rangers near Artillery Base 41 on Highway 14 between Kontum and Pleiku. They followed with a ground attack. Field reports said 50 South Vietnamese were wounded.

A short time later a Ranger element clashed with North Vietnamese forces a mile to the southwest and killed 63 Communists with artillery and air support.

Ba, promoted to general from colonel by President Nguyen Van Thieu during the siege of Kontum, had said earlier he was confident the Communists would be stopped.

"Suicide units are staying around but that is all that is left," he said.

A U.S. adviser said, "the weapons lost alone and the coming rainy season will prevent the enemy from launching an attack."

10 Marinites Get Degrees At UOP

The University of the Pacific in Stockton recently conferred degrees on 10 residents of Marin County.

The doctorate of philosophy degree was awarded to Lawrence Allyn Scadden of Kentfield.

Bachelor of arts degrees were confered on Robert H. Menzies and James Frederick Smith of Kentfield; James W. McClendon III of Larkspur; Frederick H. Hilton of Novato; David Joseph Basham, George Franklin Dill, Honor W. Jackson Jr. and Jack L. Delman, all of San Rafael, and Michael B. Bigelow of Tiburon.

Center Summer Slate To Start

The Terra Linda Community Center's summer program will begin Monday, Fran Traina, recreation director, announced today.

Both residents and nonresidents may participate in activites that range from a tiny tot program to dog training and baton classes, she said.

Adults and teens may participate in cake decorating, swimming lessons, yoga classes or belly dancing, she said.

The center, 670 Del Ganado Road, also plans senior activites, she said.

He said that recognition of the ability of both sides to inflict devastation on the other had led to a recognition of the need for a "sane nuclear policy."

Kissinger commented it was also recognized by both governments that there was a need to recognize an equilibrium of power had "a certain validity" rather than to have the two each vying for an advantage over the other.

"Anyone who contemplates a rupture of the agreement must face the fact that he will put into jeopardy not only the agreement but a broad political association," the presidential adviser remarked.

Tiburon Fire Budget Set; Tax Rate Cut

The Tiburon Fire Protection District board last night adopted a 1972-73 budget of more than $285,000 which will permit a 12-cent drop in the tax rate.

According to board secretary Wellman H. Topham, the $285,258 budget is more than $3,000 higher than this year's budget, but the tax rate will drop from 87 cents to 75 cents per $100 of assessed value.

The salaries of 12 district employees account for the largest portion of the budget, $203,000. Employees will receive salary hikes of about 8.5 per cent, said Topham.

Maintenance of fire equipment at $32,000 and operating reserves at about $25,000 are also included in the budtet.

The district has budgeted $24,000 for capital outlay, including payments on fire trucks, a down payment on a new fire truck, and payments on portable radios, new fire hydrants and other miscellaneous items.

Topham explained that the fire board expects to train and possibly recruit the two apprentices as permanent employees in the future.

Del Mar Sets Graduation

Diplomas will be handed to 153 eighth grade graduates of the Del Mar School in Tiburon at commencement exercises at 4 p.m. today.

The class will be formally presented by Reed School District Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello, school board chairman John J. Osborn and school board vice chairman Margaret Jones.

Friend Of Animals Is Dead At 53

Margaret Y. Goodyear, of Mill Valley, a dedicated friend and protector of animals, died yesterday at her home after a long illness. She was 53.

A native of Alberta, Canada, she moved to Mill Valley at the age of 5 and lived here 24 years before moving to Vineburg, in Sonoma County where she remained 14 years. She returned to Mill Valley in 1961 and resided at 28 LaVerne Avenue.

Mrs. Goodyear's home was always open to lost or unwanted animals and she either kept the strays people brought her or found homes for them. Her concern for the increasing number of unwanted cats and dogs resulted in her founding Animal Lovers of Marin, an organization which worked to establish a clinic where neutering could be done free or for a minimal fee.

Her husband, Donovan G. Goodyear, was killed in action in World War II.

Mrs. Goodyear is survived by her mother, Anne Groll and a sister, Helen G. Benson, both of Mill Valley.

Private funeral was held yesterday in Mill Valley.

Downtown Facelifting Talk Slated

Attorney Steven Goldfarb, San Rafael's redevelopment consultant, will discuss the various possibilities for revitalizing San Rafael's downtown area at the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, 824 Fifth Avenue, at noon tomorrow.

A delegation of city staff and councilmen will attend the public event.

The city council last April established itself as a redevelopment agency with the aim of revitalizing the city's commercial areas.

Tomorrow's luncheon meeting marks the first step in involving residents in the redevelopment program, according to William J. Bielser, assistant city manager.

Daley Delegate Idea Challenged

CHICAGO (UPI)—The legal counsel for the Democratic National Committee has ruled that Mayor Richard J. Daley's plan to double the number of at-large delegates from Illinois violates party rules.

Joseph Califano, counsel for the committee, said in an opinion Wednesday that the 1972 Democratic National Convention rules "clearly provide that the maximum number of delegates allowed the state of Illinois shall be 170."

He said Daley's move to double the number of at-large delegates from 10 to 20 and give each at-large delegate 1-2 vote violated the rules. Consequently, he said, the Illinois delegation as it stands (at 180) cannot be certified at the July convention.

Pacheco Plan Delayed By Absentees

With three commissioners absent, the Novato Planning Commission last night postponed further discussion on the master plan for the Pacheco Ranch, south of the city and west of Highway 101 until June 26.

Commissioners approved the concept of the plan Monday night and were scheduled to set conditions on their approval last night.

The master plan by Perl Mack Enterpries calls for 400 townhouses and 300 apartment units, office and commercial areas, and 384 acres of open space on 519 acres.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

HANNA RANCH — Granted a permit for filling of 62 acres of the Hannah ranch east of Highway 101 and north of Highway 37, with the area to be filled by Freeman-Sondgroth Co. of Mountain View, which is working on the Highway 101 bypass project.

PREZONING — Approved prezoning of 88 acres northeast of H Lane from limited agriculture to limited agriculture with lot sizes of one acre, 20,000 square feet and 10,000 square feet, as requested by Western Gold Real Estate Co. The prezoning was opposed by the Black Point Improvement Club, which opposed higher density in the area.

CROSSROADS — Approved precise plans for the second phase of the McKeon Co. development northwest of highways 101 and 37, consisting of 182 townhouse units.

Lockers Looted

Clothing valued at $150 was taken yesterday from the Racquet Club locker room, 95 Racquet Club Drive, San Rafael, Richard H. Trapnell of 71 Ridge- crest Road, Kentfield, told police.

Larkspur Landmark Restaurant Endorsed

Plans to turn the historic brick-kiln on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near the Hutchison rock quarry east of Highway 101 into a restaurant got the nod last night from Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission.

Built in 1880, the Remillard brickworks are a familiar sight on the San Quentin peninsula.

The commission was required to review the proposed development by Robert H. Lee and Associates of San Francisco because the brick-kiln is designated a historic landmark in the city's master plan.

Recreation Director Harlan Barry said today the commission decided to recommend to the planning commission that a use permit for the development be granted.

The recommendation was subject to two conditions:1. In addition to the restaurant operation the kiln should be reasonably made available to public groups, especially school children, for tours, and 2.

The restaurant project developers are headed by Robert H. Lee, who is a Larkspur city councilman.

The commission's recommendation will be considered by the Larkspur Planning Commission at its June 27 meeting.

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission also:

BOND ISSUE — Deferred for one ear any action on a bond issue to fund area improvements, after discussing the feasibility of such a measure.

BIKE TRAIL — Requested the city council to authorize $2,000 for installation of a bicycle trail on the western side of Magnolia Avenue.

CORTE MADERA CREEK — Recommended the city council support Senate Bill 793 which would extend the Bay Conserca-tion and Development Commission's jurisdiction up the Corte Madera Creek.

NORTH RIDGE — Recommended the city council allow building of three new homes in the North Ridge area after reviewing two proposed locations in the Madrone Woodland subdivision and one on Sunrise Lane; commissioners decided their construction would not pose a threat to the proposed North Ridge open space acquisition.

Official Status Urged For City's Panel On Rights

The Mill Valley Human Rights Mini Board has come up with a package of recommendations that would transform the informal board into a formal city commission.

According to board chairman William Broderick, the set of recommendations has been submitted to Councilman Gerald J. Hood, who serves as executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

Hood will pass along the suggestions to the full city council.

The human rights mini board Tuesday recommended that terms of office for its members be formally set at two years, rather than the current indefinite terms.

The commission also asked the council to establish residency requirements for members of the board.

The suggested changes, if adopted, would convert the mini board into a full-fledged commission in the city, subject to all the rules and regulations of other commissions, Broderick said.

French Coolly Endorses Boas

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Alan D. French, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Sixth Congressional District, yesterday begrudgingly endorsed the man who defeated him, San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas.

French, in a letter to Boas, said: "You have my endorsement pro forma, of course. And for a long and successful campaign against (Rep. William S.) Mailliard, you have my best wishes."

French, a 25-year-old Army veteran, acknowledged today to the Independent-Journal that his endorsement was "not enthusiastic." He said that he and Boas were "different kinds of Democrats, but we have more in common than with Mailliard."

'Defamed' Magee Sues: $100,000

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Ruchell Magee, 33, a convict who was charged with Angela Davis for the Marin County Civic Center shootings, is suing for $100,000 on grounds he was defamed by published reports of his IQ.

Magee named as defendants Wednesday in his Superior Court libel suit the Chronicle Publishing Co.; James Brewer, the Chronicle's Marin County correspondent; Jean LeVann, the records officer at San Quentin Prison, and Assistant Attorney General Albert Harris Jr.

Magee charged that the defendants conspired to "libel and defame" him by introducing into court "false and fraudulent" documents about his IQ and then causing the documents to be published.

He also said he was denied his rights to a fair trial and freedom of speech because of an "unconstitutional gag rule" imposed after the August 1970 gun battle in which four persons, including a judge, died.

The "gag rule" prohibited anyone connected with the case to discuss it publicly.

As a result, the convict said, he has been unable to refute and answer the "false and libelous" statements made against him.

In December 1970 the Chronicle reported that Magee had been judged incompetent to defend himself after the prosecution introduced evidence his IQ was 75 as measured in a Louisiana prison in 1956 and that he had dropped out of the fifth grade at the San Quentin Prison school in 1964.

The issue came up in court during Magee's pretrial proceedings in San Rafael while he was seeking the right to defend himself.

Lead Trap Seen For Car Exhaust

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A new device to trap lead before it comes out the tailpipe of a motor vehicle may be the answer to reducing concentrations of the poisonous pollution, Bay Area smog officials said yesterday.

Preliminary estimates put the cost of the device at only $10 above the regular muffler replacement cost, according to Milton Feldstein, director of technical services for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

District directors, frustrated by failure of the state and federal government to clamp down on lead pollution, have been seeking a way to act themselves on the problem. They had been working toward controls on the lead content of fuels, but yesterday learned a similar ordinance in Orange County lost its first court test.

The Orange County Superior Court found that the county did not have the right to act, ruling that only the state could regulate fuel content. The county has appealed to the District Court of Appeal.

Feldstein acknowledged that an exhaust lead trap also would require state action because the Bay Area district is precluded from regulating motor vehicles emissions.

He noted that the Orange County court test had been filed against the county by the Western Oil and Gas Association.

His report on the Orange County legal test discouraged district directors from acting further on a similar local control until the appeal is settled.

More than 99 per cent of atmospheric lead comes out of tailpipes of motor vehicles, Feldstein said.

Lead concentrations at nine sites throughout the region varied widely, according to 1970 data he presented. As measured at the district's downtown San Rafael air quality monitoring station, Marin's concentrations exceeded the state standard only during November of that year.

The standard is 1.5 micrograms per cubic liter averaged over 30 days. The San Rafael average for that month was 1.7.

Readings elsewhere in the region ranged up to more than 4, a level Feldstein said could be cut back to the standard only by cutting automotive lead emissions by about 65 per cent.

Feldstein cautioned that cutting lead out of fuels requires increased use of aromatics to maintain octane levels still needed by most cars on the road. Aromatics, in turn, increase the potential for smog, he said. The lead traps now are being tested, he said.

The automotive industry's hope for successful development of a catalytic converter to catch other tailpipe pollutants "still is in doubt," Feldstein reported.

Director Wyman Hicks of Sausalito commented that lead manufacturers have a vested interest in developing lead traps. There is no counter lobby with a commercial vested interest in removing lead from fuels, Hicks said.

Mill Valley Budget Up After Study

The Mill Valley City Council — in its first formal review of the city's proposed 1972-73 $2.3 million budget — made tentative changes that would increase the spending program by about $12,000.

The council Tuesday night added one police patrolman and one fireman for a total cost of about $25,000. The new positions were requested by Police Chief Dan Terzich and Fire Chief Joseph Regalia.

Both chiefs urged the council to augment their staffs due to increased population in Mill Valley and a greater demand for their department's service.

According to City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, the fire chief reminded the city council that his department's budget had never kept pace with the growth in other city department budgets.

The council also added $3,200 to the fire protection budget to purchase additional fireproof safety clothing.

The council then slashed more than $15,000 from the debt service budget by delaying one-half of the proposed interest and principle payments on the city's planned fire station bonds.

The city has not yet issued any fire station bonds which were approved in the $275,000 bond election in April.

Cunningham explained the city was postponing one-half of the proposed payments on the bonds until they were issued and sold.

The council also cut its own travel allowance in half, from $1,500 to $750. According to Cunningham, the council agreed that the city would save money because fewer city officials will attend the League of California Cities convention.

The proposed spending programs for animal control, civil defense, city clerk and city attorney were approved by the council without change.

Sculptures Stolen From County Office

Five sculptures by Nelson P. Crutchfield of Mill Valley were stolen from the office of the Marin County Housing Authority in Marin City prior to Friday, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

The works, some of which were two feet tall, were valued at $900, deputies said.

Court Upholds Cambodia Vote

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodia's newly-created constitutional court announced today it had approved the results of the country's first presidential election despite some irregularities and declared incumbent President Lon Nol officially elected.

The announcement, read over national radio, said Lon Nol gained 578,203 votes out of a total 1,059,505 ballots cast, giving him 20,083 more votes than his closest runner-up, former constituent assembly chairman In Tam.

In Tam had filed complaints of manipulation of votes and duress against electors with the court.

Information Minister Long Boret said the six-man court decision was unanimous.

Liquor Store Robber Killed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An armed robber was shot and killed Wednesday by a liquor store clerk.

Police said the unidentified-man entered the liquor store, drew a revolver and demanded money from clerk Harold Wilson, 33.

After getting $140 from the cash register, the man started to leave, shielding himself behind a customer who was walking into the store.

But the customer kept walking and Wilson, having a clear shot at the robber, pulled a pistol from beneath the counter

Smog Cases Accumulate; No Attorney

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — An unprecedented crackdown on air polluters has been launched by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District at the same time it is without a full-time legal officer to prosecute the flood of cases.

The district's counsel, Matthew S. Walker, resigned as of last week to take a federal pollution control job after an eight-month fight by the district's top administrator to have him fired. Walker had charged the administrator, D. J. Callaghan, with coddling polluters.

The huge jump in enforcement appeared in staff reports at yesterday's monthly board meeting. They showed that 246 violation notices had been issued during May, up more than 130 per cent over May the preceding year. This brought the total number for the year by the end of May to 884, compared to 580 by the same date in 1971.

CASES PENDING

In addition, 79 new cases were referred to the legal division for prosecution during the month. The division had 61 cases pending in addition to the 79 new ones.

Thomas Brennan, deputy director for enforcement, told newsmen the crackdown was because he now has more inspectors and because regulations have been toughened.

The logjam of cases apparently will be left to grow until Walker can be replaced, a step district directors postponed until after completion in August of a management study.

They voted instead to hire a part-time interim attorney with no experience in air pollution law. Robert T. Anderson, 55, of Oakland, was hired to fill in for $50 an hour.

MARIN CITATIONS

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort, a former Berkeley city councilman and a member of the smog board, had suggested Anderson be hired.

Violation notices issued during May included five in Marin: McPhail's Inc., San Rafael; Mrs. Robert Farley of Nicasio; Guasco Market, San Anselmo, and G. L. Millin and Allan Morgan of Mill Valley.

Violation notices were issued in Southern Sonoma against the Pioneer Shell Co., Pacific Growers and Mrs. Erma Vinson, all of Petaluma, and Richard J. Fink of Cotati.

Nixon Aide Blasts Demos' Criticisms

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI)—Presidential aide Harry Dent said Wednesday Democratic candidates who criticize President Nixon's handling of the Vietnam War "are staining the honor of our nation."

Nixon has done much for world peace "in the toughest of circumstance," Dent told a meeting of the Georgia Association of Broadcasters.

Air Watchdogs Split On Key Hearing Job

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A bitter fight among Bay Area smog officials has erupted over a key appointment.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District officials, split by dissention for eight months in fights over their legal officer and top administrator, now are worrying the issue of a vacancy on the district's powerful hearing board.

The term of longtime chairman J. Joseph Sullivan of San Francisco expired Monday. The top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, reportedly strongly backs Sullivan's reappointment.

Callaghan's opponents on the board and in the public, however, want Sullivan replaced, arguing he has been too closely allied with Callaghan in the bitter fight over the district's former counsel, Matthew S. Walker.

A special meeting on the matter was set for June 29.

Another closed session of board members was held yesterday after the regular meeting to interview candidates for the chairmanship of the three-member board.

At least four others are competing with Sullivan for appointment to the board, a quasi-judical body which operates independently of the 18-member board of directors. It considers requests for exemptions from district regulations, thus is in the position of seeing that the regulations are applied uniformly and fairly.

Sullivan's seat by law must be filled by an attorney.

The candidates' are:

J. Joseph Sullivan, an eight-year veteran of the hearing board, former president of the San Francisco board of supervisors and a former candidate for mayor of San Francisco.

Ralph Trower, former mayor of Napa and currently a Napa County representative on the smog board. He has been a leader in the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Reed H. Bement, a San Francisco lawyer who graduated from Harvard College, University of California at Berkeley and the London School of Economics. He was nominated by the Stop Smog Committee, a citizens group which argued the district needed an attorney who "has been totally uninvolved in the political upheaval of the district."

Stuart L. Deutsch, assistant professor of law at the University of Santa Clara and a specialist in land use and environmental law.

William J. Kretzmer of Richmond, city attorney for the City of El Cerrito and chairman of the Contra Costa County Mental Health Advisory Board.

Novato Women To Hear Hood

Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission, will talk about young voters at a public meeting of the Novato Republican Women's Club at noon Tuesday at Nave Lanes, Ignacio.

Hood, a Mill Valley city councilman, will tell how 18-21 year old voters can be effective in having youth representation in the national election.

The theme of the meeting will be "honor thy precinct worker," according to Betty Machado, publicity chairman.

San Marin Improvers To Discuss Mountain

Open space and acquisition of Mount Burdell will be discussed at a general membership meeting of the San Marin Improvement Association at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Room 200, San Marin High School, Novato.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste; Pierre W. Joske, Marin County parks and recreation director; Jerry A. Cannon, chairman of the North Marin chapter, Marin Conservation League, and Leroy M. Gerner, president of the Novato Civic Foundation, are scheduled to speak.

Rights Leader In Senatorial Race

ATLANTA (UPI) — Civil rights leader Hosea Williams entered the race for the U.S. Senate Wednesday just before the deadline for filing.

Williams, declaring he is the only candidate sensitive to the needs of blacks and poor people, paid his $850 filing fee as a Democrat. The field for the seat now held by Sen. David Gambrell, D-Ga., has 15 Democrats, two Republicans and an independent.

Sentencing Set In Pot Import Plot

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Corte Madera man who was a key figure in a huge marijuana smuggling case is due to be sentenced July 5 in U. S. District Court.

John Robert Franklin, 34, pleaded guilty last month to a charge of conspiring to smuggle well over a ton of marijuana into this country from Mexico.

Meanwhile, a San Francisco lawyer who represents the Grateful Dead and other rock groups, is on trial along with four other persons in connection with the same case.

The lawyer, Brian D. Rohan, 36, was named part of the conspiracy only because he helped some clients buy a ranch near Winslow, Ariz., in 1970 and helped them purchase an airplane, according to his attorney, Patrick Hallinan.

A large amount of marijuana was later seized on the property.

Rohan and 17 other persons including Franklin were accused of smuggling 2,900 pounds of pot to the ranch and then transporting part of it to a house in Tiburon and to a San Francisco residence.

Another Marinite, Janice Lynn Swang, 24, has pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of conspiring to smuggle merchandise, according to Asst. Atty. Gen. James Brannigan, prosecutor in the case. She is due to be sentenced June 23.

Two other Marin residents, Robert Halborsen of Tiburon and Frank Richard Sayre of Corte Madera, are fugitives, Brannigan said, and two additional persons, Will Walker, 27, and Joanne Fahey, 31, both of Corte Madera, are due to be tried at a later date.

Congressman Asks Reelection

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., announced today his candidacy for re-election.

His announcement had long been expected, since he has been openly campaigning for several months.

Conditional Use Permit To Kennel Club For Park

The Rohnert Park Recreation Commission has conditionally allowed the Redwood Empire Kennel Club to use Benecia Park once again for its 1973 dog show.

The commission approved the club's request after hearing complaints from neighborhood residents about noise, litter and traffic at the 1972 show, according to James Pekkain, recreation director.

Pekkain said the commission attached several conditions to its approval, aimed primarily at cooling the citizen protest. Next year's show is scheduled May 6.

Pekkain said the commission also decided to hold a June 19 session on next fiscal year's preliminary budget.

CALLING ALL CAMERA FANS
By Ken Reichard
IN PICTURES THEY NEVER GROW UP

No matter how old your baby is, three months or three years, you've probably already heard yourself saying, "We should have got a picture of that." And all too often you don't.
The months and years slip by faster than we realize, and the first thing you know those wonderful childhood moments are gone, memories that become harder to recapture as time goes by—unless you captured them permanently on film.
The way to have those cherished pictures of the big moments and the unexpected delights that come along, is to have a camera ready at all times, loaded with film. Be ready anytime baby takes on something new, whether it's learning to walk or meeting the new puppy.
Another tip: make sure Mom can handle that camera as well as Dad. A lot of sure-fire picture opportunities may come up during the day when Dad's at work.
The new automatic cameras make picture-taking so easy no woman needs to be baffled any more. Let us help you choose the right camera to fill your family album with magic moments.

Marinwood CSD Adds $300 To Fire Budget

Marinwood Community Services District directors last night reviewed a preliminary overall budget of $258,053 and wound up adding $300 to the $107,320 fire account.

The action will not change the district's anticipated tax rate of $1.236 per $100 of assessed valuation, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager. She said that the net effect of last night's budget scrutiny was an addition of $190 since the board chopped $110 from the parks and recreation account.

She said that the board approved an increase of $375 in the fire "conference" allocation, originally set at $750.

"The increase came so that fire personnel could attend certain approved training conferences," Mrs. Bolding said.

The board decreased a proposed $500 structure maintenance account by $75, chopped hydrant rentals by $59, and cut the fire hose $800 capital outlay spending program by $50.

The board increased the fire office supply account by $75 and added $50 to Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield's small tools request.

Mrs. Bolding said that the board agreed that the district's fire cadet program remain as it is. One board member had proposed that one of the fire department's two cadets be eliminated next year, she said.

The board also approved a request that another street light be installed on Valley Stone Drive, she said.

The next budget hearing to consider employees' salaries, was set for 8 p.m. June 26 in the Marinwood Community Center.

Morals Case Sent To Superior Court

Curtis Phillip Wall, 63, of Novato has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of lewd and lascivious behavior and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He is to appear June 26.

Wall was arrested in January on a warrant charging him with molesting four children from 5 to 8 years old last September and December.

Burglars Fail Safecrack Try

Officers said the intruders forced a rear door to enter the premises between 10 p.m. and 1:22 a.m. The top layer of the floor safe was peeled off, police said, but the burglars failed to further penetrate the device.

Before leaving, the inlruders rifled a cigarette machine for an undetermined sum.

Muskie, Humphrey Claiming New Hopes

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's followers today claimed a first victory in the drive to revive his presidential campaign. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey predicts front-runner George S. McGovern will be stopped short of a first ballot victory at the Democratic convention next month.

The upbeat talk from the Muskie and Humphrey camps came as they attempted to stop McGovern from picking up the delegates he needs to put him over the top at Miami Beach. Both underdogs placed their hopes on uncommitted delegates.

Muskie, fighting off the flu, continued today a 10-state tour in search of support he hopes will deadlock the convention and turn it in his direction.

The Maine senator was in St. Louis Wednesday night to court 61 previously uncommitted delagates. Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said after the meeting that Muskie would get the votes of "40 to 50" of the delegates. The remaining 12 of the state's 73-member delegation are committed to McGovern.

Humphrey, in a UPI interview today, conceded that McGovern has a "comfortable lead" but he said he expected to pick up a "large bloc" of uncommitted delegates.

The former vice president said he believed McGovern would fall short of victory on the first ballot. He said this would turn the convention into a "wide open" battle and that it was likely McGovern's strength would erode. He said he and his strategists had decided after making a thorough study this week that McGovern does not have the nomination locked up.

It will take 1,509 delegate votes to nominate the Democratic candidate. The latest UPI tabulation showed McGovern with 1,003.75 committed delegates. Humphrey had 365.75, and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace 360. Muskie has in the neighborhood of 170, while the tabulation showed 481.3 uncommitted.

McGovern this week has concentrated on campaigning in New York, which has 278 delegates and will hold its primary Tuesday. McGovern strategists have estimated he will get 225 New York delegates and predicted he will lock up the nomination two weeks before the convention.

The McGovern backers also expect to make large inroads in the 121 still uncommitted delegates in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Kansas, Oklahoma and Virginia. They said there also should be scattered switches from the Muskie total, most likely in Illinois where Muskie has 61 and McGovern 18.

If the convention goes to a second ballot, the McGovern strategists said, there would be switches to McGovern from North Carolina, Tennessee, Maryland and Indiana and possibly from several other states.

Auto Is Stolen

His 1959 white Oldsmobile, license BLF055, was taken from 64A Bolinas Road, Fairfax, between 7 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. Monday, Steven Savin, 1931 Novato Boulevard, Novato, told police yesterday.

Novato Fire Budget Hike To Be Voted

The Novato Fire Protection District board has scheduled adoption of a $753,281 budget for 1972-73 at 7:30 p.m. June 28 at the main fire station.

Directors, who approved it as a preliminary budget last month, agreed last night to set final adoption at their next regular meeting, reported Asst. Chief Richard W. Beyer.

The budget is up $138,637 from the current budget and the tax rate is expected to be 70 cents per $100 assessej valuation, up 22 cents from this year's rate.

The board also received a request from Marin Valley Mobile Homes Inc. to annex 35 acres east of its completed mobile home development, south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

School Fencing To Be Replaced

The Laguna School District board has approved replacement this summer of part of the fencing around the one-room school, according to Trustee Donald J. Moreda.

Most of the labor will be volunteer and the cost will be about $200, he said.

Water Rate Change Hearing Scheduled

By PAT ANGLE

A proposal to charge both large and small water users in the Marin Municipal Water District the same rate for each unit of water consumed was accepted yesterday by the district board. (See another story, page 1.)

The Board, with directors Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and Robert G. Anderson absent, set a pubiic hearing on the change for its June 28 meeting at 1:30 p.m. in the district office in Corte Madera.

The plan, by Brown and Caldwell Engineers, would create a flat rate structure and result in a charge of 34 cents per 100 cubic feet of water used, no matter how much a particular user consumed.

At present, larger water users receive discounts for cubic feet of water above 10,000 cubic feet used during each bimonthly billing period.

Currently, the price is 31 cents (per 100 cubic feet) for water consumed between 10,000 and 20,000 cubic feet, 29 cents between 20,000 and 30,000, 27 cents between 30,000 and 40,000 and 25 cents for water used above 40,000 gallons.

Director Eugene A. Miller, head of a board committee, which studied the rate change proposal, said that small water usrs such as single households will not be affected. "These small users constitute 89 per cent of our customers and their rates will not go up," Miller said.

But the remaining 11 per cent of the district's customers, who incidentally use 25 per cent of the district's entire water supply annually, will find their water bills increasing significantly, Miller said.

Miller and the other committee members, Director John R. MacPhail, are recommending that the district initiate the rate increases for larger users in two phases, effecting an increase to 30 cents per 100 cubic feet by October 1 of this year and the entire hike to 34 cents by July 1, 1973.

New Board At Full Membership

Two additional members have been named to the Novato Human Needs Center board bringing the board to its full membership of nine, according to John H. Telfer, center director.

The two new board members are Geoffrey J. Bywater of 11 Brassie Court, 18-year-old candidate in the recent city council election, as youth representative, and William J. J. Smith of 740 Eucalyptus Avenue, who is retiring as chief assistant to the deputy state superintendent of schools, as senior representative.

The board was scheduled to meet at noon today at Sportsman Lodge, north of Novato.

Telfer said a supply of emergency nonperishable food is being built up at the center as the result of the parent-faculty club at San Ramon School. "Other groups are encouraged to donate emergency food" at the center, 1200 Grant Avenue, he said.

"At the present time, clothing supplies are adequate," he reported. In the future, persons who want to take clothing donations should call first to find out if the items are needed, he said.

Trustee Truancy May Force Hub Election

Election of a school board member may be added to the Nov. 7 ballot in San Anselmo School District.

The San Anselmo board has asked Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino whether failure of trustee Basil Scalabrini to attend a board meeting since early March creates a vacancy.

Godino said today apparently it does, under Section 1770 of the Government Code, which says an office becomes vacant on the occupant's "ceasing to discharge the duties of his office for the period of three consecutive months except when prevented by sickness, or when absent from the state with the permission required by law."

Six regular meetings plus a long series of special meetings have been held by the San Anselmo board since Scalabrini last attended over three months ago.

Godino said he would advise the board to notify Scalabrini by registered letter that his office appears to be vacant under the law, and then declare it vacant if no satisfactory explanation for his absence is received.

The law calls for a special election to be held within 120 days of the office being declared vacant. Godino noted, however, that this would carry almost to the November general election, and suggested the timing might be such that the new trustee could be elected at that time.

Scalabrini is a teacher in Kentfield School District, but has been on a half-year sabbatical leave since the start of the second semester. Kentfield Supt. Anthony Bacich said Scalabrini took the leave to work on a systems management study on which he is preparing his master's thesis at San Francisco State University.

The telephone at Scalabrini's home in San Anselmo has been disconnected.

Deadline Set For Petitions

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. says his office will remain open until midnight June 29 to accept petition certificates to qualify initiatives for the November ballot.

"These extra hours may mean the difference between allowing the people to vote on an issue and not allowing that vote," Brown said.

Brown announced Wednesday that hand deliveries of petition certificates — affidavits from county clerks telling how many verified signatures were collected for each initiative —will be accepted in both his Sacramento and Los Angeles office until midnight June 29, the deadline for submitting signatures.

Air Force Surrenders To Water Bill Letter Threat

Faced with the prospect of angry letters to a Marin congressman, representatives of the Air Force agreed yesterday to pay a two-year-old water bill to the Marin Municipal Water District.

The $38,000 overdue account was the result of the service's refusal to pay a water rate increase for service to Hamilton Air Force Base, one of the water district's largest users which annually consumes approximately 300 million gallons.

At its last meeting the water district board, apparently angered by the Air Force's reluctance to pay up, decided to write a letter of protest to Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, if the bill was not settled promptly.

Yesterday, Capt. Thomas Fallon, procurement officer for Hamilton, met with the board in a last attempt to get the district to agree to negotiate the water rates hikes with the base, then promised to pay when the board showed no inclination to do so.

Fallon contended that the district's contract to provide water to Hamilton and to the Mill Valley Air Force Station on Mount Tamalpais contains a clause which states the district must negotiate with the Air Force on any rate increase.

But Robert W. Elliott, attorney for the district, said he did not believe the district had a right to negotiate special water rates for the base unless it game the same preferential treatment to other public agencies.

After receiving the promise of payment, the board decided to consider whether to withdraw from the contract with Hamilton at its June 28 meeting to eliminate any future problems over hikes in the price of water.

Youths Spread Christ's Words

DALLAS (UPI)—Youthful delegates attending the week-long religious gathering Explo '72 went door to door yesterday spreading the Gospel.

"We got mixed reactions," said Jerry Boone, 23, of Ventsra, Calif. "Some people slammed the door in our faces. But some were very receptive."

Boone and about 100,000 other delegates arrived in Dallas early in the week and have been attending morning seminars, fanning out over the city to spread the "Good News of Jesus" during the afternoons, and at night they pack the Cotton Bowl for mass meetings.

Evangelist Billy Graham, who has attended the gathering daily so far, will address the group tomorrow night, and again on Saturday during the Explo finale—a mod religious music festival in an open area near downtown Dallas at which Graham expects 250,000 persons.

Some of the participants gathered in shopping centers to hand out literature and try to tell passersby about Jesus.

The House Always Has Gambling Edge

CHICAGO (UPI) — Every gambler knows in his heart he can't beat the house, but what are the odds that any of the world's major casinos will finish a year with a profit?

Each game offered the patrons, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, gives the casino a mathematical expectancy of winning and there is small likelihood the house would lose money even for one day.

But over the course of a year the odds of ending up without a profit have been calculated at about 1 chance in 50 billion.

Pat Slates Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon flies west Friday for appearances in two states. She will address 1,600 high school students at the annual leadership conference of Phi Beta Lambda in Houston Friday.

Saturday night, she will attend a dinner in her honor in Los Angeles. She probably will return to Washington Sunday.

LAKE TAHOE DIVES

The 22-Year-Old Commodore Of The San Rafael Sub Fleet

By DICK SMULLEN

In the past 18 months he and his 23-year-old brother, Robert, have built two submarines from teardrop-shaped aircraft wing tanks.

Later this summer he hopes to take the subs to Lake Tahoe to see if their handiwork really operates. He said the initial dives will be on July 31 and Aug. 1 near Chamberlain on the California shore.

Both subs are named for the Plesiosaurus, an amphibious dinosaur with paddle-shaped feet.

The larger of the pair, Plesiosaurus II, is made of two tanks, over and under. The top tank is filled with compressed air, the bottom hold the two Laceys, motor, batteries, controls and ballast. It is a dry sub, filled with compressed air to keep out water.

The smaller half of the fleet is Plesiosaurus I, a wet sub, designed to fill with water, and made from one tank. Two cockpits have been carved in the aluminum alloy hull and dual controls operate the propeller and diving planes from both seats.

Two small compressed-air torpedoes sit in tubes on the front of the smaller sub, "just for effect. I don't even know if they work," Douglas said, smiling.

Lacey started building his first submarine, the smaller of the pair, two and a half years ago to satisfy his underwater curiosity. A skindiver since the summer of 1969, he found wetsuits constricting and decided to try other methods of underwater exploration.

He does most of his diving at Lake Tahoe. Driving back one day, he noticed the surplus wing tanks for sale. He and Robert began thinking how they could be used, and finally settled on submarines.

He has invested 15 months and $2,200 in both subs, but said "I always wanted one," adding "If it works, it'll be worth it."

He has never built a boat before, let alone a submarine. A native of San Rafael, he graduated from San Pedro School, St. Raphael's School and San Rafael High School.

During his four years in high school he took mechanical drawing, but math wasn't his strong subject. "I tried to get into the physics club," he said, but couldn't fulfill the requirements "because I just somehow never 'got' algebra." He said long division is the highest mathematics he uses.

If that's true, long division has come a long way. Safety precautions are a good example.

Manual and electric backup systems insure that no mechanical failure will cripple the sub, and in case it is rammed or there is an electrical fire, an alarm bell will ring, a warning to abandon ship.

When the two hatch covers are pressed out, the top tank begins to fill with air, taking the sub to the surface. Depending on how deep the boat is, the Laceys must get clear to make a slower ascent. If they shot upward as fast as the submarine, they might get the "bends," caused when nitrogen bubbles in the bloodstream expand.

Lacey said a scuba tank will be strapped to the outside of the hull, providing air during the ascent. All these details are necessary because the dry sub can go as deep as 500 feet. (He estimates wet sub dives will be limited to 150 feet).

All electrical wiring was done by Lacey and his brother. During an 18-month hitch in the army Lacey worked as an aircraft electrician.

The dry sub is equipped for salvage work. Lacey has installed two mechanical arms complete with claws that open and close. All he needs now are floodlights and he's ready.

He said there are salvageable items in Tahoe, including an airplane that went off the end of a nearby runway and plunged into the lake, but he doesn't intend to pay for the sub from salvage work. He has designed it with 2,800 pounds of positive buoyancy which will allow it to bring up objects that heavy.

With no practical experience to guide him, Lacey said he took design ideas and construction details from books about submarines and Navy manuals.

He was ready to test the subs last June, but met disaster before he'd left the family driveway at 41 Dunfries Terrace. Both were mounted on an old auto chassis, tied with ropes.

While the trailer was being towed down the steep curving driveway, the ropes broke and both subs fell to the street. The lead-acid batteries, used for power, exploded, spilling acid on the street and inside the hulls and causing enough damage to sideline attempts for at least a year.

This time things will be different. Metal cables tie the hulls to the chassis and the arrangement has been field tested.

Strangely enough, Lacey is more afraid of being rammed than the sub not working. While diving at Tahoe he has been narrowly missed by speedboats several times, he said.

As a preventive measure he has painted both hulls a bright orange.

If all goes well, San Rafael may have another Captain Nemo on its hands in early August.

MacKay, Net Group Sanction Squabble

By RALPH CHATOIAN

At the moment, Barry MacKay of Ross, the man in charge of the $50,000 Redwood Bank International Open tennis tournament, and the Northern California Tennis Association are in disagreement.

"I'm hopeful we will get their sanction for the tournament eventually," said MacKay yesterday in announcing plans for the tourney being sponsored by the San Rafael bank. "But regardless, we'll have a top-flight tournament for the Bay Area with all the best pros available."

BARRY MacKAY

MacKay laid out his plans at a hastily called press conference yesterday. The Redwood tournament is scheduled for the Round Hill Golf and Country Club in Alamo, Sept. 25 through Oct. 1. MacKay is assured of getting the 32 contract pros of Lamar Hunt's World Championship of Tennis group which includes the big names of tennis, guys like Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall and Arthur Ashe.

In the meantime, the tournament as yet does not have sanction from the Northern California Tennis Association which is planning a tournament of its own during the same time, the 83rd Pacific Coast International Championships which also will have a $50,000 purse. The big names of tennis, obviously, would be missing from this tourney. Even Laver can't play on two courts at the same time.

"I've guaranteed the Northern California Tennis Association $5,000," said MacKay. "I applied for the sanction and was told they wanted more time to think about it. I still expect to get approval."

IF YOU ARE a wrestling buff — I don't mean that circus stuff you see on television — you have a chance to watch some of the nation's best wrestlers in action tomorrow night, 7:30, in the main gymnasium at California State College, Sonoma.

Ken Flynn, the school's wrestling coach, is labeling it "Showcase of Champions," and charging $1 for admission, money going to the Olympic Development Fund. Competing against one another will be top wrestlers from the Western part of the U.S. who are working out at the Sonoma college prior to the Olympic trials in Minnesota.

Included are two members of the 1968 U.S. Olympic wrestling team, Russ Camilleri (San Jose State grad) in the 180-pound class, and Air Force Capt. Wayne Baughman (U. of Oklahoma), in the 198-pound group.

IT APPEARS THAT Mike McCormick is only hours away from quitting baseball. According to a United Press International story out of Phoenix, the 33-year-old McCormick pitched a 7-2 Pacific Coast League victory over Salt Lake City last night and then said he plans to retire if he is not in the major leagues by trading deadline, midnight tonight.

The left-handed McCormick, a former Cy Young Award winner, has a 5-4 record with the Phoenix Giants who are leading the PCL East by 3½ games despite all the raiding of players by S.F. this season.

TROPHY FOR THE COACH — George Lester, retiring San Rafael High School teacher and golf coach, admired a trophy presented to him by members of his golf team. "The kids sure come up with some surprises," said Lester, who taught at San Rafael 21 years and coached golf for 17.

GEORGE LESTER

San Rafael's Golf Coach Swings Into Retirement

By LEW CODDINGTON

Describing George Lester as the San Rafael High School golf coach is something like describing Thomas Jefferson as the inventor of the dumbwaiter — it's true enough, as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough.

Lester is also an airplane pilot, world traveler and an educator of prominence, as well as a coach in seven different sports at one time or another.

Now, he is about to become a retiree. He will turn 65 next Thursday, the mandatory retirement age, and consequently will not return to teaching next fall.

'ONLY REGRET'

"My only regret after 32 years as a teacher is that I'm sorry I didn't get into it sooner," he said, looking back on a career that sent him bouncing back and forth across California before he settled at San Rafael in 1952.

"I had a good job in the production department of a furniture manufacturing company, but I wasn't happy. Everybody must come to a reckoning with himself. In that job, I had to sublimate myself to the corporation. I never felt like an individual human being."

So Lester went back to college and became a high-school coach in 1941 in Turlock. Two years later he was in Redlands, and a year after that in Santa Rosa. The next year he was in Lemoore.

With a master's degree in health education from the University of California at Berkeley, he was a logical choice to start a health education course in Lemoore's schools. So he entered classroom teaching in 1947. Later he was to implement a similar program in San Rafael.

VERSATILE COACH

Along the way, he coached football, basketball, track, tennis, swimming, golf and baseball. He was even athletic director at Redlands.

"I lettered in tennis in college," he said, "but golf is my favorite playing sport. I had to give up tennis bacause of a hip injury, anyway."

Lester was a four-handicapper in golf at one point, but plays to a 10 handicap now, following a back injury. "I had to change my whole swing," he says.

HEALTH

Those injuries notwithstanding, Lester is in remarkable health, and is talking about updating the medical portion of

Start For U.S. Open Golf Meet

"Sure, I've got a chance," insisted Trevino as a field of 135 pros and 15 amateurs began a four-day, 72-hole assault on the postcard-pretty Pebble Beach golf course — the first seaside course to play host to the Open in modern times.

Trevino, who got out of a hospital bed in El Paso, Tex., Tuesday after a bout with pneumonia, managed one round of practice over the ocean-bordered course on Wednesday and claimed that was enough to ready him for a defense of the title he won for the second time last year at Ardmore, Pa.

'KNOW COURSE'

"I know the course from having played here in the Crosby tournaments," he said, "and actually I don't like to practice too much over a course for a tournament. Look, the important thing here is to keep belting your drive into the middle of the fairways, and you can practice until you're blue in the face but if you can't keep the ball in the middle of the fairways, what the heck good is all that practice going to do you?"

Trevino's optimism is at variance with the theories of Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, both of whom have played many rounds of practice here and insist that Pebble Beach is a course that "takes a lot of knowing" and plays differently on different days.

"If you have never played a course before, then you need about three rounds to learn the course," Trevino disagreed. "But if you already know it, one round is enough — the little things about it come back to your quickly."

COUGHING

Trevino, coughing repeatedly and admitting that his head is "stopped up," said he will be on medicine for the next 12 days. "But I'm not weak or anything," he added. "I'm strong enough."

Nicklaus also says, "I'm ready," and the "Blond Bear" ranks as the 4-1 co-favorite with Archer, who comes from nearby Gilroy, Calif., and shares the top spot with Nicklaus because Pebble Beach is virtually his "home" course.

IRWIN

Hale Irwin of Kirkwood, Mo., shot a three-under-par 69 on Wednesday, playing with Nicklaus, for one of the best practice rounds, and Irwin came in marveling at Nicklaus, who shot "about 72."

Giants Upend Pirates, 3-1

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The lowly San Francisco Giants are making life miserable for the baseball champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

For example, the National League Western Division cellar dwellers upended the second place Pirates 3-1 last night here as Sam McDowell pitched a five-hitter.

The loss, along with New York's 8-3 triumph over Atlanta, was enough to give the Mets a half-game edge over the Pirates in the Eastern Division race.

The Giants jumped off to a 20 lead in the third on singles by Tito Fuentes, Bobby Bonds and Chris Speier and a unsuccessful Pirate pickoff play which led to a throwing error by third baseman Jose Pagan.

Pittsburgh cut the lead to 2-1 in the fourth on Manny Sanguillen's run scoring single but were unable to come up with another rally.

McDowell had near-perfect control, giving up only one walk and five singles to the hottest hitting team in the majors. It was his seventh victory against four defeats.

Dock Ellis, who pitched seven innings before giving way to Ramon Hernandez, gave up all three runs on six hits as his record dropped to 5-3.

The Pirates can move back into first place tonight over the idle Mets as they face the Giants in a twi-night doubleheader at Three Rivers Stadium. Luke Walker (2-2) and Bob Moose (4-2) were scheduled to start for Pittsburgh against San Francisco's Steve Stone (3-6) and Charlie Williams (0-2).

The Giants have signed an 18-year-old Portland, Ore., pitcher, their first choice in the free-agent draft.

Sports

Robert A. Dressler will report to the Giants' training area at Casa Grande, Ariz., before joining the Giants' Pioneer League rookie team at Great Falls, Mont., later this month, it was announced Wednesday.

Dressler, a 6-foot-3, 175-pounder, is a graduate of Madison High School in Portland. He had an earned run average of 0.38 and 87 strikeouts in 55 innings.

A GRICH GAME

Oriole Rookie Stops A's, 2-1

OAKLAND (UPI) —A Grich stole ballgame from the Oakland Athletics.

Bobby Grich, Mr. Everything for the Baltimore Orioles this year, led off the 10th inning with a home run off Jim Hunter Wednesday night to hand the Orioles and Dave McNally a 2-1 victory over the slumping A's.

It gave the Orioles a clean sweep of the three-game series, kept Baltimore tied for first with Detroit in the American League East and sent Oakland reeling to its fourth straight defeat.

"He's our Gil McDougald," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver in comparing Grich to the former utility man and sparkplug of the New York Yankees. "Grich can play any position in the infield and he could even play in the outfield too, but I already have enough trouble finding spots for the four good outfielders I have."

Grich, a rookie who attends Fresno State, has been starting at shortstop recently in place of the slumping Mark Belanger, who is hitting .163.

When sent down to Rochester by the Orioles last year, Grich said Weaver gave him only one instruction.

"He told me to be more aggressive at the plate and pull the ball more. That's what I'm trying to do."

A's Manager Dick Williams shook up his lineup somewhat in an effort to snap the A's out of their slump. Gene Tenace caught instead of Dave Duncan and Ron Clark started at second base in place of Larry Brown but both Clark and Tenace went hitless against McNally (7-5) who gave up only four hits.

Three of them came in the fourth inning when Joe Rudi's double and singles by Reggie

MEMPHIS SALE THE TOPIC

Finley Meets With ABA Pros

CHICAGO (UPI)—Charles O. Finley met Wednesday with trustees of the Memphis Pros of the American Basketball Association to discuss the sale of the Pros to him.

There was no immediate announcement as to what took place behind the closed doors of his office, where he huddled with John (Buddy) Leak, chairman of the board of the Pros; Avron Fogelman, president; and Martin Heller, lawyer for the American Basketball Association.

They talked about how the question of the club's $140,000 in debts might be answered, but no conclusions were arrived at.

Under a verbal agreement announced Tuesday by ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph, Finley would buy the club and pay $109,000 owed to the league by the Pros and arrange to pay off the $140,000 in debts.

Finley also owns the Oakland Athletics baseball team and the California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League.

He is known to have told the Pros owners that "Memphis would have to show good support for the team" if they wish to keep the franchise there. Finley has, in the past, been willing to shift his franchises, as he did with the A's from Kansas City.

No Pro Cage Merger For Now — Kennedy

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI) — National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy, conceding that a pro basketball merger before next season was "impossible," says it will be at least two years before the NBA and American Basketball Association meet in the first basketball "superbowl."

Kennedy, who blames the delay in approving the merger on Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N. C., said a championship playoff could not be arranged for 1973 even if the merger were approved by this fall-which seems unlikely.

Ervin's Senate subcommittee has had the merger legislation tied up since last September, and even after his group and then the full Senate are done with it, the bill will face another hostile committee chairman in the House. Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N. Y.

"Considering that we have been faced in a series of hearings with an avowed, openly hostile chairman, I don't feel we could have looked forward to much more progress than has taken place," Kennedy said, downplaying suggestions that the merger might never get out of committee.

Congressional approval is vital to the merger of the NBA and ABA because it would allow the league to hold a common draft and end their costly bidding war for talent, without violating antitrust laws.

Because of that much of the opposition has come from the NBA Players' Association, which found an ally in Ervin. But Kennedy remains optimistic.

"I firmly believe the Senate subcommittee will report the bill out favorably to tha Senate," Kennedy said.

Kennedy and owners of the NBA's 17 teams are here for their annual two day summer meeting which begins today and is not likely to produce much news unless there are developments regarding the merger.

The ABA gave little indication anything was happening earlier in the week, when, after their own meeting, outgoing commissioner Jack Dolph proclaimed the league stronger than ever.

Kennedy himself said the ABA's action in dissolving the Pittsburgh and Florida franchises would have no effect on the NBA meeting and said he did not even expect the ABA to be mentioned here, "with the exception of the merger committee report."

"I have had no communication of any kind with the ABA since Monday and to the best of my knowledge, none of the owners has had any communication with the ABA," Kennedy said.

Substitute Met Belts Key Homer

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

While all the storm clouds were swirling around Tommie Agee's dropping fly balls in centerfield during the recent New York Mets' slump, almost overlooked has been the hitting of second-string catcher Duffy Dyer.

But Dyer, who has been batting at a .429 clip over the past four games with six runs-batted-in, finally got his place in the limelight Wednesday night when he crashed his fifth homer (a career high) in leading the Mets back into first place in the National League East with an 8-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves. It was also Dyer's third homer in four games.

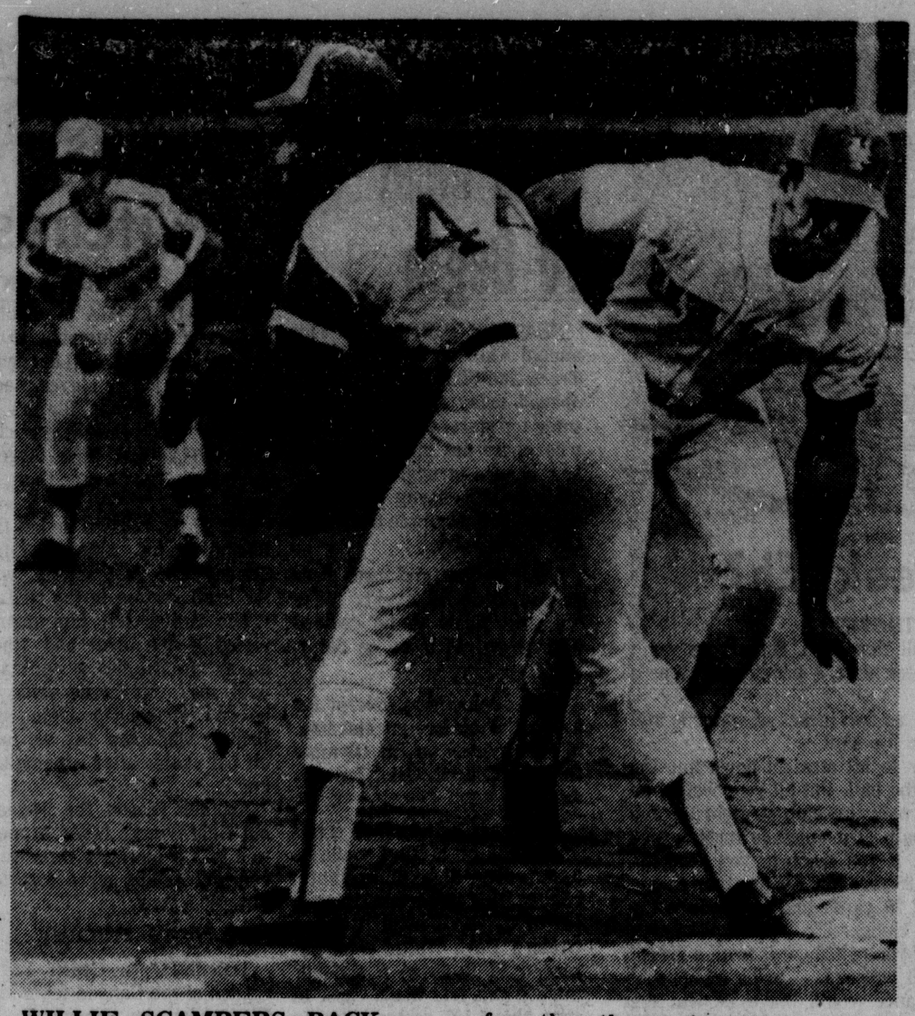
In other National League games, Pittsburgh was beaten by San Francisco 3-1 enabling the Mets to climb back into first place, Cincinnati nipped Philadelphia 2-1, Houston edged Montreal 5-4, Chicago belted San Diego 12-9 and St. Louis and Los Angeles were rained out after four innings.

While Dyer was keeping his hot streak going, Willie Mays, playing in place of Agee in centerfield, was back doing his thing too. Mays pounded out two hits in five trips to the plate and drove in one run with a double in the fourth. Agee had dropped fly balls the previous two nights to enable the Braves to rally for victories.

Johnny Bench continued his hot-hitting as the Reds ran their winning streak to seven games with the victory over Philadelphia. Bench drove home both Cincinnati runs with a sacrifice fly and his 17th homer. Jack Billingham (4-6) picked up the victory with relief help from Clay Carroll.

Bob Stinson's one-out single capped a four-run ninth inning that gave Houston its come-from-behind victory over Montreal. Jim Wynn started the ninth inning rally with a walk and moved to second on Lee May's single. After Bob Watson walked to load the bases, pinch-hitter Jimmy Stewart followed with a sacrifice fly. A wild pitch by reliever Mike Marshall and Doug Rader's single tied the game at 4-4 and Stinson's single then wrapped it up.

Ron Santo's three-run homer keyed a six-run sixth inning rally that sent the Cubs over the Padres. Billy Williams and Jose Cardenal also homered for Chicago in the game.



WILLIE SCAMPERS BACK — New York Mets' Willie Mays returned quickly to first base on an attempted pickoff as Atlanta Braves' Hank Aaron (44) waited for the throw in Atlanta last night. Mays had arrived at first base in the opening inning after singling. New York won, 8-3.

Long Island's Rubin Is NBA 76er Coach

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia 76ers today announced the appointment of Roy Rubin, head coach at Long Island University for the past 11 years, as the new coach of the National Basketball Association team.

Rubin, who took his team to the National Invitational Tournament last winter, succeeds Jack Ramsay, who resigned at the end of last season after a 30-52 record. Ramsay has since been named coach of the Buffalo Braves in the NBA.

Rubin called the appointment a "tremendous challenge" and said "I intend to work my butt off."

Regarding making the change from college to the pro ranks, Rubin said 'basketball is basketball on any level."

Don Dejardin, general manager of the 76ers, said the search for a new coach went on "longer than I anticipated."

Dejardin said the length of the search was prompted by a number of things, citing the Billy Cunningham case and added, "most if not all"" of the college coaches "said it would have been unfair to their schools to take the job just as the recruiting season was beginning."

He described Rubin as "a man who over the period of 20 years in coaching has proven he is a winner."

The 76ers and the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association have been engaged in a legal battle over Cunningham, a top forward.

The Cougars announced in Charlotte, N.C., today that Cunningham has joined the team.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last April 6 that Cunningham had to honor a controversial contract he signed with the Cougars.

Harmon Hits Mark; Lolich Wins Tenth

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Harmon Killebrew reached a milestone Wednesday night but Mickey Lolich was more than happy to settle for an ordinary victory.

Killebrew, the slumping slugger for the Minnesota Twins, moved into sixth place on the all-time home run list when he tagged Lolich for a two-run homer in the fourth inning, his 522nd. But Lolich hung on for his 10th victory on a five-hitter as the Detroit Tigers edged the Twins 3-2 to remain tied with Baltimore for first place in the American League East.

In the other AL games, Baltimore edged Oakland 2-1 in 10 innings, Texas topped Milwaukee 7-1, New York blanked Chicago 3-0, Boston routed Kansas City 11-3 and California topped Cleveland 4-3.

Chicago lost a chance to gain another game on Oakland when the White Sox were blanked by New York's Mike Kekich and Sparky Lyle, who combined on a four-hitter. Johnny Callison and Bobby Murcer hit solo homers to beat Tom Bradley.

Danny Cater slammed a three-run homer and drove in another run with an infield grounder as Boston routed Kansas City.

Rich Hand and Paul Lindblad combined on a four-hitter as Texes downed Milwaukee. The Rangers broke the game wide open with a six-run fourth inning including a two-run double by Tom Grieve. Ken Brett, now 2-8, suffered the loss.

Alex Johnson, who had more than his share of problems in California last year, made a key error in a visiting uniform at Anaheim Stadium. He dropped a fly ball by Sandy Alomar in the first inning while trying to avoid a collision with Eddie Leon. The next two batters were retired but Bob Oliver homered, Ken McMullen singled and Lee Stanton homered. Johnson's error made all four runs unearned aand they were the difference as California edged Milt Wilcox and Cleveland.

Stanford Boxing Coach Lunny Out After 25 Years

PALO ALTO (UPI)—Stanford Boxing Coach Ray Lunny announced Wednesday that he is quitting his job of 25 years to accept a position in business.

Bob Young, Stanford's Acting athletic director, described Lunny as "one of our most popular coaches." "It was disappointing to all of us when we found it necessary to drop intercollegiate boxing two years ago," Young said.

Lunny tutored such collegiate champions as Bob Birkie and Ed Rothman. Lunny, of Redwood City, is the father of Ray Lunny III, currently a lightweight unbeaten in eight bouts.

Miss Blalock 'Seen' Breaking The Rules

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Ladies Professional Golf Association said Wednesday spies hiding in woods and stationed on television towers with binoculars had seen Jane Blalock illegally move her ball during tournament play.

The disclosure came in affidavits presented to U.S. District Court Judge Charles Moye, who held a hearing on a request by Miss Blalock for a permanent indunction against a one-year-suspension handed her by the LPGA.

Miss Blalock, the leading money winner on the women's tour, has filed a $5-million suit against the LPGA, contending it is depriving her of her livelihood.

Her attorneys contended at Wednesday's hearing that the LPGA had singled her out as an example to deter other rules' violations among golfers.

The LPGA also introduced several affidavits from regular tour players quoting Miss Blalock as saying, "I probably have been guilty of moving my ball out of spike marks, heel prints, and ball marks on several occasions. I dug my own grave and I guess I'll have to live with it."

LESTER

his pilot's license so he can fly again. "It'll be no trouble," he relates. "My doc says I'm in great shape."

Lester has logged over 1,000 hours in the air and used to own his own plane (a Piper). In fact, he spent so much time airborne that he virtually gave up golf back in the early 1950s, so it came as a surprise when a group of San Rafael students asked him to revive and coach a team.

"At the time, we were in the old North Bay League. The only two schools in the county were Tamalpais and San Rafael — well, Drake was just starting up.

"The best golfer I ever had was Donnie Hawken, who went on to play at Brigham Young with Ray Leach (Novato star). The best team I ever saw was the Drake team of the mid-fifties which went unbeaten two straight years. Tam had a great team a few years back. My 1962 team (an undefeated champion) was probably the third best.

THRILL

Almost according to script, Lester's greatest coaching thrill was reserved for his 17th and final year. "That would be Ed Thibodeau's hole-in-one," recorded at Meadow Club in May. It was the only ace in Marin County Athletic League history.

"It's every golfer's dream. I missed seeing it by a turn of the head, though. You know, I've never seen one. I've had two shots of my own hit in the cup and jump out."

Lester plans a full-scale assault on his retirement years, including another junket to Hawaii, virtually his second home. "I've been there maybe 15-16 times, maybe more," he says. "It's my favorite golfing spot."

CLUB PRO

He was offered a job as a club professional on the island of Maui, but turned it down because, "it's in the middle of nowhere. I want to be where the action is — Honolulu."

Other retirement possibilities include renewed flying, a trip to Europe, or even going back to school. "I'll certainly spend some time in Marin to be near my children," he said.

He and his wife, Mary Ellen, live in San Rafael. They have one daughter, now Pamela Handley, and a six-month-old grandson, Kelly, who live in Novato.

For seven years, Lester was on the administtative staff at San Rafael, but asked to go back to the classroom. "Teaching is hard work emotionally, but it's satisfying," he said. "It gets into your bloodstream. I'll really miss the swell people and swell kids I've been fortunate enough to be associated with.

"The time sure does slip away quickly when you're active."

Mrs. May Fires First Ace At Indian Valley

Mrs. William May, veteran golfer who has been making headlines on Marin courses for the past couple of decades, fired her first hole-in-one yesterday while playing in the Indian Valley Women's Golf Club Invitational tourney.

The 56-year-old Mrs. May, a 12-handicapper who has been playing golf for the past 30 years, used a four-iron to ace the 145-yard 17th hole on the Indian Valley course in Novato.

Mrs. May, of Woodacre, won the Women's Marin County Tournament of Champions the first year it was held, in 1968.

Yesterday's hole-in-one was witnessed by the other three members of her foursome, Mrs. Earl Berg, Mrs. Melvin Rupp and Mrs. Robert Johnson.

Jackson and Sal Bando accounted for Oakland's only run.

An error by Hunter, now 6-3, on a double play attempt gave Baltimore its other run in the third. Dave Johnson led off the inning with a single and moved to second on a base hit by Grich. Don Buford then grounded into a forceout at second but Hunter let Bert Campaneris' throw to first go through him, with Johnson scoring.

The A's are off today before opening a three-game weekend series with Cleveland Friday night. Ken Holtzman is scheduled to pitch that game for the A's.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

Up A Creek, Eh?

By LEE TREVINO

Playing water shots isn't all that hard. Some guys won't bet they can get out of a creek with a paddle, let alone a wedge.

A ball covered by as much as two inches of water is still playable — unless a frog's on top of it.

The secret of getting out is to hit straight down into the water about an inch back of the ball. Put all your weight on your left leg. Then you can pick the club straight up and bring it down in the same path. The mistake most people make is trying to help it out. If you scoop it, you poop it.

If you can advance the ball 25 yards. it's better than taking a drop (and penalty). Cut off 25 yards and you reduce the distance to the green by two clubs.

I don't advise water shots if you're 130 yards from a green. Even if you get out you're still 105 yards — and a wedge shot — away. And there's a chance you'll leave it with the crawfish. So take the drop and penalty.

It's the best shot when you're close to the green, or if you're playing a par 5 where those 25 yards can help you make par.

Summer Meets Set In Track In San Mateo

The Northern California Track and Field Officials Association will conduct a series of meets for men this summer at the College of San Mateo according to association president Harry Young.

Meets will be held every Saturday from June 17 through Aug. 12. Field events will start at 11:30 a.m. and running events at noon. There will be two divisions, open and high school.

AAU Track Title Meet To Begin

SEATTLE (UPI) —The 84th annual Amateur Athletic Union Track and Field Championships opened today as a tune-up for some top stars, a rest for others who chose not to come and a last chance struggle for many athletes still trying to qualify for the U. S. Olympic trials only two weeks away.

Qualifications and trials were scheduled in 15 events today with six finals to be decided Friday and 13 more on Saturday.

Most competitors, except for a handful of foreign entrants, had their eyes on the Olympic trials in Eugene, Ore., June 29-July 9.

Jim Ryun, suffering an erratic season of blazing victories and fading disappointments, changed his mind and dropped out of the AAU meet. Bowling Green's Dave Wottle, who ran second to Ryun in a sub-four minute mile last week, chose to skip the 1,500 meter race in favor of the 800-meter run.

A three-ring circus of the world's best shot putters moved here as world record holder Randy Matson, Al Feuerbach and newcomer George Woods continued their duel. They are the only three in the world who have reached 70 feet with the 16-pound shot and they could give America a 1-2-3 sweep in the Munich Olympics.

Other world record holders competing here were pole vaulter Bob Seagren, Olympic champion Lee Evans in the 400-meters, Donald Quarrie in the 200-meters, Rod Milburn in the 110-meter hurdles and Jay Silvester in the discus.

Bruins' McKenzie Switches Leagues

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

PHILADELPHIA — John McKenzie says jumping from the National Hockey League to take a new job as player-coach of the Philadelphia Blazers of the New World Hockey Association (WHA) was "the biggest decision I've ever had to make."

The Bruins left him unprotected in the draft and "they never mentioned a contract with me," McKenzie said. "I haven't spoken to them (the Bruins) since the day we took off our skates after winning the cup."

More Hockey

TORONTO — Coach Harry Sinden of the Canada team said Wednesday he expects to be able to name next week "35 or 36" National Hockey League players selected to play for Canada in the exhibition series against the Soviet Union next fall.

At a late night news conference here, the former coach of the Boston Bruins officially confirmed the appointment of former Montreal Canadiens' forward John Ferguson as assistant coach.

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia Phillies catcher Tim McCarver was traded to Montreal Wednesday for Expos catcher John Bateman.

McCarver, 30, came to Philadelphia in 1969 in a seven-player deal that also brought Curt Flood, Joe Hoerner and Byron Brown to the Phillies and sent Richie Allen, Jerry Johnson and Cookie Rojas to St. Louis.

McCarver has played in 45 games this season and is batting .237. He played in 134 games last season, hit eight home runs, and batted .278.

Yachting

NEWPORT, R.I. — The United States maintained a slim lead over Argentina Wednesday in the Onionpatch Yacht Tournament competition which culminates Friday with a Newport-to-Bermuda race.

The United States picked up 32 points in the day's competition to boost its total to 149 points over Argentina's 147 points for the first three races of this series.

Tennis

BECKENHAM, England — Hopes of a quarter-final pairing between the veterans Pancho Gonzales and Torben Ulrich in the Greenshield-Kent Lawn Tennis Championships at Beckenham were dashed Wednesday by 23-year-old Australian Bill Lloyd.

Lloyd, a favorite to fill John Newcombe's Wimbledon place if the champion is unable to defend his title, eliminated the 43-year-old Ulrich in the third round by 7-5, 6-1.

Earlier Gonzales, calling on his experience to use telling shots to save his legs, defeated Australia's No. 11 seed, John Bartlett 7-5, 6-4, and now meets Lloyd in the last quarter-finals.

THIS WEEKEND! AN EXCITING TREASURE HUNT AT SNOWFLOWER.

Yes! A special Father's Day Treasure Hunt will be held on June 17, 18 at Snowflower, the unique family camping project in the Sierra. Bring the children . . . and turn them loose to find certificates we've hidden for some really fantastic Father's Day gifts . . . sleeping bags, fishing gear, and hats, tents, camper's stoves, dozens of valuable quality items.

And to make it more fun, a list of clever clues will lead you right to the prize certificates . . . if you just sharpen your wits a bit.

Here are a couple of actual clues:

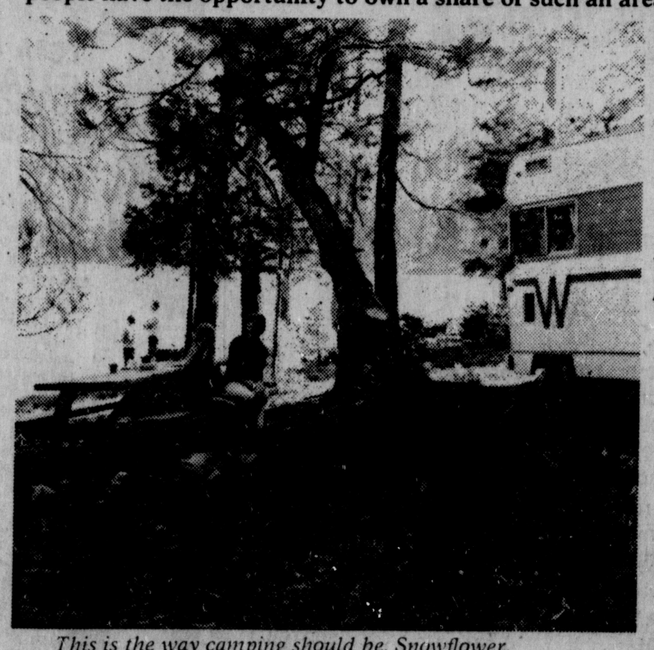
You 'll get all the clues when you drive in. And, if the Treasure Hunt isn't enough, just look at what else you can do. You can swim or sail or ride paddleboats and canoes. You can hike and fish for fighting trout. And you can top off the day at our deep-pit barbecue, which will start at 3 P.M., Saturday and Sunday.

Search high and low, follow the clues to hidden treasure certificates.

Snowflower is the new camping adventure.

Only a few people ever have the chance to experience such an exclusive, quality project. And even fewer people have the opportunity to own a share of such an area. Because Snowflower must be seen to be appreciated. It cannot be separated from highly commercial projects or money making land schemes until it has been seen...and experienced. Perhaps this weekend will be when you take a look. To decide for yourself whether camping has to be like the reported Memorial Day crush . . . or whether it can really be an adventure, like Snowflower.



This is the way camping should be. Snowflower.

Directions to Snowflower.

Snowflower is 77 miles past Sacramento on Interstate 80. Follow I-80 to the Yuba Gap Exit, then straight down Kelly Lake Road to Snowflower.

Want to know more about Snowflower? Just fill in the coupon and send it to us.

Come early for the Treasure Hunt.

We'll open the gates at 8 A.M. on Saturday and Sunday. You'll get a complete set of rules and clues as you drive in. And then . . . good luck!

Sometimes A Loss Can Really Hurt

PITTSBURGH—Horace Stoneham skipped this road trip of the Giants. The owner of the ball club flew to Phoenix instead. His Phoenix Giants in the Pacific Coast League have been doing much better than their major league cousins.

How is Stoneham taking this season's travails of his big team? He maintains a poker face in his Candlestick Park box. But what, if any, comments does he make to his front office lieutenants who sit beside him? Has he blamed anyone for this season's painful efforts of the Giants? Has he indicated in any way that he is running out of patience?

JERRY DONOVAN, Stoneham's executive assistant, never would carry tales out of the presidential box. Yet, Donovan didn't hesitate when asked how Stoneham was taking it all.

"Surprisingly well," said Donovan. "But last weekend one particular loss got to him. It was that game in which we took a 2-1 lead into the eighth inning."

The game to which Donovan referred was the one in which Steve Stone was pitching. Stoneham admires Stone. Stoneham predicted in the spring of 1971 that Stone would be a good major league pitcher. "If we're wrong about that young man and Chris Speier," Stoneham had said, "then we know nothing about baseball.

NOW, STONE WAS just six outs away from what would be his fourth win of 1972. After he narrowed the potential win to three outs by blanking the Cubs in the eighth, Stoneham turned to Donovan and said:

"Well, we're over that hurdle. We got beat in the eighth the other day."

Then came the ninth inning. Rick Monday hit a two-run homer. Ron Santo hit a solo homer. The Cubs won 4-2 and instead of getting his fourth win of the season, Stone had his sixth loss notwithstanding the team's best ERA of 2.14.

IT WAS THE seventh time that eighth and ninth inning homers had beaten the Giants this season. On 11 other occasions they lost to late inning rallies on singles, doubles, triples and errors. So Stoneham had to be getting accustomed to such shenanigans.

However, that loss on Monday's and Santo's ninth inning homers was particularly jarring to Stoneham.

"Yes," said Donovan, "that one got to him. He didn't say anything but it hurt. Still, he is confident the team will find itself and start winning. I sincerely hope so because I have a boss who is a wonderful man, a wonderful baseball man."

San Rafael Drivers In Monterey

San Rafael's Pat Semple and Stuart Fisher are early Marin entries in the June 23-25 Olympia Sprint National Championship Road Races set for Laguna Seca Raceway in Monterey.

Semple has entered the A Sports Racing event with a powerhouse Lola T163. The car built in England is rated one of the fastest sports cars in the world.

Fisher will see wheel duty in a one seat Formula Vee Lynx. The Formula Vee race is expected to be one of the most hotly contested or the weekend card with 28 entries already filed for the event including strong southern California and Oregon entries.

In all, 10 races are planned for the national point meet. More than 300 drivers are expected to compete in the program from six western states.

Points earned will help determine western drivers to compete in the All American runoffs scheduled for this fall.

Qualifying will be held Friday with five races scheduled for Saturday and five Sunday, June 25. Proceeds from the event will benefit some 50 charities in Northern California.

Children under 12 years will be admitted free throughout the weekend.

Arizona State '9' Seeks Title

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Arizona State Sun Devils, the winningest team in the nation this year with a record of 64-4, could nail down the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Baseball World Series championship with a victory tonight over the defending champion Southern California Trojans.

The two teams are the only ones remaining from eight which came here for the double elimination tournament to decide the national title holder.

If Southern California wins tonight, the two teams would meet Friday night to determine the championship.

The Sun Devils won their fourth game in the 26th annual playoffs Wednesday night 1-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Craig Swan, who picked up his 16th victory in 17 games as he outdueled, but just barely, Temple's Ed Molush.

Swan, a strong right-hander who was drafted last week by the New York Mets, struck out 12 and did not issue a walk as he moved his team into the favored position in the series.

Southern California advanced into the championship round with a 10-inning 4-3 triumph over Texas.

The only run in the Arizona State-Temple contest came in the top of the 1st inning when Bump Wills walked, stole second, moved to third on a single by Ken Reed and scampered home on a force-out. Wills is the son of Los Angeles Dodger infielder Maury Wills.

Southern California took a 1-0 lead over Texas in the first inning but had to come from behind with single runs in the sixth and seventh innings after Texas scored three runs in the top of the sixth.

The winning run came on a double by Tim Steele and a single by Daryl Arenstein which ended the contest. It was the second time in the series that Arenstein knocked in the game-deciding run in an extra inning game. The first time was in an 11-inning battle with Connecticut.

Santa Clara Nine In Alaska Friday

SANTA CLARA (UPI)—The University of Santa Clara varsity baseball team begins an eight-day tour of Alaska Friday to play 10 games with Alaska teams.

Canadiens' Comeau Sold To Atlanta

MONTREAL (UPI)—Center Reynauld Comeau was sold Wednesday by the Montreal Canadiens to the expansion Atlanta Flames for cash and other considerations.

Comeau played last season for the Nova Scotia Voyageurs, who captured the Calder Cup in the American Hockey League.

New Hockey League Sees Hull Signing

WINNIPEG (UPI) — A spokesman for the Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association (WHA) said Wednesday contract arrangements with Chicago superstar Bobby Hull were "pretty well worked out" and the team "expects him to sign."

"There has been a meeting of the minds and details have been worked out," the spokesman said.

"I can't say flatly he is going to sign soon, but we expect him to sign. As long as he has not signed with Chicago, we feel our chances improve every day.

No details of the proposed contract were disclosed.

"Hull told (Jets president) Ben Hatskin in a conversation in Denver 10 or 12 days ago that if and when he comes to Winnipeg, he would be interested in looking around for a farm. But he didn't ask the Jets to buy one for him," the spokesman said.

Mecom Severs Ties With 'Undesirable'

At least, that's the policy Commissioner Pete Rozelle attempts to follow.

Rozelle, who forced Joe Namath to sell his interests in a New York bar three years ago because it was an alleged hangout for mobsters, Wednesday announced that New Orleans owner John Mecom was severing his connections with an investment program that was under question by the House Select Committee on Organized Crime.

Rozelle said he was endeavoring "to remove all possible suspicion of involvement with alleged undesirable persons."

Mecom was not actually charged with any wrongdoing but Rozelle wanted to make sure he had no possible connections with "alleged undesirable persons".

The commissioner was referring to comments made to the committee in Washington on May 31 by Aaron Kohn, director of the New Orleans Crime Commission.

Kohn cited two real estate transactions in which Mecom was involved with alleged undesirables. Rozelle said a U.S. Senator, whom Rozelle refused to identify, also told the commissioner, "our investigations show participation by Mr. Mecom in both the real estate transactions cited by Mr. Kohn but no underworld association of Mr. Mecom in these matters."

According to Rozelle, Mecom was involved in two separate transactions, one for $12,000, the other for $26,000. The deals were simple real estate transactions, one involving four persons, the other six.

The inside story of the world's first Steel-Belted Radial.

No one makes steel-belted radial tires like Michelin. Partly because Michelin invented them and has more experience in radial tire making than any of the newcomers. Mostly because Michelin makes its radials differently. With craftsmanship that starts with Michelin's own materials and finishes with meticulous inspection of each tire. The kind of craftsmanship that pays off in performance, not promises. Twice the mileage of a conventional tire. Tread-on-the-road control for easy, safe handling. The safety of Michelin's own steel-belted radial construction. Michelins are out-performers . . . Michelin builds them that way.

The Outperformer
MICHELIN

A Message on Radial Ply Tires from Pat McAlanan.

Everyone is out with a radial ply tire. The reason is Michelin X Radial has been so successful, and everyone is trying to jump on the bandwagon. Some of these new Radials are good, some are not so good, and some are dog gone bad.

If you notice in Radial Tire ads - everyone is comparing themselves to Michelin.

Uniroyal says there are only 2 truly good steel belted radials: Michelin and Uniroyal.

Goodrich says they are the first American Radial as good as Michelin.

Pirelli says their tire is at least as good as Michelin.

Now what all these ads are saying is - WE KNOW MICHELIN IS THE BEST - WE'RE TRYING TO MAKE OURS AS GOOD.

There is a lot more to mounting radials than just slapping them on the wheels. There is a proper tire for a wheel, there is a proper air pressure, there is a precise way they have to be mounted and balanced. The air pressure and sizing has got to be right for the car.

If radials are not mounted properly, and I see so many that are not, they can become dangerous.

So why not come to the experts, who have been selling radials for 8 years. We handle the best lines.

"Car and Driver" in their June issue tested Continental - Dunlop - Firestone - General - Goodyear - Goodrich - Michelin - Pirelli - Semperit, under the most extreme stopping and turning conditions they could; they were trying to see if any of these stock radials could pass the tough racing requirements - The 2 Tires that ranked one and two - SEMPERIT & MICHELIN, the only 2 that passed all facets of the grueling test with flying colors.

Just so happens Cains carries both lines exclusively in Marin County. Told you we know what we're doing.

at Cain's you will pay less for a Michelin X or Semperit R Radial than you'll pay for an inferior - Goodyear, Firestone, Goodrich, Uniroyal.

Homeowners Win Preserve Hearing

San Rafael Planning Commission members have set a special hearing for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday on a moratorium to allow Mont Marin and Twelveoak Hill homeowners additional time to form an assessment district to preserve the balance of the Pimental Ranch as open space.

The planning commission meeting will be followed at 8 p.m. by a city council meeting and hearing on extension of the 90-day development moratorium, Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner's office said yesterday.

The commission at its regular meeting Tuesday also heard a detailed presentation from People for Parks and Open Space, urging support for a regional park district. Commissioners, while generally favoring the idea, called for assurances that the city would continue to have a voice in open space policy, and asked for more time to study the district formation proposal

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

SAN PABLO AVENUE — Continued to June 27 the hearing on a detailed development plan calling for 292 townhouse and apartments on portions of the 54-acre property of the McCarthy Co., of Northern California southeast of the Marin County Civic Center. Objections to the plan were raised by Las Gallinas Valley and Terra Linda Valley property owners' groups.

SMITH RANCH — Approved plans to excavate 1.4 million cubic yards from a low ridge north of Smith Ranch Road, for fill for the future Contempo Mobile Home Park on lower portion of the property. Commissioners pointed out that the ridge is shown as open space in the tentative countywide general plan, and said they did not endorse development of the leveled ridgeline.

SEMINARY — Recommended the city council rezone a portion of the St. Peter Chanel Marist Fathers seminary at Belle Avenue and Elm Street from "U" to single family residential with a 10,000 square foot minimum, and that part of the parcel be granted a use permit for church congregational use, in place of the lodge hall originally requested. Landscaping for the adjoining Marin Civic Bllet center also were approved.

NURSERY SCHOOL — Overruled staff recommendations for denial, and increased the number of children allowed at the Alouette Nursery School, 408 Belle Aenue, from 20 to 40.

GASOLINE PUMP — Denied application for a self-service gasoline pump at the market at 141 Bellam Boulevard owned by P. L. Friendshuh.

PARKING — Denied variance and architectural approval sought by owners Dr. Gar C. May and Torkan A. May for two additional parking spaces in the front setback of a six-unit apartment at 19-25 Valencia Street. Staff reported that two of the units were built without city permission.

NORTHGATE EAST — Continued to July 11, hearing on contractor Arthur R. Nicholaisen's revised plans for a multistory office building, convention center and restaurant on the hillside north of the Marin Civic Center. The builder asked more time to complete plans.

CHURCH — Granted the First Presbyterian Church of San Rfael use and variance permits to have its cross exceed the normal 50-foot height limit for structures in the area, and to use its historic stained glass windows preserved when the old bluestone sanctuary had to be demolished for safety reasons.

BUS CENTER — Continued, pending changes in landscaping plans, the use permit for Marin Transit Systems to use property at 502 Irwin Street for a bus garage, shop and offices.

APARTMENTS — Granted use permits for an 88-unit apartment project on the Kenneth Levy property, 100 Marin Center Drive, but refused architectural approval when staff objected to plans for blue roofing resembling the nearby Marin Civic Center.

$4 Hike In Food Stamp Books Set

In some cases, the increase may mean households will have to pay more for stamps, although the added cost will not exceed the allotment hike.

At present, a family of four with an adjusted net income of $280 per month pays $74 for $108 in stamps. After July 1, the family will pay $77 for $112 worth of stamps.

Another regulation will enable a household to purchase portions of a monthly stamp allotment.

No cost estimate of the increase in Marin or Southern Sonoma was given by Social Service officials.

Drownings Spur Plea For Arrest Powers

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Seven drownings in 10 days forced Ray Hutton, the Volusia County director of beach safety, to ask Wednesday for arrest powers for his 100 lifeguards.

Hutton said he has asked the County Council to pass ordinances giving the lifeguards power to arrest young surfers and others who fail to heed their whistles along the 44 miles of Volusia sand dubbed "the world's most beautiful beach."

Environment Concern —Neglecting People

We may be neglecting people while striving to preserve their environment, Sister Mary Samuel, president of Dominican College, suggested yesterday at the annual luncheon of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Sister Samuel, speaking on the overlapping roles of college and community, told her audience of Marin business and governmental leaders: "Concern for the natural environment is not yet balanced by coming to grips with some equally ecological problems."

Ecology, she noted, involves the relationship of life forms to their environment. But "ecologists" tend to overlook the human role in concentrating on preserving nature.

"We are doing a better job of preserving our natural environment than we are of preserving relations between people, and between people and their environment," she suggested.

Declaring this represents a "challenge of the moment" to which we must rise "or the moment will be past," the Catholic educator posed a series of questions that need solving: How preserve open space and make it accessible? How provide for population yet prevent urban sprawl? How attract industry yet keep the air clean?

More central, she said, is the question of how to provide an environment that meets the needs of all people. And in this, she suggested, planning and zoning practices may be failing.

For instance, she pointed out that members of several races and many nationalities "live in our neighborhood — in our residence halls at Dominican College. But could they, if they wanted to, continue to live in the neighborhood after they leave the college?"

Many could not, she suggested, simply because "only the more-or-less affluent middle-aged middle class" can afford homes in Marin. And this, she continued, tends to destroy neighborhoods as such.

New officers of the chamber, elected by the board of directors, were announced at the meeting at Sabella's in Mill Valley.

H. C. Jackson of Jackson Furniture Co., San Rafael, replaces Jack Craemer of the Independent-Journal as president.

B. A. Farlatti of Tiburon was named first vice president; Edward D. McGuire of Novato, second vice president; Albert Bianchi of San Rafael, secretary, and Donald W. Chapman Jr. of Corte Madera, treasurer.

New members of the board of directors are Esther Dearth, Fred F. Enemark. H. G. Marchant, Edward M. Mills, Beverley A. Sill, Joe Stewart Jr., Walter F. Freitas, and William A. Henderson.

'A NEED FOR NATURAL GOODNESS'

Two Women Just Doing Own Thing

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Food is a way of communicating — a kind of love — according to two Marin women, Carrie Krupp of Mill Valley and Susan Shippey of Tiburon. Their philosophy has spurred a food enterprise they started two months ago.

"We were looking for adventure and a way of making some money without going through the heavy structural trip of business from 9 to 5," Carrie said, "when one day Susan exclaimed, 'I've got it —a different kind of catering business!' "

Susan added, "We got excited about food because it is served on social occasions, and we like being around people, but we didn't have in mind the kind of catering that means greasy food with serving done in stark white coats."

Said Carrie, "We feel the whole catering business is lacking in people-to-people warmth and food with really good homemade taste. Our society has gone so far in packaging of food and taking out everything good that there is a need for natural goodness."

WITHOUT ANY special cooking training, Carrie took some health and nutrition courses that she believes have been helpful.

Both young women admit, however, that the opportunity the business offers to be with people is as important as the desire to provide a needed service. Their first project was an office luncheon, the second an informal reception following an outdoor wedding.

"We were like friends being there to help with the reception, and we were invited to mingle with people and dance just like other guests, and it was lots of fun," Carrie said.

Carrie, 31, and Susan, 26, have many things in common besides their joint enterprise, and they are inclined to believe astrology has something to do with it.

Sharing the same birthday on May 3, a Taurus sign, they even look alike with their long, dark, straight hair, deep tan, build and style of clothes.

"My son says we look exactly alike in the dark," Carrie said with a laugh.

Both hold degrees as art majors, Carrie from the University of Massachusetts, and Susan from California State University, San Jose, where she also obtained the teaching credentials that make possible her present employment as a substitute teacher in Marin schools.

Most unusually, they are both in the process of dissolving their marriages and are, they say, "newly liberated women."

Carrie is the mother of an 8-year-old son, Kerry, and 3-year-old daughter Kimberly, while Susan has no children.

They do not at present plan to make their new venture their sole means of earning a living.

SAID SUSAN, "The venture is a process of our coming into our own as women with our own potentials without having to get into what society sets up as business structure for women that puts them in submissive or inferior roles. I'm not a radical, but if I am put in a submissive role, that is not good.

"I think there are definite differences between the sexes and their approach to things, but there is no need for women to be in an inferior position. You've got to find what you can have control of."

So far their main specialties are homemade bread, cakes and cookies, all of which they say they may consider selling. But they hope to use the bread in sandwiches they would take around to business areas where people don't want to or can't leave the office.

"They would be sandwiches with yummy kinds of filling that are not available commercially," Carrie said.

They also are considering catering lunches or helping with service for clubs, especially women's clubs, where nowadays women seem to be increasingly unwilling or too busy to do the work themselves.

Carrie and Susan say they have friends they could call on to help them with really big events, and Carrie has a camper that she has used for serving at outdoor occasions.

With their training in art — Carrie is especially interested in crafts; Susan does collages, stitchery, painting and sculpture — they may even consider doing the decorating for special occasions as well as providing and serving food.

HOME BAKED bread is the specialty in a newenterprise started by Mrs. Carrie Krupp and Mrs. Susan Shippey. Mrs. Krupp knocks on a just-out-of-the-oven loaf to see if it has the hollow sound that indicates it is thoroughly baked, while Mrs. Shippey turns out a mushroom-shaped loaf baked in a coffee can.

ROUND TABLE SERIES

Sally Stanford On Harassment, Taxes, Politicians And Sausalito

By JOAN LISETOR

"You've got a problem when the kids fly the nest and the guy you're married to has fled. You can't claim Head of Household," said Sausalito Councilman Sally Stanford, "unless you can find yourself another man."

She paused to look around the room, her sharp eyes scanning the audience.

"Hey, are all you guys single?" she asked.

An assortment of affirmative answers came from scattered areas around the room at the Edgewater Inn in Corte Madera last night.

While Sally Stanford was the right speaker for the last in a series of round table discussions sponsored by the Singles Organization of the Bay Area, Marin Chapter, the wrong ingredient was the topic. "Singles Taxation" was a bit dry for the witty restaurant owner and former madam.

Miss Stanford resumed her talk after assessing the men in the room and announced, "Every man's a prospect, you know."

BACK ON the subject of taxes, she said, "You got to keep plugging and be persistent, that's how I won the election in Sausalito. The Independent-Journal said I ran six times, but I think it was seven."

To end the discrimination she claimed is practiced against single persons, Miss Stanford suggested writing congressmen and the President and looking into a singles group in Fresno which has refused to pay taxes, as an example.

"You can't take anything off unless you have a child or get married," she said. "It almost makes getting married worth it."

People as a unit are mightier than an army, she said.

Elaine Guthrie of Ross, a former California tax appraiser, rose from the audience and offered the suggestion that the approximately 300 persons in the audience band together and write congressional and state assembly candidates such as Roger Boas, Rep. William S. Mailliard, Assemblyman William Bagley and State Sen. Peter H. Behr, urging passage of legislation equating taxes for single and married persons. Mrs. Guthrie drafted a petition and passed it among the audience.

"THOSE POLITICIANS," Miss Stanford said. "Remember, they promise anything to get elected, then you can't find them."

She said Sausalito used to run on a budget of $150,000 and now it's close to $2 million and taxes would go down if government costs, such as $19,000 a year for a city attorney, were cut.

Believing that the session was dragging, Dorothy Brand, one of the series organizers, suggested Miss Stanford discuss her experiences in getting elected.

She told the story of how, on the night she opened her restaurant in Sausalito 25 years ago, the city had all the curbs around her business painted red and put up "no parking" signs.

Following years of harassment by police, she said, Sausalito attorney Hugh Lawrence, then a member of the city planning commission, insisted she cut her new patio back 10 feet.

"I TOLD Lawrence I wasn't going to cut it back one inch," she said.

She eventually won her case, but did not forget "that bird" (Lawrence) when he decided to run for the Sausalito City Council.

"I filed (to run for a seat on the city council) just to knock him off, and I jid. I came in before him, but we both lost."

Every time an election came up after that she ran, Miss Stanford said, and then this year with just seven signs and 1,000 automobile bumper strips she entered the race.

"When I run I never get invited to coffees, but the (Sausalito) Women's Club did invite me to their candidates night," she said.

"Four years ago when I ran, Robin Sweeney, she's the mayor now, said she wouldn't serve with me if I were elected. This year she needed my vote to be mayor, and I said 'Let her do it. It's just a bunch of paper work.' If I ran my business like they run the city (Sausalito), I'd be out."

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

The Age Gap Does Indeed Place A Barrier On The 'Status' Life

DEAR RAP:

Several of my good friends live in a nearby town, which has the reputation of being "lower class."

Naturally my parents put a label on this town and whenever I mention it they think of "bad" or "trouble." Because my friends come from there, they're automatically the same though they don't even smoke and would never go for dope.

I'm 15 and pick my friends carefully. These kids are really great, but my folks won't give them a chance to prove it. They say if I went down to that town I'd be labeled trash, too.

Why do people judge you by where you live, not what you are? — LABEL HATER

DEAR L.H.:

. . . Because your parents' generation was brought up on "labels" — the rich — "snobs"; the middle class — "dull"; the poor — "shiftless."

How do you change them? It's not easy. Our generation is beginning to see the person behind the label but don't expect "worrying parents" to switch overnight!

Maybe you could start a "world problems" discussion at the dinner table and narrow it down. Like how can world disputes be settled if we can't communicate one country to another . . . one race to another . . . one town to another . . . one human to another. And then ask permission to have your friends over for the evening. — SUE

DEAR L.:

We're all guilty of "labeling" — the young as well as the older. You kids also fence yourselves and others off in tight little corrals called "straights," "the popular crowd," "losers," "dopers," and it's pretty hard to break out, right?

So use a little empathy and understand that your parents feel uneasy when you want to jump the fence. If they aren't complete snobs, they'll accept your friends in their home and learn to like them as people. But they may not allow you to go into what they consider a dangerous area. Not until you can convince them it isn't really "dangerous." — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My mother is a "What will people think?" freak. The doctor prescribed birth control pills for me (I'm 15) to regulate my periods. No other reason — I don't even have a steady boyfriend and everybody knows it — except some of Mom's gossipy friends.

Well, I keep the pills on the kitchen windowsill in plain sight so I'll remember them. They're in the flowered plastic holder that most everybody can recognize, if they know about B.C. pills.

Mom keeps putting them back in the cupboard, 'cuz she doesn't want her friends to know I take the Pill. Says if she starts explaining, she only makes it that much worse. So I keep forgetting and sometimes she forgets to remind me and it's a real hassle over nothing. Would you please tell my mother, Sue, there isn't anything to be ashamed of? — TERRY JEAN

DEAR TERRY:

Mothers are funny. Yours wouldn't believe me, no matter how much I said it. Here's a suggestion for drug companies: Why not call "regulators" by a different name? It is kinda embarrassing for the parents of a young teenager to say, "Yes, our daughter's on the pill." — SUE

DEAR TERRY'S MOTHER:

Most women know that birth control pills are prescribed for menstrual problems, too. If your friends don't — tell 'em! And if you're still worried — make a ruffled slip-cover for your daughter's pill case. — HELEN

JOAN BLONDELL
Word 'faded' scares some

NEW FALL SERIES

Joan Blondell Not Afraid Of Changes

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There comes a time in the life of every actress when she is handed a script in which her role is described as a faded female of one sort or other.

The word "faded" scares them away — to eventual obscurity, bad marriages, booze, pills or worse.

Joan Blondell was offered such a role in "The Blue Veil" with Natalie Wood playing her daughter in 1951. She won an Oscar nomination for her performance as a faded night club singer.

"WHEN I saw the word it turned me off," Joan said, preparing for her new television series, "Banyon." It stucg especially because Joan saw herself as still "fairly pretty."

Then she added, "But I could see the 'faded' just around the corner. I knew my cute little glamor girl days were over. I quickly went into character roles and beat them to the punch."

Since then Joan, her hair still blonde, her eyes blue and round, has prospered as a character actress, seldom out of work.

In all, she's appeared in 91 movies, scores of television shows and in the theater. Her contemporaries who shied away from "faded" are fortunate if their names are remembered.

"NOBODY STAYS young forever," Joan said. "And I refuse to have a face lift. I'm acquainted withthe face I have. I like it.

"When I worked in my first television series, 'Here Comes the Brides,' I played house mother to a bunch of pretty girls. In 'Banyon' I'm the head of a model agency. In my next series I'll probably run a boarding house for beautiful girls.

"Once you get to a certain age you play pretty much the same roles."

Appearing in scenes with gorgeous young things doesn't annoy Joan. She says, "I like to be surrounded by attractive young faces. It doesn't bother me a bit."

Don't underestimate the adjustments made by Joan Blondell. She was once married to Dick Powell and Mike Todd. As a Warner Bros. contractee Joan starred in nine movies with James Cagney, and almost as many with Humphrey Bogart. She worked with Harlow, Edward G. Robinson, Leslie Howard, Crosby, John Wayne, Gable and the best of the rest.

"I DON'T know what the secret to longevity as an actress is," Joan said thoughtfully. "It's more than talent or beauty. Maybe it's the audience seeing itself in you.

"I reminded secretaries, waitresses, reporters, chorus girls and now fading anybodies that a girl who didn't get the best of everything could eventually reach some of the goals in life."

Joan continues to prove it to herself. She has completed her first novel, "Center Door Fancy," due out next fall.

Joan Blondell may play faded females on the screen, but she hasn't faded in the least as an appealing lady off-screen.

Educational Vocabulary Is Complete

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

We complete our glossary of current educational vocabulary with four terms: meaningful, needs assessment, relevant and worthwhile.

High-school attendance records show that fewer than 50 per cent of the students are present on any school day. Reason given: High School isn't "meaningful."

You meet a 16-year-old working at the local gas station. You ask him why he dropped out of school the first month of his senior year. He answers, "It just didn't have any meaning."

The word "meaningful" describes a situation in which the learner sees connection between what he must know and what he is being asked to learn.

Many of you may have already been part of a needs assessment.

IT IS GENERALLY the first step when a school system wants to change direction or to try some new ideas.

An inner city area, suffering from high absenteeism, vandalism, high teacher turnover, and poor school spirit, may institute a needs assessment to determine where the schools are failing, or to see why the schools aren't being "meaningful."

Some communities which have undergone self-study are impatient for the next step to be taken.

If the problem is high absenteeism, for example, then the need is to make school more meaningful. But saying that is not enough. Some program should be worked out to meet the need — to meet it specifically and especially the children who have been staying out of school.

THE WORD "relevant" is similar to meaningful, but even harder to define.

Teachers talk about trying to make traditional school subjects (such as the classics) relevant for today's jet set.

This places the burden on the teacher to make some connection between what Jonathan Swift said about Gulliver and what the French press said about de Gaulle.

The argument is that if the teacher doesn't make the subject matter relevant (that is, doesn't connect the material with what's vital to the student), then little learning takes place.

LIKE MEANINGFUL and relevant, the word "worthwhile" refers to what should be happening in school to make learning purposeful.

Over the past 30 years, schools around the world have played down learning specific skills in favor of more theoretical learning, considered essential for the student preparing for a professional career.

It was argued that one year of school was to lead logically (academically) to the next year — that primary school should prepare for secondary school, secondary school for college, and college for graduate school.

Today's counterargument is that this kind of schooling is not worthwhile — not even for the majority of students. In developed as well as developing countries, schooling should lead to employment, to a "worthwhile" future.

Returns In Fall

The simple little shirtdress is returning for fall wear, according to American sportswear designers. They are in navy, brown, beige and maroon solids and plaids, reports Women's Wear Daily. Small inverted pleats and kick pleats accent some styles.

Skewer Appetizer

Skinless frankfurter pieces and pineapple chunks on a skewer are a good appetizer while the coals are getting hot for the main dish. Brush the kabobs with butter or barbecue sauce.

What a Menu Of The 1980s May Contain

MENLO PARK (UPI) — A scientist predicts that by the 1980s many Americans will be eating "hamburgers" made from peanut protein.

And how about some boneless "chicken" made from cottonseed protein?

The menu of the future is envisioned by Dr. Herbert Stone, director of Stanford Research Institute's Food Science Department.

"A few years ago, high protein meat substitutes made from low-cost plant sources retained an aftertaste of the original plant flavor," he said.

"Now their taste, as well as their texture, can be made virtually indistinguishable from that of meat."

Stone forecasts that the consumption of protein concentrates in the United States will grow from about 500 million pounds today to 5 billion by 1985.

New Tote Bag

A new tote bag can be used for carrying sporting gear or as an overnight bag. Made of a nylon called Iron Velvet (Guilford Mills) it fastens with just Velcro tape. When opened there are separate compartments for such sundries as golf balls, gloves or playing cards.

THESE EXAMPLES of costume jewelry, by Norma Sporn of Los Angeles, are not baubles and bangles. Instead, they are made of cotter pins, washers, pulleys and other assorted hardware.

New Thing: Hardware As Jewelry

By FELICE PARAMORE

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LOS ANGELES — Gears, gaskets, grommets, pulleys, rivets, spacers and washers are items usually associated with the machine shop and plumbing trades. Right?

Not necessarily, says art teacher and jewelry designer Norma Sporn of Los Angeles. She recognized an aesthetic potential in the simple design and symmetry of their basic forms. And she has designed a line of jewelry utilizing these hardware items in striking combinations.

Her talent as a designer and the excellence of her workmanship set apart Miss Sporn's compositions from the amateur craftsmen who use "found" objects to create junk jewelry.

Being imaginative and enterprising is first nature to Miss Sporn, an art teacher at Florence Nightingale Junior High School in Los Angeles.

"IT'S A NECESSITY," she explained. "Because of a perennially limited budget, art teachers have to invent, improvise and conjure up untried materials and methods for their projects."

Miss Sporn has been recognized for her use of unorthodox art materials in the classroom and for effective results achieved by her pupils in response to this challenge.

A graduate of the art department of the University of California at Los Angeles who majored in costume and interior design, Miss Sporn has long been fascinated with the design and materials of primitive and ethnic jewelry. She has acquired a large collection gathered during frequent travels overseas.

In her quest she has gone into remote villages, exotic bazaars and dark alleys to obtain unusual specimens.

"The entire venture came about in a totally unplanned way," she said.

"It happened one day after school as I was searching for an ethnic piece of jewelry in a foreign neighborhood and I wandered by chance into a surplus hardware store.

"I'd never seen anything like it before. I was like a child under a Christmas tree, first transfixed, then running from one overflowing bin and barrel to another.

"I became totally entranced with the abundance of beautiful shapes and colors. But outstanding to me was the similarity these 20th-century items had in common with forms found in much ethnic and antique jewelry.

"For example, disks, gaskets, washers, and spacers closely resembled objects I had seen used in the stylized jewelry of many African tribes.

"ONE PARTICULAR brass pulley, anachronistic as it sounds, reminded me of an Etruscan bead. And as I examined it I saw the possibility of combining it with other elements and transforming it into a necklace. So, for fun, I took some home."

She did not foresee as she experimented with the pulleys that she was not only shaping a necklace but a new career.

The first time she wore the necklace it met with instant approval. All her friends wanted one.

And from that beginning, it evolved into a commercial venture.

"Since then, I've introduced a variety of other materials in combination with the hardware findings," she explained. "Plastic, wood, glass, bright beads, pearls, and shells for lightness and variation."

Her compositions include chokers, necklaces, and earrings. The pieces are not recognizable as hardware items except under close scrutiny, invariably followed by a gasp of surprise.

ONE PARTICULARLY popular item is an earring composed of a brass three-way fishing tackle swivel combined with steel washers. This becomes a lively spinning mobile when worn.

Another item, more sedate, is fashioned of gunmetal-color washers with jet bead drops and is reminiscent of the Victorian era.

One four-strand necklace made entirely of brass eyelets resembles a chain of nuggets, while a choker of slender cylinders, cotter pins and grommets looks not unlike an Egyptian or Assyrian artifact.

"Even with reorders I try to vary each piece a little," she said.

Because of her teaching, Miss Sporn's designing takes place after school hours.

"It's a pleasant kind of moonlighting," she said. "It sparks me creatively, which helps my teaching."

Many Salamis To Choose From

Salamis differ from each other in the combination of meats, spice level, salting, curing and shape, Most salami is pork and beef. Soft salami, like kosher varieties, is air dried for a short time or not at all after cooking.

Hard salami, like Italian Genoa, is seasoned with garlic and perhaps wine. Hard salamis are air dried for longer periods and are more chewy than the soft varieties.

Why Men Want Mistresses

Few men want mistresses to try and regain their youth. More often they want to enjoy again the magic of an exciting personal relationship — offsetting the stern realities of the business world. A man turns to another woman to satisfy a craving — to feel that a woman cares about what he wants . . . they way his wife used to.

Over a period of time, the tendency is for a man and wife to drift apart. He becomes involved in his work and she becomes unresponding when he talks about his business experiences. In time, she takes little care to look her best for him. She seldom makes herself up or fixes her hair. And she puts on weight. While the pace of business keeps him active and young thinking, she begins feeling older and less energetic.

Perhaps the most revealing question a woman can ask herself is, "Would my husband marry me again today?" As we've all seen, too often a woman doesn't start losing weight and taking pride in her appearance until another woman has already come along.

On the other hand, a woman who takes pride in her appearance, who keeps herself young looking and energetic is a constant source of pride to her husband. He loves nothing more than taking her out and showing her off. He takes her on picnics or camping just to be with her. Their moments together are his most treasured.

With today's emphasis on staying active and youthful in appearance, Marge Johnson, the glamorous manager of San Rafael Golden Venus Figure and Health Salon, has noted a sharp increase in women seeking professional advice on how to stay young.

"Suddenly, it's very important to women how they look and feel. They're amazed at how fast we can help them," Marge said. She pointed out that each woman has a special need and in order to achieve maximum results, must receive a program tailored to their own figure and condition, with their own instructor.

"Every woman has a natural beauty that makes her alluring, exciting and more youthful. With just a little co-operation, we can bring it out," Marge commented.

Why not call Marge today at 479-5454 and she'll explain how you can get a trial membership for as little as $2.00.

Finally! A Quiet Garbage Truck

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — The familiar strident noise of refuse collection equipment, a contributor to urban noise pollution, may be banished in the near future by a revolutionary "quiet" refuse truck.

"It's the biggest technological advance in refuse collection in 30 years — since the introduction of hydraulic compaction," Moscone said at a demonstration of the new truck — product of a Golden Gate Disposal and Gar Wood joint effort.

Focus of the demonstration was Golden Gate Disposal's truck No. 46 — a Gar Wood 700 "Load Packer" — which was put through a normal operating cycle of loading, compressing and stowing a typical collection of refuse.

Missing from the demonstration, however, was the noise traditionally associated with daily removal of more than 1,800 tons of garbage from the city.

Utilizing a new pump system to produce hydraulic pressures needed to actuate the truck's operating cycles, the prototype unit generated a noise level averaging from 60 to 65 decibels. Today's standard truck averages 80 to 85 decibels and as high as 90 when in full opeation. An automobile produces a decibel reading of 70 to 75 when operating on a city street.

Moscone emphasized that conversion of Golden Gate Disposal's 60-truck fleet "lies somewhat in the future" because the demonstrator unit is a pilot model — the only one os its kind in the world — and still is undergoing tests.

Good News Pushes Prices Up In Market Early Hours

NEW YORK (UPI) —Investors pushed prices higher during the first two hours today amid a favoable news background. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was moderately active.

Advances led declines, 770 to 453, among the 1,593 issues crossing the tape. The two-hour turnover amounted to 7,580,000 shares.

Analysts noted industrial-production and personal income increased in May, although not as much as the previous month. Also, investors apparently were encouraged by some diplomatic moves which they believed may lead to peace in Vietnam.

Wheelabrato-Frye was the most active issue, up 1-4 at 10 1-4 on 114,400 shares. Curtiss-Wright was second, off 5-8 at 45 5-8. Some analysts said the great hope for the Wankel engine, for which Curtiss-Wright has North American rights, may not be justified at this time.

International Telephone and Telegraph was third most active, off 5-8 at 53 3-4 on 65,300 shares.

Prices were slightly higher in moderatetrading on the American Stock Exchange. Sargent Industries was the most active issue, up 1/8 at 4 1/4 on 101,700 shares.

On the NYSE, Tropicana was one of the stronger issues, up 1 1-2; after reporting higher third quarter earnings.

Airlines continued mixed. Delta fell 2 5-8, KLM Royal Dutch 1 3-8 , and Continental Airlines 7- . American Airlines advanced 3-4.

Motors, chemicals and oils were mixed. General Motors gained 1 1-4, Ford 3-8. Dow Chemical added 1 3-8. Natomas lost 1 1-4, Superior Oil 1. Atlantic Richfield gained 3-4. The company has finished drilling an offshore Indonesian well.

Steel and rails were mixed. Gulf, Mobile and Ohio was off 1 1-4.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Virginia Electric: Stability, Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I started buying Virginia Electric & Power (NYSE) at $23 per share. I am disappointed in the performance. The dividend has not been increased for two years. I would greatly appreciate your advice on the 400 shares I hold. — N.W.

A. While Virginia Electric has not increased its dividend on a per share basis, the company's total common stock dividend obligation jumped $4.5 million in 1971 as a result of an increase in the number of shares outstanding. It was this factor — the four-million share offering — which also reduced the year-to-year earnings comparison in 1971. However, in the March quarter of the current year, a 3.3 per cent gain in per share profit on an 11.7 per cent gain in sales was reported.

Some rate relief has been granted this utility by the power commissions of North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia. A request to set aside $22.5 million in temporary rate increases has been filed with the Virginia supreme court.

A $2 billion construction program, which includes a conventional and two nuclear power plants, will increase generating capacity 70 per cent to 10.1 million kilowatts by 1975. Capital requirements will necessitate both equity and debt financing further adding to Virginia's already substantial interest and dividend burden.

Shares are attractive only for income investors. Some liberalization of the dividend, which yields a generous 6.3 per cent, is possible later in the year.

56 Cents A share

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Mortgage Trust of America has reported earnings of $1,925,000, or 56 cents per share, during its second quarter of its 1972 fiscal year, compared to earnings of $1,771,000 or 54 cents per share, during its first quarter.

Q. How are over-the-counter purchases handled? — B.A.

A. OTC purchases are made just like any other, as far as you personally are concerned. They are, however, handled differently by your broker, who acquires stock by negotiation rather than by auction on the floor of an exchange, as is the case with listed stocks.

If your investment house acts as a broker, it will buy shares for your account and bill you as agent, charging about the same commission as you would have to pay for a listed stock. If it acts as a dealer, it will bill you as principal at a net price which includes normal markup.

Basso Simon Estes' Credo Is Simple—Likes To Sing

By LOUIS SNYDER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Simon Estes enjoys his work.

"It's wonderful," he said beaming across the luncheon table, "and I'm grateful to my creator for it. I love to travel and to meet and work with people, and to keep striving for perfection in my singing . . . "

The six-foot tall, athlete-slim, 34-year-old black basso was pausing between engagements for a few unaccustomed days of relaxation. His spontaneous exclamation was as much a credo as a rallying cry to be up and away again. For in the next three months he would be touching three continents before settling down to do new roles in "Lucia," "L'Africaine," and "The Visit of the Old Lady" with the San Francisco Opera in September. Last summer Estes was a guest artist on the Marin Music Chest series.

Estes's prospects for seeing the world, and for it to come to know him, were not always so clear. Born in coal-mining Centerville, Iowa, he grew up in humble circumstances as one of five children in a hardworking, religion-oriented family. Nothing was easy for anyone in the course of everyday living, but there was a native devotion to music, a belief (still extant) that wisdom and understanding equal love, and a reliance on the Bible for answers to many needs as well as many questions.

SIMON ESTES
San Francisco in fall

"It's a great book," said Estes, "I'm reading it again. It goes along with me everywhere as part of my luggage. Did you know that if you read three chapters each day and five on Sunday, you will finish it in a year?"

In Iowa, as he progressed from boy soprano to tenor in church choir and school chorus, Simon was also becoming a three-letter man in high-school sports. And he enhanced his musical status by representing his school in a statewide competition singing "On Top of Old Smokey."

But by the time he was ready to enter Centerville Junior College, his airy tenor had gone down, down, down, and if he had ever seriously considered a musical career, he changed his mind — he would become a doctor.

Eight years of study followed at the University of Iowa, mostly self-financed by a variety of pre-and post-class jobs. First the emphasis was premedical, then a switch to theology and social psychology. And on the side, along with everything else, he gravitated inevitably to a university choral group of 24, of which he became the first black member and eventually its soloist.

The descent to bass-baritone ("late, in my case," he says) proved to have a great influence on his future. Charles Kellis, who taught voice at the university, heard him and immediately was deeply impressed with his potential. They worked together increasingly and in 1963 Kellis arranged for his pupil to audition at the Juilliard School in New York, where he was accepted at once as a member of the opera theater.

Funds were scraped together to send Simon to New York — a campus concert yielded $267 (the Kellis lessons had been given without charge) — and he was off on a journey destined to take him around the globe.

"I was fortunate to have found such a teacher," Mr. Estes declared. "He has been the only one, and we still work together whenever we're within meeting distance."

New in New York, Simon heard his first "Rigoletto" at the old Met, washed dishes and sang at weddings to make ends meet, studied to build his technique, and learned to pace himself through a grueling regimen that was divided between musical studies and keeping himself alive. He also made friends among his fellow students, all headed for the same goal — success on the operatic stage.

After one year at Juilliard, one friend had gone to Germany, and wrote Simon a glowing account of the opportunities for gaining experience there in smaller opera houses. Although some of his school advisers were against it, Simon decided — with the help of the Martha Baird Rockefeller Foundation, the New York Community Trust, and friends at the NAACP — to take another decisive step forward. A giant step across the Atlantic.

As a result, things happened unbelievably fast: a fortuitous audition at a major house, the West Berlin Opera, a hurry-up debut there as Ramfis in "Aida" (learned in 13 days for the occasion), and a subsequent guest contract with the company for appearances in Berlin and in Rome were the next events in this amazing saga.

"I hardly had time to catch my breath," Estes recalled. "I didn't speak the language when I came to Berlin, but everyone was very helpful, and I discovered I could retain words and sounds as I hear them. It reminded me of my course in behavioral psychology back at the university.

"I would always study by relating facts to circumstances, but I'd never get more than a C on my exams. Ond day the professor said: 'Estes, you know this subject well enough to make an A on exams, but you only manage C's. Why don't you concentrate on the facts next time?'

" 'All right,' I said, 'I will.' And I did — learning by rote, and made on A.

"The professor was pleased, but then I went back to my old ways of learning (and my old C,) but it was the only way that made sense to me, and it certainly has been of help in my career."

As a result, he is able to add to his large opera, oratorio, and recital repertory an increasing number of new and challenging roles and songs. "People talk to you and ask questions, on planes and trains," he said, "but when they see that you're concentrating, they leave you alone. And it's possible to accomplish a great deal this way."

In Germany, there was one person who understood his method very well. "Frau Herta Klust, an older lady, was a coach at the Deutische Opera for years and an accompanist for singers like Fischer-Dieskau. She was very patient and understanding, and I learned much from her. One night she was playing for my concert at Amerika Haus in Berlin, when all the lights went out, right in the middle of a Schubert song. Somehow I knew she'd go on and she did, without a slip, and we finished together, beautifully, just as the lights came on again."

To gain more experience away from the main stem, Mr. Estes joined the Lubeck Opera, but two major opportunities came to seek him out — in 1965 he was a prizewinner in the Munich Competition for singers, which encouraged him to go further afield the next year to enter the first vocal contest within the Tchaikovsky International Music Competition in Moscow.

It is now history that Estes emerged the silver-medal winner in Moscow, that he returned to the United States for civic receptions in New York and Centerville's Iowa neighbor, Des Moines; was tendered a White House reception by President Johnson; sang with the Boston Symphony under Erich Leinsdorf in a special televised Tanglewood concert, and with the New York Philharmonic under Leonard Bernstein. Interviews, pictures, Tv guest shots.

A hard act to follow? Estes has not gone the way of some contest winners — the slowly unwinding route to obscurity. The acclaim was fine, but it was not considered the ultimate end. So many new roles to try, so many people to work with, so many new places to go.

This summer, Estes is off to New Zealand, first stop for performances of Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with the Australian Broadcasting Orchestra, a return engagement resulting from a single recital in Perth last February. He'll go on to Australia for concerts and broadcasts with the orchestra and solo recitals until the end of July, when he'll be back in the U.S. for performances of Scott Joplin's "Treemonisha" at the Wolf Trap Festival, outside Washington, D.C., Aug. 8-14. Then to England for rehearsals with the Glyndebourne Festival company as the god Pan in its production of Cavalli's rare opera, "La Calisto," to be performed at the Festival of Flanders Aug. 28-30.

(Next year the Royal Flemish Opera wants him back for the Gounod Mephistopheles and Boris Godunov, and there is talk of Wotan and a Flying Dutchman elsewhere.)

In between Estes participates in a one-time historic event. On Aug. 24 he'll be back in Munich, chosen to be the bass soloist, with three other international singers, representative of the world's nationalities and races, in a performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, conducted by Wolfgang Sawallisch, which will preface the opening of the 1972 Olympic Games.

Estes confesses it will be a thrill to be there, not only as a hand-picked musical performer but as a former three-letter man from Centerville, Iowa.

San Francisco Symphony Will Open The Stern Grove Series

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

The San Francisco Symphony Orchestra will launch its 60th birthday celebration at Stern Grove Sunday as the annual San Francisco summer musical festival gets under way.

The symphony will feature two former San Francisco child prodigies — violinist Issac Stern and Leon Fleisher on the podium.

Stern, one of the most popular violinists in the United States today, will perform Bruch's Concert No. 1 in G Minor for Violin and Orchestra as well as Beethoven's Romance No. 1 in F Major.

Fleisher, whose pianistic talents have been curtailed since 1964 when he mysteriously lost the use of his right hand, turned to a new career — conducting — in 1970. Besides the two Stern specials, Fleisher will conduct the orchestra in Glinka's Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" and Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 in E Minor ("From the New World").

The orchestra's appearance is the first in the Stern series of 11 Sunday events (all at 2 p.m.).

In sharp contrast to Sunday's opener, the program on June 25 will feature a College Jazz Minifestival, featuring bands from California schools and the University of Nevada.

Rest Homes Proposals Not Aides'

The Independent-Journal erred Tuesday in reporting that 15 recommendations on ways to improve conditions in local convalescent homes were made by a group of nurse's aides who want the county to take over inspection of the homes.

Fourteen of the proposals were made by an ad hoc study committee on nursing homes established by the County Comprehensive Health Planning Council.

The aides have made one recommendation suggesting training and better working conditions for aides (a maximum patient load of eight per aide), adequate physical therapy, and recreation programs, proper sterilization procedures and investigation of drug abuse (tranquilizing of patients) in the homes.

Nowhere To Live For Big Family

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A mother who brought her 10 children to California to get away from drugs and liquor now can find no place to live.

Mrs. Rose Renteria and her children, age 2 through 18, were crowded into a $20-a-day motel they could not afford Wednesday and faced the possibility of either splitting up or living on the street.

Mrs. Renteria, who arrived in Sacramento in a borrowed station wagon from Jersey City, N.J. a month ago, said no one is able or willing to rent a house to a large, poor family.

Lucy Hovenden, a social worker who is trying to find a house for the family, said "landlords say they can't possibly accommodate that many children."

New Campaign Ploy: Cutting The Budget

Barbara Boxer, candidate for county supervisor, has come up with something new in campaigning for office: her own analysis of the proposed Marin County budget for next fiscal year, with specific proposals for changes.

Mrs. Boxer's proposals would, she says, reduce the budget by $1,380,230 and the county tax rate by about 20 cents.

If incumbent Second District Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. rises to the challenge, he will set out to prove he is a better budget-cutter than his election opponent. It shouldn't be very difficult.

SOME OF Mrs. Boxer's proposed cuts are easy to go along with, such as eliminating a proposed 5 per cent raise for the supervisors themselves. We can't see how any supervisor — especially one who must run for re-election in November — could vote himself a raise in the present circumstances.

She would reduce the county administrator's budget by $46,000 by eliminating three "administrative analysts." To do this, she proposes a reorganization which would take personnel, purchasing, central services, county fair and veterans' memorial building from under the administrator.

Strikes us the three jobs could be cut without any reorganization. All that is necessary is to define the administrator's duties, making them what his title indicates. He would not then need an assistant administrator and three administrative analysts plus two secretaries, as he now has. And eliminating the three analysts should also lop off the secretary.

MRS. BOXER'S big cuts would come in capital improvements. She would postpone Hall of Justice landscaping ($254,000), county fair site improvement ($275,000) and Civic Center office expansion ($288,250) for a total saving of $817,250.

Eliminating the office expansion would have a side benefit. Once more offices are ready, people will promptly be put into them, whether needed or not. It is Parkinson's Law, and it has been well demonstrated at the Civic Center.

The meataxe approech to the landscaping and fairgrounds improvements has less appeal. The choice is not between all or nothing. Certainly some fairgrounds improvements and some landscaping should be done next fiscal year. Surely the army of "experts" at the Civic Center can come up with some reasonable plans that will cost far less than a half million dollars, without postponing the whole job.

MRS. BOXER would reduce by $168,500 the "security" portion of the sheriff's budget, and would defer the county honor farm (budgeted at $231,000, which no doubt is merely the ante), but would restore $109,700 requested by the sheriff for increased patrols but cut by the county administrator.

We agree that increased patrols are more necessary than the honor farm, and believe budgeters seem more concerned with their own security at the Civic Center than with the security of the whole county.

Much of the saving in capital outlay would be wiped out by Mrs. Boxer's proposal to restore $400,000 for purchase of open space which was cut by the administrator. We suggest it stay cut. Various moves to save open space are bearing fruit, and we do not think Marin's taxpayers should be saddled with what might turn out to be more of a boon to real estate speculators than anything else. It's amazing how a piece of worthless land becomes valuable when a public agency has money to spend for it.

Legislators Ignore Limits In Search For New Taxes

By EARL G. WATERS

In the minds of the legislators and other officials toying with measures designed to alleviate the demands for tax reform, there seems to be no end to the extent "sin" taxes can be stretched.

Those who have the responsibility for providing the revenues to maintain government shun two forms of taxation. One is that which takes substantial bites out of the taxpayer and the other is the little nip which blankets everyone alike.

Rather than take either of these approaches, both of which are direct taxes and can be expected to provoke loud cries of distress from the populace, they favor two other methods.

ONE IS THE INDIRECT tax, and great momentum is building for the "value added" tax method. This is a super-duper sales tax. The sales tax as it is known to Californians is a direct tax paid by the consumer. The value added tax commences with the raw product and is applied to each transaction as the commodity progresses into the finished article. The end result is that the consumer is paying the whole compounded tax but it is hidden. All he knows is that the retail price has gone up. This type of tax has gained wide acceptance in Europe.

State Sen. William E. Coombs R-Rialto, has proposed a value added tax for California. State Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, advocates virtually the same thing only he calls his a "transaction tax." Tax experts maintain this type of tax is impractical and unworkable on the state level. They contend it must be national, otherwise states adopting it would be unable to compete with the others. It works, they say, in Europe because all countries are joined in a Common Market pact.

IT IS THE "SIN taxes" which continue to intrigue the state officials. These are taxes inflicted by some people upon others. The non-drinkers (may God have mercy on them!) support liquor taxation. The non-smokers want to up the cigarette tax. The environmentalists have climbed aboard and want to tax the motorist out of existence. A self-appointed health expert is advocating a heavy tax on soda pop because it is not nutritional.

To argue that liquor and cigarettes are already overtaxed is futile. To contend that sin tax places an undue share of the burden of government upon selected classes finds little sympathy. The fact these taxes proportionately erode a greater share of the spending power of those with limited incomes is blandly ignored.

WHAT SHOULD NOT be ignored is that there is a limit to which sin taxes can go. Having arrived at this level, each increase thereafter yields a poorer result. When it reaches the breaking point, black markets spring up. The cost of dealing with illicit markets exceeds the revenues to be gained.

The legislators in their taxation studies so far, have failed to go deeply into the philosophy of taxation. In their quest for easy answers they are overlooking the wisdom of the Victorian economist, J.R. McCulloch, who wrote: "Oppression, it has been said, either raises men into heroes or sinks them into slaves; and taxation, according to its magnitude and the mode in which it is imposed, either makes men industrious, enterprising and wealthy, or indolent, dispirited and impoverished."

There is a limit to which people can be taxed.

Claims Women's Vote Defeated Judge

It was not the age of Samuel Gardiner that defeated him — it was the women of Marin County. Justice may, and should be blind, but deaf as well?

Hopes San Rafael People Save Dollar Mansion

I have heard that there is a petition out to try to save the Dollar home in San Rafael.

One woman in San Francisco saved a beautiful old home in that city.

The City of Novato has saved an historic home — the combined first post office and postmaster's residence.

I hope the people and the City of San Rafael will be able to do the same for the Dollar home.

School Budgets Should Show Evaluation Cost

As you have reported, most school districts are both finalizing their 1972-73 budgets and wrestling with the Stull Bill requirements which call for procedures for evaluation of certificated employees. Last night, I learned that the Sausalito School District, as well as those in San Rafael and Novato, is considering paying the committee which will draft their district guidelines for evaluation.

I ask that the implementation costs be anticipated within school district budgets and that these additional responsibilities not be to the detriment of the educational programs. Unless these responsibilities are adequately compensated now, either the tightness of the budgets will dictate an inadequate evaluation procedure or an extensive procedure will be developed and the instructional program will suffer.

I don't think we, as taxpayers, want either of these to happen.

Experience Of Jury Service Impressive

On 7 June I was granted the God-given priviledge of being summoned for jury duty. I walked into the magnificent building, and there on the floor was our Lady Justice — she was in various hues and to me was a neat piece of artwork. What did catch and hold my untrained eye and raised a verbal question from my being was the blank space covering her eyes. The gentleman-officer answered warmly, saying, "No, Lady Justice is not blind — she just must listen to all evidence before reaching a decision."

Armed with this knowlege of justice I advanced heaven-ward to my assigned room. After absorbing with my ears the comments of my fellow jury man, woman, whatever, 'tis a great blessing to me to know that there are judges and lawyers who are and always will be much wiser than I.

Dangers of Roving Dog Packs Cited

Night before last a pack of dogs attacked and killed my cat.

I've seen packs of dogs in downtown Mill Valley, and running loose in Boyle Park. This attack occurred about 4 a.m. I'm afraid for the safety of my daughter and other children. Why isn't the leash law enforced? Don't the owners realize how dangerous it is to let their pets stray away from home?

Former Grand Juror Retorts To Silvestri

George Silvestri's "Retort to Beban" as reported in the June 8 edition of the I-J is so filled with nonsense, distortion and error that it fairly begs for a line by line rebuttal. . .

Silvestri's conclusion that the people have assigned to the grand jury the prosecuting function and his statement "of course a grand jury is prosecution oriented," boggles the mind. He should know that this function, in our society, is assigned to a prosecutor elected by the people. We call this prosecutor the district attorney. . .

His conclusion that grand jury proceedings are not tainted by racist attitudes is apparently based on the fact that for the last several years either one or two of the 19 jurors has been non-white. This kind of contrived tokenism may reassure him, but I can provide numerous examples of actions on the part of this grand jury that disturb the hell out of me. . .

Silvestri cites Beban's appointment to the jury as further evidence that the jury is representative of the community. A careful reading of an interview with Samuel Gardiner, presiding judge of the Superior Court when this jury was appointed, carried in the Feb. 17 edition of the I-J, makes clear that he at least is only interested in the illusion of a representative grand jury. In that interview, Judge Gardiner allows that he and his colleagues on the bench knew that they were getting a couple of dissenters, but felt that they would make little difference in the large body. He concludes his interview with the admission that the views of at least two of the jury members had come as a surprise to judges after their appointment.

GERALD A. HAWES

Britain's Heath Coolly Assured He Can Solve Nation's Troubles

LONDON — A year ago Prime Minister Edward Heath confronted the hurdle of brining Britain into the European Common Market and ending the isolation of this island realm. With the terse, nononsense assurance that is his political style, he has cleared that hurdle, and, except for the final confirmatory stages, Britain is a partner in the new Europe.

Today with the same cool confidence he is attacking the dragons of inflation, unemployment and the ubiquitous demands of the powerful trade unions. He seems to have not the slightest doubt that he will win this one as he overcame the opposition to Common Market membership. While victory will come much harder, Heath is convinced that the score in the early skirmishes shows that his Conservative government is already winning.

STYLES IN PRIME ministers change with the times. Only the setting is the same — the cabinet room with the long narrow table with the stiff-backed mahogany chairs on each side and through the windows at the end, rare spring sun and the new green of the great trees in the garden just outside. Heath's Conservative predecessor was Harold MacMillan, "Super-Mac" in the popular press, who has just published another volume of his highly controversial memoirs. "Super-Mac" had a theatricality that charmed the voters and was a source of great amusement to his intimates.

Between the two conservative PMs was the Laborite, Harold Wilson, the leader of the opposition in the House of Commons in spite of rumblings of distrust from the rank and file. Wilson was all politician with a capacity for self-deception that left him sadly deflated when he was defeated by a sizable majority in 1970.

Under the imperturbable gaze from Heath's steely blue eyes, the members of his cabinet know that they must be ready with the answers when their turn comes. The prime minister rarely wastes words. From the front bench in the House of Commons, his delivery is as businesslike as the report of a chairman of the board.

A CLOSE ALLY of President Georges Pompidou of France, Heath agrees with Pompidou's recent strictures that there must be much more careful preparation before the forthcoming European summit cen succeed. That summit anticipates the next step toward closer cohesion of the European community.

A monetary union is one goal. With characteristic restraint Heath sees this as a considerable way off, with intermediate steps providing adjustment of exchange rates and a gradual meshing of Europe's differing monies.

The prime minister's restraint applies to the Nixon mission to Moscow. He sees it not so much as a breakthrough but as a continuation of the trend toward a more relaxed world. Similarly with the European Security Conference to be held in the fall, he believes the preliminary procedural discussions will be quickly got through with and the conference can then turn to the substance of agreed decisions. Mutual balanced force reduction on both sides of the divide is the ultimate goal.

IT IS ON the domestic issues that he is sharp and affirmative. Inflation when the Conservatives came to power was running at the rate of nearly 10 per cent. During the past 11 months it has dropped to 4½ per cent, which Heath considers, despite the general grumbling over food prices, to be at least a minor victory.

The principal battle is with the trade unions and the coming into force of the British version of a Taft-Hartley Act. Just now the conflict is with the Railroad Workers' Union.

Unemployment is above two per cent, which is high for Britain, and the Labor opposition is making the most of it. Nevertheless, Heath is insisting on reforms that will lower production costs even though they mean a reduction in the work force. One example is "containerization," with the dockers insisting that if preloaded containers are to be moved onto ships for export, they must do the loading at the plant.

TO BE THE responsible head of government in a time like the present is a well-nigh intolerable strain. Heath seems to endure it with more poise and detachment than any of his fellow sufferers. He even has a brisk word of confidence for the Concorde, the British-French supersonic plane that has been written off as a commercial white elephant. Not at all, says Heath. Businessmen on both sides of the Atlantic will be happy to cross in three hours, do a day's business and fly back that same evening.

He had just read a news story telling of the 15 California millionaires who had put up $5 million to see George McGovern through the next phase of his campaign. Incredible! Heath will be allowed to spend under the law about $3,000 on his next campaign. And, mercifully, the next election comes in 1975.

Understanding Britisher Probes At Cause Of Irish Violence

The most encouraging single thing that has happened in Ireland for quite a long time is that the British have sent to Ireland a man who understands what "it" is all about. "It" in this case is the deep distrust of the various Irish clans of each other.

That distrust goes back into the mists of time. It all began in 1177 when King Henry II of England first placed English overlordship on the Irish. It became immensely worse after the Protestant Reformation put another barrier between the Protestant English overlords and their Roman Catholic subjects. To this day Protestants and Catholics mix socially just about as easily as whites and blacks in Alabama.

WILLIAM WHITELAW was sent over from London in March to try to put an end to these 800 years of blood-drenched history. The first thing he did was to dissolve the old Protestant government of Ulster which, by its very existence, identified the British government with the political Protestants. That in turn identified the British as being anti-Catholic. And that identifcation in turn was the fertile soil in which terror and radicalism and violence flourished. So long as the British are identified with the Protestants, the Catholics seek a champion.

That role is played by the vicient, ruthless, and radical men of the self-styled "Irish Republican Army." And it needs to be remembered that they are self-appointed, illegal in both north and south, and have nothing to do with the Irish Republic which sooner or later will have to settle with them. The official government of Ireland in Dublin will never be master in its own household so long as the IRA uses the republic as a base and training ground.

John Lynch is prime minister of the republic. He understands his own problem. He would, if he thought he dared, suppress the IRA. But he dare not so long as the minority of Catholics in Ulster believe that the British are their enemies. While that belief persists they turn to the IRA as their protector against the old classic combination of Ulster Protestants and British soldiery.

Whitelaw's essential task is to break the assumption of British partisanship in order to break the link between the IRA and the Catholics. He must be impartial between Protestants and Catholics; he must be as zealous in protecting Catholics from Protestant terror as in protecting Protestants from IRA terror. And this is precisely what he understands, and is doing his best to achieve.

WHETHER HE SUCCEEDS is another matter. The radicals have a vital stake in his failure. The IRA loses its constituency, its power, source of funds and its raison d'etre if Ulster Catholics can get along without them. The same goes in reverse for the demagogues of the Protestant side. There is a natural if clandestine common interest between IRA and Protestant radicals. They can't survive without each other. They live or fade away together. They feed on each other's violence.

Right now Whitelaw is having some success in earning the confidence of the Ulster Catholics. They begin to think that just possibly he may be impartial. They talk to him. And if this went on long enough the radicals of both Protestant and Catholic sides would languish, and eventually disappear.

This is why his progress so far is encouraging. It is also why both IRA and Protestant radicals will do their best to frustrate him and his effort to end the 800-year history of British rule in Ireland.

Even Best Of Intentions Get Nothing But Gripes, It Seems

Could be, it's a grouchy time of the year. Everybody seems to be rubbing everyone else's fur the wrong way.

For example, I hear that San Anselmo City Councilman Lewis W. Stewart got a chewing out from San Rafael City Councilman Fred Jensen — for daring to invade San Rafael recently to tell the citizenry how to organize a town meeting on civic problems.

Priscilla Bull and the other sparkplugs behind the town forum campaign had nothing but gratitude for Stewart's suggestions. But Jensen wanted to know how come an outsider comes into San Rafael, where the tax rate is "half" the Hub's "and tells us our business." Fellow San Rafael Councilman Harry A. Barbier reportedly said the same thing, in a more diplomatic way.

IN SAN ANSELMO, there were grumblings in the council chambers Tuesday evening over bureaucracy versus the little guy. City Planning Commission Chairman Duane C. Ragan and City Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro argued it would be an injustice if the council didn't toss a permit denial appeal back to the planning commission.

The struggling restaurateur who wanted a beer and wine license was turned down last month by a 4-2 planning commission vote because he didn't have enough parking spaces, and his sale of suds or vino with dinner might aggravate traffic on the Miracle Mile.

While Capurro and Ragan fought to keep the council from reversing the commission, audience members quietly wondered whether the beleagured businessmen's feelings weren't at least as important as the "relationship" between council and commission.

IN THE SUPPOSEDLY serene and bucolic rural haven of Black Point, things aren't very happy, either. For the umpteenth time, the worried residents of H Lane were told after 11 p.m. Monday that the Novato Planning Commission was too far behind on its agenda to get to that controversial "prezoning" of 88 acres sought by Western Gold Realty.

Other old feuds flared out there, too.

Early one morning last week, a gigantic truck bristling with chemical spray nozzles squeezed its way through the gate and up the Greers' winding driveway, sprayed a load of chemicals at some walnut trees, and crunched backwards down the hill. I demanded to know what was going on, and a hapless foreman told me his private tree service firm was following Pacific Gas and Electric Co. instructions to spray a growth retardant on all trees under the firm's power lines.

A couple of phone calls produced a visit from a tree service official and full apologies for straying onto a private property on PG&E business. But the PG&E voice on the other end of the wire only promised to "send someone out" to talk about the invasion and possible damage to hard-won landscaping.

That someone never showed up. Just like last year, when thistles thrived untended on neighboring PG&E property and infested our hillsides. They required scores of hours of tedious weeding. Complaints did no good.

I guess we all feel like that grumbling dog in the TV commercial. Only it'll take more than a taste of liver to turn us on again.

Results Of Stinson Septic Tank Survey

Most remaining undeveloped properties in Stinson Beach are not suited for the use of septic tank disposal systems, according to a recent survey by the Marin County Health Department's Division of Environmental Control.

Because of poor soil conditions, a high water table and other factors, it was concluded that most unimproved parcels cannot be built upon unless they are linked to the waste treatment and disposal system now being planned for the community.

Otherwise, they must be provided with individual waste treatment facilities other than conventional septic systems.

The survey, directed by Environmental Health Director William L. Desmond, also revealed that septic tanks are failing or unfeasible in many developed areas of Stinson.

The county department conducted the study of approximately 500 parcels in the community at the request of the Stinson Beach County Water District to enable the district to plan which areas must be sewered and connected to the proposed disposal system.

Both developed and undeveloped lands were studied, but environmental health officials admitted that, due to lack of time and money, it was not possible to examine and evaluate all the approximately 1,600 parcels in the Stinson Beach area.

"It is believed that the sampling and analysis performed is truly representative of the area in which such evaluations were made," the report noted, adding, "conditions found contrary to these conclusions will be the exception rather than the rule."

The study found septic tanks either functioning or feasible in the developed portion of Seadrift and the entire Panoramic Highway area and concluded there is no need for sewering, at least in the immediate future, in these areas.

But the survey said sewers are needed in the patios, calles and remainder of the old town area, the downtown and both developed and undeveloped properties in the Stinson Beach highlands.

Although septic tanks were found to be functioning properly on all developed parcels in the highlands, Desmond said tank runoff is flowing into a nearby creek and contributing to the pollution of the Bolinas Lagoon.

The county water district, using the survey as a reference, will make the final decision on which areas will be sewered in the first phase of its waste disposal project, Desmond noted.

John L. Jones, water district director, said copies of the septic tank survey will be available to community residents.

Apartment Tenants Must End Protest

NEW YORK (UPI)—Manhattan Supreme Court Justice Hilda G. Schwartz Wednesday ordered tenants in a 24-story luxury apartment house overlooking Central Park to end their demonstration against their landlord and remove sheets lettered with complaints from their windows.

The sheets were hung Tuesday—with such comments as "this building is a lemon"—by the tenants.The landlord then went to court to have the sheets removed and claimed damages of $1 million from the 41 tenants.

Democrats Solve Financial Woes With Campaign Relic Fire Sale

Two hundred forty-six books on Sen. Edmund Muskie with such varied titles as "From Maine to Pennsylvania Avenue," "A Day in the Life of President Muskie," "The Nixon-Muskie Debates," "Front-Runner from New England," "Quotations from Chairman Ed," "I Was Muskie's Football Coach," "Lincoln Walks Again" and "Mrs. Muskie's White House Cookbook."

Also included in the catalogue are 10,000 straw hats with "Vote For Lindsay" hatbands, 100,000 "Lindsay — Love Him Or Leave Hm" bumper stickers, 250,000 campaign buttons which say "The People Want John," and 3,670,000 feet of film of John Lindsay eating pizza, Polish ham, kosher salami and soul food.

Available in the same package are 50 one-minute TV spots of Lindsay walking through the ghettos..

ON PAGE 43, the catalogue lists for sale 300,000 pamphlets entitled "Why I Think I Should Be President" by Henry Jackson with an introduction by Joseph Alsop, a cardboard reproduction of a Boeing SST on a float, a UPI photograph of Jackson addressing a crowd from an orange box in Florida, and an autographed picture of Golda Meir.

There are also some great bargains in Sen. Vance Hartke memorabilia, including 6,000 "Hoosiers for Hartke" posters, 2,510 "Hartke Has Heart" stickers, and a letter from Dita Beard telling Hartke he can't have the ITT company plane.

Rarer still are Sen. Fred Harris souvenirs listed for sale. These include 250 bills from printers, television stations, storefront owners, airlines and ball-point pen manufacturers. Also listed are Indian headdresses and three copies of the song "Happy Days Are Here Again."

The Democratic National Committee is offering in the same catalogue "The Best-Loved Poems of Gene McCarthy as Selected by Him," "Dump Johnson" posters (from McCarthy's '68 New Hampshire campaign), and "Come Clean With Gene" aprons.

MAYOR SAM YORTY is included in the fire sale with "Stand Up America For Yorty" banners, "Yorty Will Win In Vietnam" billboard signs, and 160,000 tie clasps of the American flag with "Yorty" printed in gold across the stripes.

"Vote For Terry Sanford" beach towels, and "Chisholm In '72" bar coasters are also being offered for sale.

One million copies of "The Congressional Record of George McGovern" have been donated by the Humphrey people, and one million copies of "The Congressional Record of Hubert Humphrey" were turned over by the McGovern camp.

The McGovern people are also selling their political polls in California at bargain prices.

Chairman Lawrence O'Brien maintains this is the greatest sale of primary material in the history of the Democratic Party. Each one is a collector's item. He said that they were expected to triple in value. A "Wilbur Mills for President" shopping bag which sells for 10 cents in the catalogue could easily be worth 25 cents 10 years from today.

Newsmen 'Like Girls In Love'

Ehrlichman, the White House domestic affairs adviser, was asked at a news conference about his remark the day before that President Nixon does not hold many news conferences because the reporters ask "a lot of flabby and fairly dumb questions."

Responded Ehrlichman:

"When people at the White House get together with the press, newsmen are sort of like insecure young ladies and they keep asking us if we love them. Then, when we tell them the truth, there is a hurt feeling that sets in.

"It would be better if you didn't ask us if you didn't want to know."

New Aide Named

EXODUS TO PETALUMA

Marin Tough Spot To Find Economy Housing

By JEFF GREER
(First of three articles)

Marin County is a harsh place to live for the poor, for youthful couples with big plans but modest income, for large families and for the elderly.

Any family, in fact, that has an annual income less than $12,000 faces great difficulty finding anywhere to call home in Marin.

Over and over in interviewing families facing housing crises, was heard the refrain that "if we can't do anything else, we'll just have to move to Petaluma."

How long that Southern Sonoma city will reamin a mecca for Marin's displaced persons is problematical. Petaluma is trying to shut the door on its population explosion, going so far as to limit new housing construction to 500 units a year.

Last year in Marin County, only one-sixth of all new housing built was offered for less than $30,000 a unit. More than 73 per cent of the new homes sold above $35,000.

Throughout the Bay Area during 1969 and 1970 — the latest data available to the Marin County Planning Department — 34.7 per cent of all new housing units built sold for less than $25,000. But only 10 per cent of the housing built in that time in Marin was available for less than $25,000.

Planners estimate that the average family cannot afford to spend more than 2.5 times its annual family income for a home. Housing available for $16,000 in Ventura and Sacramento sells for more than $20,000 here. That is to say, a family with an annual income of $6,400 could buy the same home in Ventura or Sacramento that a Marin family would need $8,000 a year income to buy.

With five out of six new housing units priced over $30,000, the Marin market is effectively limited to families with incomes of $12,000 or more.

The rental scene is no better. For each 100 units that rented for less than $150 a month a decade ago, 60 or the units are now in a higher bracket.

Daily, apartment hunters queue up outside Independent-Journal offices, hoping to be the first to spot an advertisement for some living quarters they can afford.

The great cost of shelter in Marin has many roots, including high costs of land, spiraling labor costs, high property taxes and governmental requirements that make developers add what they consider as "extras" to their projects.

The philosophy of improving "life quality" of Marin housing versus its cost will be discussed later in this series, along with the much-debated issue of the "housing mix." That question is whether enough of Marin's average "comfortable" residents really want to have neighbors in the low or moderate income brackets.

The cold data and the philosophy of adequate shelter for all are scant comfort to the house hunters or those about to lose the roof over their head.

"I've just turned my fate over to a Petaluva real estate man," said I-J reporter Frank Fararra. For years, he rented a rambling old home with an orchard in the Dominican area of San Rafael for his wife and five children. Now the home is up for sale with a $45,000 price tag, forcing the family to go house hunting. The only possibilities they've found in Marin lie far to the west, making it difficult for the children to reach school and the farther to commute to work in Novato.

Hence, he's looking in Petaluma.

David W. Sexton, a social services worker less than a year out of graduate school, toils daily to help welfare recipients with housing problems — but he's had problems of his own in Marin.

"My wife, our son and I lived in a trailer while I was in school," he said. "We'd made up our minds to face a couple of years of poverty and hard living, thinking it'd all be better when I got out of school and had a good job."

But the take-home pay, "good as it is," can't provide more than small quarters in Novato, and leaves precious little money for enjoying the attractions of Marin, Sexton said.

He's pessimistic about solving low income housing problems in Marin. He said a San Joaquin Valley community's welfare agencies cooperated in buying a motel and turning it into emergency housing for families needing shelter for a few days or weeks, until permanent quarters could be found. But Marin's high real estate prices make him doubtful enough money could be raised here, Sexton said.

HOUSING FOR ELDERLY — Neat, modern building in Santa Venetia is part of one 36-unit senior citizens housing project opened four years ago — and filled to capacity ever since. The Marin County Housing Authority has a waiting list of more than 1,200 elderly persons or low-income families waiting for a chance to rent housing they can afford without having to move out of the county.

Homeowner Group To Hear White

H. Donald White, bus transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District, is scheduled to appear Tuesday before the Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association to report on progress toward providing commute bus service to the city's east side.

Cheryl Heringer, association spokesman, said residents are concerned over delays in service promised to the area some months ago.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at La Tercera School.

The association board also will change its meeting scheduled from the second Monday of each month to the second Tuesday, effective next month.

Large Parade Sunday To Climax Show

The West Marin Junior Livestock Show, which opens Saturday, will be climaxed Sunday with one of the largest parades in its history, with 123 entries including 20 bands, according to William H. Thomson, parade chairman.

Judging of small animals, home economics projects and livestock will be held Saturday morning with all agricultural exhibits scheduled to be ready at 8 a.m. in the exhibition area at the Point Reyes Community Center.

Coronation of Katherine Hoburg, 17, of Nicasio, as show queen will be at 9 p.m. Saturday at the community center. Hugh Turner, former manager of Radio Station KTIM will act as master of ceremonies. Duke Martin and his Sundowners will play for dancing until 2 a.m.

On Sunday, horse showmanship competition will begin at 9:30 a.m., chicken barbecue at 11:30 a.m. and the parade at noon.

The parade will be led by Ernest Mangue of Half Moon Bay riding an albino stallion and will last "about an hour and a half," Thomson said.

Among the mounted entries will be Four Morgan horses from the Point Reyes National Seashore.

There will be eight bagpipe bands, the Sonoma Country Shrine Bank in oriental costume, a Coast Guard band, St. Mary's Chinese Corps from San Francisco and the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District Nonmarching Band.

Antique cars, ponies, 4-H club floats and "majorettes galore" have been entered, Thomson said.

Military entries include a Coast Guard drill team, the U.S. Naval School Precision Drill Team from Mare Island and color guards from the Sixth Army and M Co., Third Battalion, 23rd Marine Corps Reserve Unit in San Rafael.

The parade awards will be presented at the barbecue area outside the community center at 3:30 p.m.

Planning Panel In Mill Valley Favors Off-Street Parking Lots

A plan which would replace the existing middle-of-the-road parking spaces along Miller Avenue with five separate off-street parking lots has been tentatively endorsed by the Mill Valley Planning Commission.

The five new parking lots — if approved by the planning commission and city council — would enable the city to begin its bottlenecked $160,000 Miller Avenue reconstruction project.

The entire project has been help up by the city council until an acceptable scheme can be found to replace about 55 parking spaces that would be lost.

The chamber's alternative plan called for the preservation of the middle-of-the-road parking. A center parking bay would be built by separating the parking spaces from the regular traffic lanes with a low curb. According to the chamber's plan, all cars would enter traffic in a forward direction.

Planning Commission Chairman Ivan S. Poutiatine said the chamber's recommendation was rejected because it was similar to a plan previously rejected by the city engineer and a private consultant.

"The chamber plan is simply backtracking over ground we've previously rejected," explained Poutiatine.

The location of the off-street lots were recommended to the planning commission by its own parking subcommittee.

The five sites are: (1) two lots on the east side of Willow Avenue, off Miller Avenue, (2) one lot on the west side of La Goma Avenue, behind the auto agency, (3) one lot on Miller Avenue, on the site of the existing Enco station, (4) one city-owned lot on Valley Circle, west of property owner by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. (5) one lot behind Tad's television shop, near Brown's Hall.

The subcommittee stressed that the five lots should be used exclusively for shopper parking, rather than for commuter parking.

It further recommended that the city council urge the Golden Gate Bridge District to acquire commuter parking lots on the outskirts of the city or outside the city limits.

The five sites recommended for new parking lots have a combined assessed value of more than $57,000. The subcommittee stated that the new lots should not necessarily be financed with money from the city's general fund.

Two other potential means to acquire the five proposed sites have emerged. (1) Creation of a property owners assessment district along Miller Avenue which would tax neighboring merchants the cost of the lots. (2) Establishment of a new municipal parking authority which would be empowered to levy taxes and build parking facilities throughout the city.

The final determination of the sites and financing of the new lots will be made by the city council.

The planning commission postponed its formal adoption of the five parking locations until after a public hearing scheduled for June 26.

$684,000 Bid On New Overpass

A low bid of $684,914 was submitted to the California Division of Highways yesterday for construction of the planned Rohnert Park overpass of Highway 101.

The bid, one of 10 ranging up to $900,000 received by the division in San Francisco, was offered by Blasi Construction Co. of Healdsburg.

Cost of the project, which will link Rohnert Park's east and west sides, had been estimated by state highway engineers at $879,000.

A division spokesman said a contract probably would be awarded in 30 days.

The overpass originally had been scheduled for construction in late 1976, but the city received a $241,500 grant from the U.S. Economic Development Administration for the project.

The project, connecting Rohnert Park Expressway East with the planned Rohnert Park Expressway West, is expected to speed construction of a regional shopping center on the West side as well as provide California State College, Sonoma, students quicker access to the campus from southbound Highway 101.

Beban Takes Appeal To State Top Court

Carl B. Shapiro, attorney for the 24-year-old Beban, said the state First District Court of Appeal in San Francisco turned down the appeal without comment Tuesday, but the state Supreme Court yesterday stayed the sentenced until it makes a ruling.

Judge E. Warren McGuire on May 24 ordered Beban to go to jail until he agrees to turn over to an investigator for the attorney general's office the papers which were leaked to the press.

Beban first called the ruling an "Alice in Wonderland" decision and vowed to go to jail, but later said he would give the papers to the Grand jury if the final ruling is against him.

The report Beban refused to turn in was that of a subcommittee which charged the Sausalito police were using a quota system of arrests.

A stronger final report suggested firing Chief James D. Wright and two top subordinates and the grand jury adopted it, but an investigation of the earlier leak was undertaken any way.

Beban's appeal is based on several arguments rejected by McGuire. Among them are the claims that the jury had no power to investigate the police in the first place, the Subpoena used was defective, no quorum was present when Beban refused, and the jury had illegally given up its investigatory power to the attorney general.

Blown Tire Puts One In Hospital

Two Marin County residents were injured at 12:40 p.m. yesterday in an automobile accident on Highway 101, about 500 feet north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

According to the Highway Patrol, a tire on Snider's car blew out, causing it to swerve off the highway, strike a freeway sign and roll over.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

The Failure To Overcall Can Help Locate The Missing Ace

When an opponent who has passed throughout shows up with a strong suit, don't expect him to hold side strength as well. In today's hand, for example, West could not have the ace of hearts and a good spade suit in view of his pass over one club. The situation called for strong measures.

CAREFUL STUDY

West opened the seven of spades, and the late Pierre Albarran, dean of French experts, analyzed the hand carefully before he played to the first trick. East could hold only one spade higher than the seven, and Albarran wanted to find the right play for all the possibilities.

Having thought the matter through, Albarran played the low spade from dummy. East put up the ten, and declarer won with the king!

Declarer next led a diamond to dummy and returned a low club. East played low, and Albarran finessed with the ten.

A LOW SPADE

West won with the queen of clubs and promptly led a low spade, expecting his partner to win with the jack. West got a shock and a surprise when Albarran produced the jack of spades.

Albarran then ran nine tricks: three clubs, two spades and four diamonds.

NORMAL PLAY LOSES

If South wins the first trick with the jack of spades, West will know that he has to get the lead to his partner to finesse through the king of spades.

South proceeds in his normal way by leading a diamond to dummy and a club toward his hand. West wins with the queen of clubs and sees that hearts is the logical suit for a switch since South is clearly well heeled in both clubs and diamonds. West leads a heart to his partner's ace, and then a spade return gives the defenders four spade tricks.

This has to be the best pickup in the Bay Area — because it's been our truck since new in '69.

We've used this like-new pickup as a parts truck and it has just over 40,000 miles.

Half ton with the long 8-foot bed. Fully equipped including power steering, power brakes, automatic, V-8 engine, radio, heater and almost all new tires.

This powder blue pickup is in A-1 mechancial condition and hasn't a mark of wear inside or out. We've just repainted this truck in order to erase our company signs. 70779C.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
CONSTRUCTION OF TENNIS COURTS IN PIONEER MEMORIAL PARK
PROJECT NO. 69-008-B
CITY OF NOVATO
MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Finance Director, City of Novato, California, until 4:00 p.m. on June 26, 1972, for the furnishing of all plant, labor, materials, tools, equipment and machinery necessary for the construction of TENNIS COURTS IN PIONEER MEMORIAL PARK, PROJECT NO. 69-008-B.

The proposals will be publicly opened and read in the office of the Finance Director on the date and at the time mentioned above. Plans and specifications (but not including City Standard Specifications or other documents included by reference), and proposal forms, may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer upon payment of a printing and service charge in the amount of Six Dollars ($6.00) which amount shall not be refunded. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Novato, and should be mailed to the City of Novato, P.O. Box 578, Novato, California, 94947.

The work to be done includes, but is not necessarily limited to: clearing and grubbing, grading, drainage facilities, aggregate base, asphalt concrete surfacing, chain link fence, lighting system and all appurtenances necessary for the successful completion of the project as shown on the plans and specifications.

Notice is hereby given that on January 25, 1972, the City Council adopted a resolution determining the general prevailing rate of wages applicable to the work to be done, which shall be the minimum rates paid on this project, a copy of which wage scale is on file in the office of the City Engineer.

The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive any informality in a bid, and to make award as the interests of the City may require. This notice is given by order of the Council of the City of Novato, California.

No bid will be received unless it is made on proposal form furnished by the City Engineer. Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bid bond in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the bid as a guarantee that the bidder, if the award is made to him in accordance with the terms of his proposal, will promptly execute a contract in the required form, secure payment of workmen's compensation insurance, and furnish a satisfactory faithful performance bond and a labor and material bond. Each of said bonds shall be in the sum of not less than one hundred percent (100%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the payments to be made under the contract, computed on the basis of the price stated in the proposal. In addition to the above, and if requested by the City, the bidder shall furnish a financial statement of recent date. Failure to comply with this requirement will render a bid informal and shall be sufficient cause for rejection.

The contractor shall complete the construction of the total project within thirty (30) working days, the first day of which shall be the date of the City Engineer's Notice to Proceed.

Phone Company Says It May Go Bankrupt

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Pacific Telephone and Telegraph says that if it has to return $144 million to its customers, as the state Supreme Court has ordered, the telephone company may collapse.

The company is "in real danger of going bankrupt," said assistant vice president Arthur Y. Dunn Wednesday.

Critics of the company scoffed at the idea of it going broke, saying its parent firm, the communications giant American Telephone and Telegraph, would never allow it to foid.

The company makes $1 billion a year, has 10 million phones bringing in revenue, and the state Public Utilities Commission is expected to approve a rate increase to cushion the blow of the refund order, the critics said.

The high court last Friday declared illegal the accounting system under which the company had secured permission from the PUC to raise rates. The court ordered the company to refund to its customers the difference between the bills they have paid and those they would have paid under the former rate schedule. The only legal rates are those used the last time the company had a legal accounting system, the court ruled.

The effect, Dunn, complained, was to set the company's rates back to what was charged in 1968.

Together with rulings setting aside rate increases, PT&T will have revnues $261 million less than it had planned for this year, Dunn said.

At the end of April, the company owed AT&T —which owns 90 per cent of ts stock — more than $204 million, and had less than $23 million in the bank, equal to only four days operating expenses, he said.

"The problem is, where do we get the $144 million to make the refunds?" Dunn asked.

The refunds will be made, Dunn said, probably with money borrowed from AT&T and banks, but that will bring on a financial squeeze and "there comes a time when your major shareholder may balk at lending you more money, especially if (AT&T) sees the probability of bankruptcy."

The company will not be able to pay the $1.20 per share dividend it has paid for the past 10 years, and is considering laying off employes to cut expenses, Dunn said.

George Slaff, a Beverly Hills city councilman and former chief counsel to the Federal Power Commission, who was active in getting the rate innrease overturned, criticized Dunn's statements.

"They are the people who told the (state supreme) court that the rates could be refunded. Now, if they heven't got the money to make the refunds, or if the refunds will put them in a bind, that doesn't say much about the people running the company," Slaff said.

William Bennett, of Kentfield a former member of the PUC, called Dunn's remarks "nothing but scare talk" and said the company may be trying to influence the supreme court to reconsider its ruling.

Check Charges Are Dismissed

Three counts of writing fraudulent checks against Toi Ann Weindel, 21, of San Rafael have been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court for lack of evidence.

Judge Peter Allen Smith ruled during a preliminary hearing in favor of Miss Weindel who is currently confined at the California Institute for Women at Frontera as a result of a conviction for selling heroin.

San Rafael police arrested her on May 2 — two days before she was sent to the institution — and said she had been identified as the passer of several bad checks over a period of months.

Rules Panel Rejects End-War Resolution

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state Senate Rules Committee yesterday rejected an "end-the-war" resolution and approved a proposal urging that Hanoi be told to give a full accounting of all POWs before completion of American troop withdrawals.

Instituting a new policy, the five-member Rules Committee rejected a measure by Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, on grounds that the Senate should not act on national and international issues if one member of the committee objected.

Chairman James R. Mills, D-San Diego, the chairman, said often such resolutions which do not have a direct effect on California are introduced for "partisan" purposes to "embarrass" one party or the other.

There was no vote on the Dymally resolution and it was not clear which member of the committee withheld his support for passage. New Senate rules generally call for recorded public roll call votes on the disposition of most legislation.

Among other things. the Dymally measure urged Congress and President Nixon to immediately end all bombing of Indochina, set a firm date for American troop withdrawals, end support for the Thieu government, resume the Paris peace talks and enact legislation to terminate U.S. financial support for the war.

"The legislature has a responsibility to speak out on this very, very important matter," Dymally insisted.

Sen. Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles, asserted, "If I could push the button to end the war tomorrow, I'd push it. But this is the California State Senate and they don't pay much attention to us in Washington."

The committee did, however, approve 3-0 a measure by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach, urging the President and Congress to "demand" a full accounting from Hanoi of POWs taken in Vietnam before all American troops are withdrawn.

Sen. Stephen P. Teale, D-Rail Road Flat, observed that the U.S. already has made a similar plea and asked, "what will you have gained by this except the publicity?"

"At the moment, that's about it," Burke responded.

"It's kind of an idle act, isn't it?" Teale persisted.

"I'd tend to agree," Burke said.

The Kandinsky Collection Represents The True Gems

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — The Kandinskys at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum are the diamonds in King Solomon's mines. The first director of the Museum of Non-Objective Painting (as the Guggenheim was called on its founding in 1939), Baroness Hilla Rebay, devoted her energy to acquisition, especially of works by Kandinsky whom she regarded as the true father of abstract painting.

The collection grew to such formidable proportions in relation to the rest of its holdings that the museum held two sales of his works in 1964 and 1971.

Running through Sept. 9 at the Guggenheim, which the present director Thomas Messer describes as one of "the prime repositories of Kandinsky's artistic heritage," is the first complete exhibition of the pruned collection, standing at 133 works.

Complementing the show is the world premier production of "The Yellow Sound," "a theattrical event" based on a script written by Kandinsky in 1909, adapted and performed by ZONE, Theater of the Visual.

This group was commissioned in 1970 by Harvard University and the Architects Collaborative Inc. in Cambridge, Mass., to perform "Beyond Bauhaus Theater" in honor of Walter Gropius and is now affiliated with Boston's Massachusetts College of Art. The "play" will run for an undetermined period.

Vasily Kandinsky was born in Russia in 1866. He did not take up painting seriously until the first decade of the 20th Century, when he revolutionized it. In 1897 he moved to Germany and absorbed the influences of the Jugendstil movement, the German version of art nouveau.

During the next 14 years of his life he ricocheted from school to school, movement to movement — fauvism, orphism, expressionism, the Blue Riders all shaped him, but also confined him within their structures.

Perhaps this is why, when Kandinsky began painting his first nonfigurative works in 1910 they were not only explosive in their impact but in their appearance, as if Kandinsky were shattering objects to arrive at a higher level of truth. Klee, Miro, Tanguy, Chagall, and the abstract expressionist movement all reaped from his revelations.

Kandinsky's early style, with its riotous melange of color and shapes in whirlpools of light and motion, ran a parallel but separate course to cubism. Rather than seeking the underlying geometrical structure of an object, Kandinsky sought its sensation in a mystical, animistic sense, as if the object were alive.

He orchestrated pulsating colors, which he believed to have their own particular "affects" as if they were notes in a musical composition, and lines were the instruments that played them. Among these crucial early works are those simply called improvisations, in which he was clearly trying to achieve the intuitive and emotional purity of music, the most removed from nature of all the arts. (The apparent spontaneity of these paintings foreshadowed the automatism of the surrealists.)

The theatrical production illustrates this preoccupation with the color of sound and the sound of color through a synesthetic fusion of visual and auditory impressions. There is no "plot," no "action," only subliminal attempts to fuse the visible and the invisible worlds.

The oddity of this piece in which primeval papier-mache silhouettes glide across the stage to a background of electronic music and polarized passed on in 1944. These late light, reflects to a large extent the esotericism of Kandinsky's thought, in the conveyance of which his brush was mightier than his pen.

At the outbreak of World War I Kandinsky returned to Russia where he remained until 1922, when he assumed a teaching position at the Bauhaus. This marks a turning point in his career. The clustered chaos that characterized his lyricism up until this time now becomes ordered in increasingly geometrical, mechanical, formal configurations. Cylinders, circles, squares, triangles now discipline the splashes of color, and float against a flat background of illusionistic space. In these tensely balanced paintings aesthetics seem as allied to physics as to harmonics.

In 1933 Kandinsky uprooted himself again, this time moving to Paris where he lived until he paintings perpetuate the same principles, with increasingly surrealistic overtones.

The fascination of Kandinsky is that he not only turned the world inside out but expected it to be recognizable. Instead of focusing like the cubists or even the expressionists on the reality hidden beneath the appearance he focuses on the appearance hidden beneath the reality. While his paintings seem to have gotten rid of objects, a careful scrutinization often reveals them as part of a visual puzzle.

In his early and late periods particularly, biomorphic shapes can be discerned, but there is always the nagging doubt whether we are imagining them or Kandinsky intended them.

As in "The Yellow Sound" there is an impression of constant mutability, of colors changing color, shapes changing shape, depending on the contest in which they are placed. "Meaning" becomes both imponderable and irrelevant, and the issue instead is mystery, the mystery of the design which makes no sense but produces such a powerful sensation.

Libya Airline Training Pact

KARACHI (UPI) — Pakistan will equip and train the Libyan airline, according to an agreement signed recently by the two countries.

Under the agreement, Pakistan International Airlines will provide on a two-year lease two Fokker F-27 planes and about 70 personnel drawn mainly from PIA's engineering, flight operations accounts, sales and traffic department.

PIA will also provide ground engineers and maintenance and overhaul support.

Traffic Deaths Are Higher In Israel

HAIFA, Israel (UPI) —The top cause of violent deaths among Israelis in the past five years, a period including the 1967 Middle East War, has not been Egyptian gun shellfire or Arab guerrilla attacks.

Officials statistics show that while 1,391 died in combat or were killed by enemy fire in the half decade ended Jan. 1, almost twice as many —2,419 — were killed on the highways, half of them pedestrians.

Into School Funds

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Kentuckians put an estimated 4.2 per cent of their personal income into local and state funds for school last year, says a report prepared by the Kentucky Education Association.

The Old Crank (OC) deferred to no one in admiring the vibes of E. B. White, William Strunk Jr., and their book on writing, "The Elements of Style." But it was a drag to read that in a new edition of the work White advocates saving certain slangy words for conversation and leaving them off the printed page. White reportedly writes that "by the time this paragraph sees print, uptight, groovy, rap, hangup, vibes, cop-out, and dig will be the words of yesteryear."

Gloryosky, thought the OC, what was wrong with the words of yesteryear? Some of them were real sockdollagers. Like Holden Caulfield in "The Catcher in the Rye," the OC always wanted to telephone authors he liked, and to him E. B. White was the cat's meow if not the bee's knees or gnat's whistle.

So the OC reached for the Ameche and, while waiting for a dial tone, imagined how he could shoot the breeze with Mr. White to keep those words of yesteryear out of the soup:

"I know it's none of my beeswax, Mr. White, and I'll amscray if you say the word. But I was hoping you'd chew the rag for a minute before you lay the bad news on me.

"It's real George of you not to give me the bum's rush, and I don't want to come on like gangbusters. It's just that you've alway been hep to the jive, and you must know that a word like 'dig' has meant more or less the same thing to the in crowd since the '30's. So wouldn't it be all reet to let writers groove on it, at least in the columns of a daily fish-wrapper?

"Especially in an election year, when all the baby kissers are running like the bangtails, giving out with the old balloon juice —it's times like these a word man has to make the scene and not be left at the post like a moldy fig.

"I don't want to seen hincty about it, but a Joe has to get up in the early bright to fracture the populace these days. Otherwise he's in noplaceville with the dopes, simps, twerps, and other beauts.

"If he wants anyone to give him a tumble, he has to get on the stick when he's yea high or someone will settle his hash and he'll wind up behind the eight ball. And how!

"If he's not asleep at the switch, wasting time with the lounge lizards, he'll stay on the beam and become a solid sender with a little extra elbow grease and spizzerinctum. That's using your coconut, Daddy-O, even if you're beat right down to the socks before the mazuma starts rolling in.

"I don't mean that your true prose stylist should be saying '23 skidoo' all the time just to show he's with it or get his gloms on the cabbage. That's not the way to keep the gates swinging. It's too low-brow, not really dicty.

"If you want to hear that applesauce without getting into a swivet, it's ixnay on the eager-beaver routine and keep cool with Coolidge or you're a dead duck. Let's not be rowdy-dow about this. Of course no gentleman scribe need stoop to jiggery-pokery to be real gone.

"And don't say that's a hot one. Every purp has his day. You don't have to defy technological change and call a woman's stocking the first national bank the way grandpa did. The gals put their money in IBM now in hopes of riding the gravy train in their glad rags while they munch on pogey bait and dish the dirt with their friends.

"Some of them get so hoity-toity, it's simply the limit. When one of these frails is out with her dreamboat, they're a gruesome twosome, dressed to the nines, putting on the feed-bag in some swellegant eatery. No greasy spoons for them, nothing as ordinary as Adam and Eve on a raft with home fries, or a couple of sinkers.

"These spiffed-up cats really think they're the snake's hips, but I'd rather have a few nice apple knockers for my clambake than the whole caboodle of those snazzy types. Those dillies don't even mind if people rubber at them. I'd rather rap with a genuine humdinger like you, Mr. White. . ."

The Old Crank was having a ball, thinking of what to give out with to E.B., but he never did get a dial tone, which he took to be providential, so he shut his yap and went back to sagaciating as he had before.

20th Birthday For Agricultural Program

BERKELEY — An international teaching program begun by University of California Agricultural Extension 20 years ago has marked its anniversary with a celebration in Japan.

The 20th anniversary ceremony held April 7 at the Imperial Hotel in Tokyo, included Japan's Crown Prince and Princess. University Regent Allan Grant, president of the sponsoring American organization, International Collaboration of Farmers, headed a U.S. delegation of more than 70. Dr. George B. Alcorn, director of UC Agricultural Extension and educational advisor to the program and William Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau, Chicago, also attended.

Started as a Japan-California program to provide on-farm training for young farmers, the enterprise has now grown to include nine other states and seven other countries. It has trained more than 2,500 young Japanese farmers since 1952 and is now averaging 225 trainees a year

The average age is 21. Most of the young men spend 13 months in the United States: 12 months on the job and a month in a group attending seminars, taking field trips, and sightseeing. A longer farm advisory training program is also conducted. (U.C. News Service)

KNOW THE LAW

California Highway Patrol

Off-Highway Law Defined

The following is intended to provide simplified answers to the most common questions regarding the Chappie-Z'berg Off-Highway Motor Vehicle Law of 1971. This new law requires that motor vehicles used exclusively off-highway be issued and display an identification device. The California Department of Motor Vehicles considers this summary au an accurate interpretation of present law. However, it is a guideline only and may not be cited as having the force of law.

One of the requirements for original registration is verification of the vehicle serial number by a DMV employee or any peace officer.

Q. What types of vehicles must be registered under provisions of the Chappie-Z'berg Off-Highway Motor Vehicle Law of 1971?

A. In General, such vehicles as trail bikes, dune buggies and all-terrain vehicles used for recreational purposes on public land, and not otherwise licensed to use public roads.

Q. What types of vehicles are not included?

A. Those operated only on their owner's private property or on someone else's private property with the consent of the owner or tenant, or vehicles used solely on lands commercially operated for off-highway recreation.

Another excluded group would be motor vehicles being driven in an organized racing or competitive event on a closed course — provided that a recognized sanctioning body has approved such event, or provided that appropriate local governmental authority has issued a permit for the event.

Q. What is the effective date of the new identification law?

A. July 1, 1972.

Q. What is the fee?

A. A $15 fee for a two-year period or portion thereof, dating from July 1, 1972, and $15 for every two-year period thereafter or portion thereof, ending midnight June 30 in even-numbered years.

Q. What items does an owner receive for his registration fee?

A. Upon satisfactory proof of ownership, the Department of Motor Vehicles will issue an ownership certificate (comparable to the "pink slip" now issued to automobile owners), an identification certificate, and an identification sticker to be attached to the off-highway vehicle. The numbered sticker is 2½x4 inches, green and silver in color and reflectorized for greater visibility.

NOTE: Snowmobiles must be registered under other vehicle code provisions, and carry different identification.

Q. If my vehicle already is registered and licensed for use on the highway, do I still need to register it and pay a separate fee for off-highway use?

A. No. The new registration and identification law, effective July 1, 1972, applies only to vehicles used exclusively off the highway on public lands and not engaged in sanctioned competitive events.

Q. Where must the sticker be attached?

A. To the rear of the vehicle wherever an adequate surface permits it to be affixed so as to be readily visible. It must be kept legible.

Q. Will a new sticker be issued every two years?

A. No. Present provisions of the law require that the original identification sticker be used for at least six years. However, for each two-year renewal period, a tab or other suitable evidence of valid identification will be issued. The identification certificate also would be revalidated upon payment of the renewal fee.

Q. If an identification sticker is lost, stolen, becomes mutilated or illegible, what must be done?

A. The owner must apply for a duplicate or new identification. The cost is $3. This also applies in the case of a lost, stolen, mutilated, or illegible certificate of ownership or certificate of identification.

Q. What is the procedure if the owner of an off-highway recreational vehicle covered in the Chappie-Z'berg law wished to sell his vehicle?

A. The following answer applies to private sellers — not to dealers, who have other channels for reporting sales:

The seller endorses his ownership certificate and gives it to the buyer who within 10 days must endorse the certificate and forward it to his local DMV office or mail to Sacramento headquarters with the $3 transfer fee in applying for transfer of identification. The applicant (buyer) must pay any use taxes due unless he is exempt.

Q. How are the funds collected from identification fees to be used?

A. The $15 fee is divided this way: $5 to DMV for off-highway vehicle program administration; $4 to the owner's county of residence in lieu of all property taxes on the vehicle; $6 to the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

Q. How are the counties to use their direct $4 share of each $15 fee?

A. The Legislature's intent is that counties use these funds for (1) planning, acquiring and developing special areas and trail systems for the use of off-highway vehicles; (2) law enforcement in controlling vehicles being used off-highway, or (3) any other purpose in carrying out provisions of this law.

Q. What does the California Department of Parks and Recreation do with its $6 share of each fee?

A. First, up to one-half of this amount is reserved for grants to cities, counties, or other local agencies (special purpose districts) for recreation projects for off-highway vehicles. These projects must accord with local government planning and with plans for a statewide trail system for recreational motor vehicles being developed by the department of parks and recreation. To be eligible for these funds, local bodieu must provide at least 25 per cent of project costs in matching funds.

NOTE: The local 25 per cent share of matching funds may come from the $4 previously mentioned as being returned directly to each county.

Second, the remainder — approximately $3 — must be used by the department of parks and recreation to plan, acquire, develop, maintain and administer trails and areas for the use of off-highway vehicles.

Q. What factors led to enactment of the off-highway vehicle registration requirement?

A. The great increase in ownership of such vehicles in recent years, coupled with growing demands by the owners, conservationists, livestock interests, other groups using the public lands, and by federal and local government agencies, all of whom want some kind of regulation and control. They want specific areas to be set aside for this type of outdoor enjoyment, where such activity will not conflict with private property rights or with other valid uses of public domain. Major motorcycling organizations and conservation groups gave strong support to passage of the legislation, which was signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan in December 1971.

Paratropper Drops To His Wedding

Chan, 27, a member of the Parachute Association of Singapore, was scheduled to make a 4,000-foot jump from an aircraft. It was also the day for his marriage to Miss Lim Hui Ai, also 27.

So he donned a jumpsuit over his ceremonial army uniform and jumped, landing a few feet from the training center where Miss Lim and guests were waiting. They were married immediately and a reception was held at a nearby officers' mess.

Another Florida Boom—This Time It Is In Orlando

By DAVID L. LANGFORD

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—The U.S. Navy and Mickey Mouse may sound an illogical combination. But between them they have turned this once-quiet community, interested mainly in selling oranges and insurance, into a car-choked, housing-plagued boom town of about 100,000 residents.

The Navy's beachhead was established four years ago when it opened a landlocked recruit training center at an old Air Force base. Mickey Mouse established his beachhead last year with the opening of the Walt Disney World.

As a result, Orlando today is people and auto glutted, with too few rooms for too many tourists, inflated real estate rates. High rise buildings are climbing out of the countryside and concrete block makers can't keep up with the demand.

"They wouldn't believe me when I tried to tell them what was going to happen," said William E. Potter, a retired general and Walt Disney World vice president, who was the organization's early spokesman in Florida.

Potter was refering to his warnings to local officials that Central Florida's roads were not adequate to handle the crowds expected at the $400 million tourist attraction.

A 30-mile-long traffic jam developed on Interstate 4 during one of WDW's busier days last Fall and Disney officials now say the first year's turnout will exceed the 10 million predicted earlier.

While the impact of the Navy boot camp has been less dramatic than that of Disney World, its effects on the local economy have been substantial. Presently there are about 8,600 personnel at the base, including some 3,400 recruits. Navy officials say that number will eventually reach 18,000, including civilian employes.

The next big Navy thrust will come in July when a WAVE training center is moved here from Bainbridge, Md. About 500 girl sailors will be in training at the base at any given time.

The Orlando boom shows no signs of leveling off, at least for the next several years. Still to be built, all within a 30-mile radius, are a $50 million Ringling Bros.-Barnum and Bailey permanent circus, a $40 million Sea World marine attraction, and Wild Kingdom, a safari-type annual exhibition.

A traveling man who has been bedding down at the same Orlando motel for several years voiced to UPI a typical gripe about the bedroom entrepreneurs cashing in on the lure of Disney World.

"They jacked up my rate from $12 to $18 and for the first time they asked for a deposit," he said.

Tourists hitting town without reservations will say the salesman was lucky to have a room at all. And the $18 for a single is comparatively cheap. Many of the motels have increased their rates by about 50 per cent since Disney World opened in October and rooms in the $28 to $30 range are not uncommon.

Disney recently "readjusted" the rates at its two on-site hotels—the Polynesian and the Contemporary—with the new charges ranging from $29 to $44 a night.

The Orlando Area Chamber of Commerce said that when Disney opened there were only 5,800 motel rooms available in the vicinity. Another 3,000 were made ready by the spring holidays while construction continues on still another 5,000. Several thousand more—some say as many as 10,000—are still on the drawing boards.

Among the more spectacular developments is the Carolando Corp.'s $100 million hotel and convention complex under construction near the Disney gates. And just this month the Orange County Commission approved final plans for Vistana Inc.'s $50 million complex, with a 35-story hotel which will stand much taller than any building in downtown Orlando.

The Vistana complex will be built on a 94-acre tract abutting the eastern corner of Disney's 27,000-acre layout. To be constructed in four phases, it will include hotels, motels, office space and condominiums.

Orlando's new prosperity has also driven up the price of family dwellings. Apartments are occupied as fast as they are opened.

John V.A. Holmes, an Orlando attorney, recently bought a condominium. "Four days later," he said, "the builder went up on the price $5,000 per unit."

Mrs. Sigrid Adams, the Chamber's research director, said "apartment occupancy today is averaging 97-100 per cent."

While several developers are constructing sprawling residential communities, few are catering to moderate-income families. Most of the new homes are $30,000 and up and apartments usually start at $175 a month.

Land speculators got rich after Disney announced 10 years ago he was looking at Florida.

"It has not been unusual for a guy to take 100 acres of land for $3,500 an acre and sell it for more than $20,000 per acre with no improvement and still zoned agricultural," said King Helie, president of an Orlando urban and regional planning consultant firm.

Helie said that today, however, the land near the Disney property "is now falling into the hands of users rather than speculators."

While unemployment in the Orlando area is low—recently 3.8 per cent as compared with 6.1 per cent nationally—wages are modest and 10 per cent of the residents are persons over 65 living on pensions.

Disney World employs about 9,500 persons. The payroll amounts to about $1 million a week, but a large percentage of those earn just over $2 an hour. Also, a large number of the jobs available are in the hotels and restaurants and maids, busboys and waitresses work cheap.

And the Salvation Army provides another side to the picture. It says publicity for the fabulous Disney operation has lured many persons looking for quick jobs, When they can't find a job they turn to the Salvation Army for food and shelter.

"They just envision an economic situation that doesn't exist," said Burt Tanner, a counselor for the Salvation Army.

On one night recently, he said, the Salvation Army admitted 72 homeless persons into its facility designed for 54, then had to turn away 84 others.

"After we are full, we just send them to well-lighted parking lots to sleep," Tanner said.

Disney World, in the meanwhile, regularly continues to fill up its 14,000-car parking lot. Officials are confident the first year's attendance will go well over the projected 10 million figure.

To help take care of the summer crush, after June 18 the park will remain open until midnight each day.

And another multi-million expansion program is on the drawing boards.

Dick Nunis, executive vice president, said a Pirates of the Caribbean attraction—one of the favorites at California's Disneyland—will be constructed next year, along with a Space Mountain where visitors will blast off to a ride through meteor showers.

More restaurants will be opened at the two existing hotels and three 200 to 300 bedroom hotels will be built around Bay Lake.

In addition, the park's fleet of monorails will be increased to 10 by summer. Only four were in operation when the Magic Kingdom opened. Also, two ferry boats, capable of moving 5,000 people an hour across the lagoon from the main gate to the park entrance, will soon be launched.

"Attendance has exceeded our own expectations," said one Disney official.

Candidate's Pitch Is Misdirected

MONTOGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Mrs. Nancy Chambless, running for the Couty Board of Education, gave her campaign pitch to two men in Montgomery's public affairs building.

"That sounds real good and we'd like really like to vote for you, but we're prisoners," one of the men told Mrs. Chambless. She thanked them and said she hoped they would be released soon.

Reinecke Says Tourism Funds Just Too Low

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke says California state government spent the lowest amount of money among the 50 states in the current fiscal year for promoting tourism.

Reinecke said in a speech Tuesday to the point service club luncheon the "underbudgeting" has hurt the effectiveness of the state Division of Tourism.

He expressed hope that the legislature will approve a $250,000 budget augmentation for the division in 1972-73. He said this would move California to 49th place in tourism promotion funds ahead of Nebraska.

California budgeted $41,000 for division activities in the current fiscal year.

Beer Is Considered Top Offender Drink

BONN (UPI)—Beer is the No. 1 offender in drunken driving cases in Germany, according to studies made between 1968 and 1971 by universities in three cities.

The studies, conducted by the Universities of Hamburg, Frankfurt and Mainz, showed beer responsible for about half the cases. When drunk with liquor or wine, beer was blamed for 75 per cent of drunkenness behind the wheel, the universities said.

AT DAY'S END

American SST Proponents Pin Hopes On Concorde

By PETER TONGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Proponents of an American SST — still recovering from congressional defeat of the project last year — are pinning new hopes on the Anglo-French Concorde.

They hope the sleek and slender craft, which promises to put no spot on earth more than 12 flying hours away from another, will swing public opinion around to their side.

They hope it will do this, they say, by:

Proving the fears of the environmentalists groundless.

Stimulating trade.

Operating at a profit.

Meanwhile, the Concorde has embarked on a 40,000-mile, 10-nation sales promotion flight. Its message: that speed is what flying is all about: that just as the businessman can no longer afford to travel by train or ship, he cannot ignore supersonic flight with its prospect of time for journeys cut in half.

At the same time, observers say, there is no guarantee that Concorde will accomplish everything its makers claim or that backers of the American SST hope for.

And environmentalists in the U.S. are keeping a sharp watch. The plane was defeated in the Senate last year largely on the grounds that it would harm the environment — and cause damage and inconvenience by sonic booms.

A spokesman for the leading Senate foe of the SST, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said it would have to be shown that the SST would not hurt the environment — and that the federal government would not put up the funds.

Both friends and foes of the SST are studying the economics of operating so expensive a plane which, at $49.4 million with spare parts) will cost something like 80 per cent more than a 747 Jumbo jet. It will also need a 51 per cent passenger load to break even where most subsonic aircraft require 40 per cent. Then, too, there will be a surcharge on Concorde travel — hopefully only 10 per cent up on existing fares.

British Aircraft Corp. and Aerospatiale of France, makers of Concorde, agree: the majority of passengers won't pay the higher price. They are vacationers who want economy: by and large they travel on low-rate excursions.

But the first-class travelers and businessmen will pay, Concorde's makers contend.

Civil Aviation Board figures show that on key routes the businessman makes up only 30 per cent of airline passengers, yet he contributes 60 per cent of airline fare revenue.

Now he is beginning to ask why he should pay so much more — sometimes nearly three times as much — as the fellow passenger on a low-fare group special. On an SST, say Concorde officials, he'll get something special for his fare — a journey in half the time.

Moreover, there has always been a tremendous upsurge in trade between two points the moment they have been brought with 12 hours travel time of each other, the officials say. The Concorde has the ability to bring any area within half a day of another.

Businessmen "didn't hesitate to leave the train for the airplane because of increased fares," said Roger Munt, resident BAC representative in the United States, "so why should he hesitate to pay more for the Concorde's speed?"

Concorde will offer the largest single increase in public transportation speed the world has known, and mankind has always found using a new capability irresistible. Concorde boosters claim.

Concorde will fly at twice the speed of sound, or somewhere between 1300 and 1400 miles an hour. It will beat the sun on its journey around the earth. A passecger could leave London midmorning and still make it to New York in time for breakfast. An official of a West Coast airline said: "We could pick up a businessman after work at Los Angeles and put him on the beach at Waikiki in the middle of the afternoon."

Businessmen took to the airlines in increasing numbers as the speed of aircraft went up. There was a major boost in business passengers when jets pushed air speeds from 300 to 600 miles an hour.

But the speeds have stayed relatively constant since that time and statistics show that the increase in business traffic slowed up and levelled off altogether in 1966 by which time the jet dominated air lines. Increase in passenger traffic has since been maintained only by enticing the vacationer aboard with low-priced specials.

SST proponents see subsonics of the future as catering almost exclusively for the vacation trade, with planes like the Concorde providing the speed which business may increasingly demand.

Meanwhile the office of Proxmire, who led the anti-SST fight, indicates it will not be opposed to the plane's development if:

Planes such as the Concorde and the Soviet version (the TU-144) prove flight in the stratosphere does not harm the environment and Public demand for supersonic speed is such that an SST would be profitable.

"But, we would insist on private development," said Dick Wegman, spokesman for Proxmire. "If Concorde proves profitable there will be no shortage of private investment capital," he said.

By terrestrial standards Concorde's pollution factor is low — something like 5 pounds of hydrocarbons per 1,000 passenger-seat miles compared to 50 pounds given off by the standard automobile.

But a high-flying aircraft places water vapor in the stratosphere where it doesn't belong. It could damage the ozonosphere — a protective gaseous layer in the stratosphere — to the detriment of the environment, say enviornmentalists.

SST proponents point to natural phenomena which periodically place water vapor in the stratosphere. The vigorous updraughts associated with thunderstorms do this and in 1883 the Krakotoa eruption placed more water up to heights of 150,000 feet than projected SST fleets could in 1,000 years of flying promoters say.

Environmentalists tend to agree but ask: Would SST's overburden an environment already burdened by natural causes? Meanwhile the proof of the plane — economic and environmental — will be in the flying thereof.

Recently BOAC served notice it would conduct the crucial test by ordering five Concordes. Air France is expected to place a similar order soon.

A successful Concorde, then, will increase pressure for an American SST observers believe. To quote a common phrase in the aircraft industry here, the United States "will have to build one if we're not to become a nation of second-rate plane builders."

An SST program that got the go ahead this year would enable America "to put the plane on the market by 1980," according to Boeing officials.

Tsui Kin-Kwang Of China: His Job, Home And Family

By JONATHAN UNGER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

CANTON, China — Chinese worker Tsui Kin-kwang, his wife, and three children squeeze into a two-rooms-and-a-kitchen apartment in Canton's burgeoning suburbs.

The one-story dwelling is clean, well-maintained, and the rooms are well lighted. But the floors are of concrete, and the out-of-doors toilet is 40 yards away.

Yet Tsui says he and his family are more than satisfied with the accommodations. Chinese workers, he says, have never before had it so good.

Most Canton homes this reporter visited contained all three popular consumer items: bicycle, radio, and sewing machine.

Tsui, who has worked at the same enamel factory since 1945, says that over the years the lot of the worker has continued to improve. He recalls laboring 12 hours a day for barely enough to eat before the establishment of the Communist government in 1949-1950.

The state assumed partial ownership of the large enamel factory in 1955, and its capitalist owners relinquished the remainder of their shares in 1968 (after the "cultural revolution").

Tsui approves of the changes. He says he enjoys his job, in part because he feels he is making a worthwhile contribution to national development.

Six days a week, Tsui pedals off to an eight-hour workday. His wife, who can stroll to her job at Canton's No. 11 rubber factory, drops the youngest children at school along the way.

Almost all able-bodied women in Canton hold full-time jobs. Mrs. Tsui approves. She says that her own job and independent income have helped her achieve equality with her husband and a more independent life.

Following each childbirth, Mrs. Tsui has returned to her job after two months' paid maternity leave. Each new baby was cared for during working hours at the factory's nursery ward, and Mrs. Tsui says she was able to go frequently to nurse and fondle her newborn child. At the age of 1½, each of the children entered the factory's nursery school, graduating at 7 into primary school.

The Tsui family nine years ago moved into its present home so that the three children could more conveniently attend the factory nursery. The housing estate they now live in, a well-spaced collection of one-to three-story whitewashed stuccos, is close by the factory and is operated by Mrs. Tsui's employer, a producer of medical gloves.

The Tsuis have their breakfast and lunch in their factories' dining rooms, where a hot lunch costs about eight cents.

They individually study Mao's political philosophy a half-hour each day before their shifts. And time is allotted during working hours for them to join their workmates in reading and discussing the daily newspaper.

During the harvest season they take leave of their jobs and go into the countryside to help the peasants bring in the crops.

As salaries in Canton's industry are determined largely by seniority, Tsui's monthly income of $38 is above his wife's monthly wage of $26. Like many Chinese women, Mrs. Tsui was first able to enter the work force only in 1957 at the advent of the "great leap forward," when the day-care centers were established across the nation.

HOME FOR SOME — This is Kuntong Village, the home for some. But in China, a home for many are the burgeoning suburbs of Canton which contrast starkly with the quiet, uncrowded streets of Kuntong Village. Although workers say their lot has improved steadily in Canton, families still must make do with two-rooms-and-a-kitchen apartments.

Continued Fat Defense Budget Seen

By ROBERT P. HEY

WASHINGTON — American troops have been coming home from Vietnam. And two arms limitation agreements have been signed with the Soviet Union. So taxpayers shouldn't have to spend so much money this year on the military — right?

Not necessarily

The Nixon administration has asked Congress for $83.4 billion for defense for this next fiscal year; last year it received $77.1 billion.

Represented by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, the Nixon administration now has told Congress that while Vietnam War expenses are lower than under the Johnson administration, the U.S. will have to spend some $3 billion to $5 billion extra to help fight off the current North Vietnamese offensive.

Further, it says, the two strategic arms limitation agreements won't save very much — only about $650 million this year and $5 billion eventually. These savings, it holds, will be more than offset by other defense needs.

Besides, testified Laird as he fired his most powerful salvo, further arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union will be fruitful only if the U.S. negotiates from a position of military strength. He told both the Senate and House Appropriations Committees recently that the U.S. consequently must continue the costly process of modernizing its defense forces.

These last two are points of considerable contention. Many in Congress are dismayed that the Nixon administration has not sought a lower defense budget. They will push hard to cut deeply into this one.

The fight, already underway with the Laird testimony, will be lengthy and close. Defense cutters may win.

During the testimony House Appropriations Committee Chairman George H. Mahon indicated displeasure that two arms limitations agreements signed during the Moscow summit would not save much money.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, running for the Democratic presidential nomination, wants to cut the annual defense budget back to some $55 billion within a few years. Far too deep a cutback, said Laird, when asked about the proposal by Sen. William Proxmire, another critic of Pentagon spending. Laird said that if that proposal were carried out if would leave the United States military so weak as to be tantamount to surrender.

One of the major areas of congressional debate is expected to be development of new long-range offensive weapons. In effect Laird led off the debate during his congressional testimony.

He indicated that despite the two signed arms limitation agreements the U.S.-Soviet offensive arms race still is on. He said the U.S. must develop new long-range weapons in order not to fall behind — and falling behind, he indicated, would preclude future arms limitation agreements.

Many in Congress disagree, especially dovish members, say privately that the Soviet Union apparently still would be unable to shoot down the long-range B-52 bombers which carry nuclear-tipped Polaris missiles. If the U.S. long-range weapons are adequate, they argue, why spend billions now to build new ones? This argument will reverberate through Congress before the debate ends.

New Worry—Protection

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BOSTON — How do you bring art close to the people — and still keep them at arm's length?

This is the dilemma facing museums around the country in the wake of new cases of vandalism and theft.

A Monitor survey of museum officials in the United States finds that their partial solution to the problem is to tighten security — and to re-think the whole modern, more-open approach to exhibiting art. Measures being taken by some museums include:

1. Hiring more guards — some of them from professional services.
2. Closer scrutiny of visitors.
3. Installing sophisticated electronic equipment.
4. Flooding galleries with lights, inside and out, plus parking areas.
5. Erecting new barriers.
6. Putting some art works behind plexiglass.
7. Discouraging people from touching and handling objects.

The museums' battle against vandalism and theft was brought into sharp focus recently with the damaging of Michelangelo's sculpture of the Pieta in Rome and the theft of a Picasso, a Rembrandt, and two Gauguin paintings worth more than $1 million from the Worcester Art Museum in Massachusetts.

In question now is the whole concept of bringing art physically closer to the people.

The general tendency in recent years in the U.S. has been to popularize great art — to encourage people of all classes and education levels to make art a part of their everyday lives. Making art accessible to a broader spectrum of people has meant more vandalism and theft.

In some museums the tendency has been, figuratively and literally, to cut many of the red-velvet ropes that separate art and the viewer with the aim to have him "experience" art as intimately as possible.

Besides theft for profit, and damage by vandals and the mentally ill, the destruction of art in a few cases is believed by some museum officials to be a means of political or ideological protest.

And, too, some forms of modern art trigger violent reactions from some people.

The Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York even put up a barrier to keep the public away from a collection of Barnett Newman's coolly abstract, seemingly inoffensive paintings, some of which had previously been slashed in a Swiss exhibition.

Most officials will not discuss the details of their security systems, for obvious reasons, but here are some of their comments:

Adding more guards, said Guggenheim's director, Thomas Messer, is not necessarily the answer.

"If someone starts shooting it out," he said, "you cannot have an army with machine guns protecting art objects. Neither can you take the risk of guards shooting bystanders. These are horrid problems."

But in spite of the complexities, Messer said the Guggenheim is "at full security readiness, and we are tightening the screws."

Jeffrey Brown, curator of collections at the Indianapolis Museum of Art, reported that part of his institution's increased security program includes "just a little more careful screening and greater attention to the kinds of visitor flow that we have."

At the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, officials are experimenting with psychological methods to limit gallery thefts.

"Where things are placed has a lot to do with it," said special assistant to the museum director, Diggory Venn. "Basically, the larger the space, the less likely the theft will occur there. We want to remove the psychological feeling of safety in small spaces."

Venn also said that museum directors are installing more intense lighting systems in their galleries to discourage vandalism as well as theft.

How to pay for expensive, maximum security systems is also a problem for museums across the country.

The huge Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York with its labyrinth of galleries and rooms has already limited the public's access to some treasures.

"We're caught in the general financial pinch," said a spokesman for the Metropolitan.

"As salaries for guards go up, we can't hire as many as we used to. And we can't reduce the number of guards in a specific area. So we have had to close off some galleries on a rotating basis."

The Metropolitan doesn't feel that this is too much of a hardship on the public since the same galleries are not closed on consecutive days.

Other, smaller museums where the money squeeze is even tighter will have severe problems if the security risks increase.

Daniel Robbins, director of Harvard University's Fogg Museum, said that if that happens they may have to close one day a week to cover the cost of hiring another guard.

One expert who deplores making collections easily accessible is Prof. Caroline Keck of the State University of New York's graduate program for Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works in Cooperstown.

The attitude of some museum officials, she said, "is that everything has to be a 'happening,' which lets people touch, handle, and 'experience' art objects."

This, she said, leads to a casual attitude toward great works of art. "You can't expect things to last that way. We must realize that we're not the only ones who are going to enjoy the art. What right have we to expend it now?"

Many of the people working in museums today, she asserts, are so busy putting on the next show that they forget to question whether or not they are succeeding in their aims.

"Sure, this technique brings more people into museums, but I'm not sure the quantity is necessarily indicative of a greater effect on them. I don't think you get direct contact between an artifact and a person who doesn't know anything about it — except perhaps, one case out of a thousand."

Many museum directors and curators say their primary job is to save art for future generations.

The Guggenheim's Messer said that he does not think the situation will become desperate, but if it did "I think the ultimate conclusion would be to withdraw all public manifestations of art, which is a horrifying thought. But I would feel that preserving art comes first simply because there is no education without it . . ."

Arches Park Is Nation's Newest

By R. NORMAN MATHENY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

ARCHES NATIONAL PARK, Utah — Nobody knows exactly how many there are. The Park Service hesitantly says 89 — but that's not counting the little arches.

Whittled out of 150-million-year-old sandstone, the bizarre landscape of the Arches is the newest national park in the U.S. Dedicated May 13, it is the 38th area of natural resources to be so designated.

This part of Utah is desert land pocked with clumps of sagebrush, "black brush," juniper, and patches of prickly pear. When the sameness is first split by an arch and sun shines through where it shouldn't, you'll either search for an exclamation or just look up in awe.

If these arches had streams running through them, they would be "natural bridges." But they were sculpted by wind, rain, frost, and sun from a 300-foot layer of sandrock and now they're very dry.

"That's slick-rock," someone said in my group of visitors. "You'd know why if you got caught on it when it was damp."

But "damp" is something it doesn't get very often.

"Hasn't been any rain at all since last December," said Mitch Williams, our veteran guide. "Then we had one of our six-inch rains. You know, six inches between raindrops."

Mitch is the perfect guide — rich with anecdotes and facts. His father, Dr. John Williams, is considered the "father of the Arches," having pioneered in the quest for protection and proper recognition until the area was made a national monument in 1929.

No matter how many arches you see, you'll remain impressed by the dimensions: Skyline Arch, 138 feet wide; Landscape Arch, 291. Delicate Arch is 85 feet high, Double Arch is 157. Each is interesting in its own way, but toward the end of your tour you might not scramble up so fast to get closer.

Wait. A real thrill is still to come. The road — paved now, when before it was little more than a trail —rolls up from a gully, rounds a redstone bluff (just like 100 other redstone bluffs). And then you see it. Balanced Rock.

A better job of dramatic staging would be hard to imagine. Three thousand, five hundred and fifty-seven tons of redstone is perched at an odd angle, 128 feet on a pedestal away from all possible support. It can't stay up. . .but it does.

National Park System's 100th Year

By RALPH HUBLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Dedication of two new national parks in the U.S. highlights centennial observances of the National Park System being held throughout this year.

Capitol Reef in south-central Utah, dedicated April 7, and the Arches in eastern Utah, dedicated May 13, bring the total of national parks in the U.S. to 38.

The nearest town to Capitol Reef National Park is Torrey, Utah. The park is open year-round and derives its name from domes, towers, and pinnacles atop high sand tone cliffs stretching 20 miles across a vast scenic region. There are a visitors' center, guided tours, hiking, a museum, and campgrounds in this area of fantastic shapes carved by wind and water.

Arches National Park, the newest of the parks, is filled with natural rock "bridges," some nearly 300 feet wide. Its bizarre landscape, which according to the U.S. Park Service has 89 "big" arches — and many more smaller ones, is whittled out of 150-million-year-old sandstone in the desert area of eastern Utah.

Two other national parks are yet to be dedicated. Guadalupe Mountains National Park, Texas, was authorized in 1966 and opened to the public in 1970, but there has been little development. Overnight facilities are available at Carlsbad, N.M., about 50 miles away. Campgrounds are located in adjacent Lincoln National Forest. The most prominent feature of the park is El Capitan, a 1,000-foot cliff with Guadalupe Peak just north of it, the highest point in Texas.

Voyageurs National Park on the Minnesota-Canadian border was authorized as the 36th park but, because of land acquisition difficulties, it may be some time before it is dedicated.

Named in honor of the energetic French-Canadains who overcame enormous hardships in carrying on fur trade during the past two centureis, Voyageurs National Park covers 219,431 acres of excellent boating, fishing, and hiking areas. It's open only in the summer and has limited park facilities. The nearest town is International Falls, Minn.

Both the Arches and Capitol Reef previously were national monuments. To become a national park, many requirements must be met that may not be necessary for a monument. Only the Congress can authorize a national park. A monument can also be established by presidential proclamation and has national significance worth preserving whether for scientific, historic, or natural values. A national park is usually large and spacious, much of it primeval wilderness. The extent of use must be balanced judiciously to avoid marring or destroying its essential features. Some national monuments have been accepted with "diverse uses," such as mining and cattle grazing, which are forbidden in national parks.

President Nixon in proclaiming 1972 as National Park Centennial Year said: "In every time and season, our parks give us their joys and beauties. They have enriched the citizens of this land beyond measure and have inspired more than 100 nations to set aside over 1,200 national parks and reserves."

The Second World Conference on National Parks is scheduled to be held Sept. 18 in Grand Teton National Park because of the rundown conditions in Yellowstone, the granddaddy of all national parks, established by the Congress in 1872.

Still the largest national park, Yellowstone's major troubles at this time have come mostly from steadily increasing numbers of visitors. Thus the appropriateness of the official centennial year theme: "Parks, Man, and His Environment."

In setting up the National Park Service in 1916, Congress gave it a dual purpose which at times has seemed at odds: "To preserve for all time the natural wonders of the country in an undisturbed state and to make them available for the enjoyment of all the people."

With recent emphasis on ecology and conservation many groups of outdoorsmen are seeking to limit visitor facilities and urge more areas to be set aside out of reach of the public.

Besides the national parks, the park service administers more than 250 historical parks, monuments, military parks, battlefields, battlefield parks, battlefield sites, historic sites, memorials, cemeteries, seashores, parkways capital parks, the White House, recreation areas, lakeshores, scenic riverways, scenic trails, scientific reserves, and parts of international parks. The total area covers nearly 30 million acres.

In an extensive report last year to U.S. Secretary of Interior Rogers C.B. Morton, a citizens advisory board which had sent inspection teams to national parks, found a "high morale in the National Park Service and a sense of mission that would become any agency of government." However, it found staffing and funding so thin as to injure permanently the quality of the visitor experience.

The advisory board reported that its most important conclusion was in regard to funding: "For at least a decade the growth of the park system has far outpaced its funding. The deficiency of support has accumulated, year by year, to a degree that could be regarded as an emergency."

The report had high praise for park service staffs working under these difficulties. It said that many innovative ideas have been carried out successfully at visitors centers and where traffic conditions have been the biggest problem.

George B. Hartzong Jr., director of the National Park Service, points to the success of an experimental project at Yellowstone to broadcast information through car radios.

At the five entrances to Yellowstone are signs urging the motorist to tune his car radio to 650 to get information on entrance fee, where to park, and the state of accommodations.

Radio transmitters are also located at campgrounds, scenic overlooks, and developed areas giving warnings and other advice. There will be 33 transmitters in operation at Yellowstone this summer.

Jack N. Anderson, superintendent of Yellowstone, said: "On busy days, we can move cars through our entrances nearly twice as fost as we could before these transmittars were in operation.

"Where there are notable features within walking distance, we urge motorists to get out of their cars, stretch legs, and take a closer look at nature's beauty."

A few transmitters have been installed in other U.S. national parks and more have them on order.

In another recent development, the auto tape tour seems to have come into its own. Outside the entrances to Great Smoky, Glacier, Rocky Mountain, Grand Teton and Yosemite, the motorist can rent a lightweight tape player, prerecorded remarks, and a cord that plugs into the auto. The tours have been produced in close cooperation with the National Park Service.

Other centennial events planned by National Parks Systems of the U.S. this year include:

June 24 at Yellowstone: dedication of Old Faithful Visitors Center.

Aug. 1, at Cape Hatteras National Seashore, N.C.: commemoration of first national seashore.

Aug. 27 at Wolf Trap Farm Park for Performing Arts, Vienna, Va.: commemoration of first national cultural park.

Students To Study San Jacinto Fault

RIVERSIDE — The San Jacinto Fault System, perhaps the most active in Southern California, will be studied this summer by undergraduate students at the University of California, Riverside.

The student research team has been awarded $24,570 from the National Science Foundation, the second highest amount of funding granted this year by NSF in its special Student-Originated Studies Program. The NSF stipulates that the research be entirely originated and conducted by undergraduate students and that projects be multidisciplinary studies of problems related to the environment. The NSF funds will be augmented by an additional $1,500 from the UCR Department of Geological Sciences.

Fifteen UCR undergraduates will investigate the geological, sociological and economic aspects of the San Jacinto Fault in the project which will be conducted from June to September.

The researchers hope their work will provide knowledge which will help to minimize the human and financial loss in case of an earthquake and also assist in the proper future planning and development of the Riverside-San Bernardino area.

One of the primary purposes of the UCR student study will be to accurately map the fault. "This has never been done in detail," said Sieh.

The students, after compiling their survey findings, will evaluate current precautionary programs in this area.

"This is the first pre-quake survey of this type ever attempted," as nearly as we can tell," Fisher said. "There have been several post-quake surveys, but never one before the fact. (University of California News Service)

Tax Legislation Is No Bombshell

By RICHARD NENNEMAN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

The surprise Mills-Mansfield tax legislation is not as much of a bombshell as it looks at first glance.

The two Democratic lawmakers introduced a bill May 31 that would abolish tax preferences — the famous "loopholes" — in three annual steps, beginning Jan. 1, 1974. The preferences would not be cut in steps, but three packages of preferences, equal in number, would be tossed out come each New Year's Day.

Thus, in 1974 the percentage-depletion allowance for oil and gas would be thrown out. Come 1975, capital-gains treatment for lump-sum pension distributions would end. And in 1976, interest on state and local bonds would be taxable.

But wait a minute —is that what would really happen? Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, a shrewd politician and the committee chairman who has seen other tax-reform bills take shape under his guidance, doesn't have that in mind at all.

"It is expected that many of these terminations won't in fact be allowed to occur, but that, instead, the Congress will evaluate the provisions in the years ahead and provide for their continuation as they are or, if it is considered desirable, in a modified form," he said.

What the two Democrats are doing may be an end run around any tax-reform proposals the Nixon Administration may have up its sleeve. Or just possibly they are trying to save their own party's presidential candidates from embarrassment. The details of tax reforms are hardly a proper subject for debate in an election campaign. The erroneous impression is always left that by taxing business and the rich more, there is some bonanza waiting around the corner for the average taxpayer. There isn't.

Yet taxation does need to be fairer and, if possible, simpler. Most of the special provisions that we call loopholes were originally written into the tax code for some specific purpose. Just like government programs that are no longer needed, some of these loopholes could also be closed.

What the Mills-Mansfield bill would do is require that Congress look at all the major loopholes, not in isolation, but in conjunction with each other. If anything, it would be preferable to have them all studied at once. This, though, may not be feasible because of the time it takes. But by establishing cut-off dates for 18 provisions in each of three years, 18 of the so-called loopholes would at least be studied in the same year.

There have been ample studies that show the cost to the government of each loophole. It isn't always as clear what the benefit from the loophole is, nor is it clear how much economic behavior would deviate if the law was changed and thus throw off a priori calculations.

Along with a study of the economics of each loophole, there should be a determination of whether the social or economic purpose behind the tax preference was valid and, if it was, whether it still is. I, for one, would like to know just how much the mortgage-interest deduction has been a major reason the middle-class homeowner has bought a house instead of renting. Or how much it has indirectly helped the building industry. Or, if it was once a high priority to push out the boundaries of the American city and fill up the fields with single-family homes, how much have our perceived needs changed?

Perhaps before we can make the cities truly livable again, it needs to become a stated priority to make it harder to buy new single-family housing and easier to find good rental housing and even transportation in the cities. How we write the tax code will have a lot to say about our sense of priorities.

The danger, of course, in requiring that all the tax preferences be either reinstated by new legislation or else automatically terminate. is that a suddenly populist Congress might make some unwise economic decisions. But given the generally slow pace of change in the composition of Congress, at least at the committee-chairman level, and as long as Wilbur Mills is on the scene, this is a chance we can afford to take.

P.S. Mr. Mills: Would it also be possible to establish a cutoff date for all federal spending programs? You might not need so much in taxes if you had to reexamine all federal spending, say every five years.

$100,000 Trimmed From Record Total As Hearings Commence

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors hammered for eight hours yesterday on the county's proposed $47.4 million budget but succeeded only in inflicting a meager $100,000 dent.

"We didn't do too well," lamented Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste following the lengthy session which resumed today and will continue through next Friday.

In all, the $100,000 worth of cuts from the proposed budget for fiscal 1972-73 reduced the estimated tax rate of $2.765 per $100 assessed valuation by slightly more than 1 cent.

As in years past, the first day of deliberation was marked by pleas from taxpayers' groups that the budget — drafted by County Administrator John F. Barrows —be drastically reduced.

Supervisors responded with promises of "cutting the fat" from the document but by day's end found themselves blaming the state Legislature for "locking in" costly budget expenditures.

Some 13 sections —representing $5.5 million —of the budget were reviewed yesterday by the board which was short Supervisor John F. McInnis who is recovering from surgery.

The district attorney's proposal, which appeared as if it would spark some debate, was approved routinely after Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales withdrew his request for another deputy attorney.

"Keeping the taxpayers in mind," he told the board, "I'll defer my request for another attorney and struggle along with the staff I have now."

Bales proposal to add another member to his 15-member legal staff had drawn opposition from some who claim the closing of San Quentin Prison will reduce his workload.

Supervisors, in approving a reduced $672,076 spending program for the district attorney, also rejected a request for $2,400 to hire a law student-intern.

The board did approve, however, increasing the size of Bales's staff from 34 employees to 37 with the addition of two typists and an investigator.

About $21,000 of yesterday's $100,000 cut occurred when the board agreed arbitrarily to reduce office supplies by 5 per cent and employee convention expenses by 10 per cent in each department.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar urged a flat 10 per cent cut be made for all "service and supply" items in the budget since "that's the way industry does it."

"I know there is 10 per cent fat in this budget," he said, but failed to find support from his fellow supervisors.

(Service and supply items include not only convention and office supply costs but also such things as telephone bills, auto mileage, training, books and periodicals, outside equipment rental, etc.)

Other cuts from the budget included a $20,000 slash in the county's projected $130,000 postage bill for next fiscal year.

County Administrator Barrows explained the high figure was due to increased mailings from the planning department, among others, in notifying residents of rezonings in the county.

In cutting the postage allotment, the board advised Barrows to investigate paying third-class rates instead of first-class, as is now the practice.

Elsewhere, the board reduced the proposed $431,201 spending program of the superior court by about $20,000.

The $20,000 cut came in the court's request for $60,000 to pay attorneys for representing those unable to finance legal services.

Barrows, who noted that the county is one of the largest employers of local attorneys, said he is working with the county bar association to get special reduced rates but so far has made little progress.

The board rejected a request from the Sausalito School District for $64,000 to offset costs of educating 159 children from

Airliner Explodes Over South Vietnam, 81 Killed

U.S. and South Vietnamese aircraft joined in a large-scale search of the crash site, 30 miles south of Pleiku, and found six bodies before darkness curtailed rescue efforts. U.S. authorities said there was no chance of survivors being found.

The Convair 880 was en route from Singapore to Hong Kong via Bangkok when the explosion came. It was the second aircraft disaster in Asia within 24 hours. A Japan Air Line DC8 crashed while approaching the New Delhi airport Wednesday night, killing 87 persons, 16 of them Americans. (See story, picture page 2).

Military sources in Pleiku said two of the bodies were taken to the mortuary at Camp Holloway, the key American base in the Central Highlands, on the outskirts of Pleiku, and the rest were brought to a South Vietnam hospital in Pleiku, 230 miles north of Saigon.

One U.S. officer said no survivors were found and that none was expected to be found — "Nothing blows up at 26,000 feet and anyone lives."

One U.S. officer said the Cathay plane "broke up, blew up or was hit" over South Vietnam. The aircraft went down near a half mile high mountain used by North Vietnamese troops as a Central Highlands base area.

Cause of the explosion was a mystery. There was speculation it might have hit another plane, possibly a B52, which flies at that altitude. U.S. spokesmen said no American planes were missing but they did not say whether any were hit.

There was some speculation in Washington the airliner could even have been hit by a Communist SAM missile although no such missiles have previously been reported in the area.

A Cathay spokesman said today's crash occurred at about 2 p.m. Saigon time (2 a.m. EDT). He said the last radio message from the Convair was a routine voice reporting to Saigon Airport at 1:53 p.m. saying the plane was in a position in an air corridor near Pleiku codenamed "Papa Echo Five."

Military sources in Saigon said U.S. Army helicopter pilots flying over the scene of the crash identified the airliner, Cathay's flight CX700, by its tail number.

The airliner took on 36 passengers in Singapore, a Cathay spokesman in Hong Kong said, and another 35 boarded in Bangkok. Fifteen of the passengers were reported to be Japanese.

The Convair normally carries a crew of nine, the spokesman said, but today's flight had 11 crew members.

Jets Hit N. Vietnam Rail Span, Fuel Site

Navy Plane Down Near Tonkin Gulf

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. fighter-bombers swept into North Vietnam Wednesday, hitting a supply facility, a railroad bridge and blasting three fuel storage areas, military spokesmen said today. The attacks steered clear of Hanoi, where Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny began talks with North Vietnamese leaders.

U.S. command spokesmen said a carrier-based U.S. Navy A7 Corsair was shot down off the Gulf of Tonkin in one of the raids and the pilot was listed as missing. The spokesman said he believed the plane was downed by a surface-to-air (SAM) missile.

U.S. B52 bombers flew into North Vietnam for a record eighth consecutive day today. Their targets were Communist supply bunkers around Vinh and Dong Hoi in the panhandle area, a command spokesman said.

The air strikes set off a large secondary explosion at the Nam Dinh petroleum products storage area 40 miles southwest of Hanoi, spokesmen said. The planes swept close to Vinh, 164 miles south of the capital, where pilots reported their bombs caused three large fires at a tank farm and sent black smoke gushing 1,000 feet into the sky.

Carrier pilots of the U.S. 7th Fleet also hit a petroleum area just north of Thanh Hoa, 85 miles south of Hanoi, spokesmen said. During the 24-hour period ending at 5 p.m. Wednesday, they said, U.S. planes hit a troop and supply facility 33 miles northwest of Hanoi, a railroad bridge 38 miles away and the three petroleum storage areas.

In the ground war, South Vietnamese commanders today reported a new outbreak of heavy fighting between government rangers and North Vietnamese forces in the month-long struggle for the Central Highlands city of Kontum.

The U.S. Command said today six Americans were killed in action last week and 32 wounded. The previous week 11 U.S. soldiers were killed and 20 wounded. The Saigon command said 632 government soldiers were killed and 2,302 wounded last week and placed Communist casualties for the period at 3,719 dead.

Communist mortarmen fired a dozen rounds at the Marble Mountain Airfield in Da Nang shortly after midnight today, the command said. A small observation plane damaged in a similar barrage Saturday was hit again in the attack but there were no casualties, spokesmen said.

Brig. Gen. Ly Tong Ba, commander of the South Vietnamese 23rd Division guarding Kontum told UPI reporter Matt Franjola that the Communists

Zumwalt Chosen Watershed Chief

A 61-year-old Marin County naturalist and conservationist has been chosen to fill one of the Marin Municipal Water District's top managerial posts. (See other stories, page 8.)

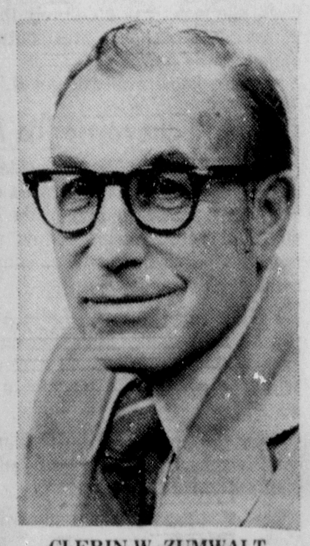
Clerin W. Zumwalt of Greenbrae, resident naturalist for the Audubon Canyon Ranch in Stinson Beach, was hired yesterday by the water district board as the district's manager of land management.

In the newly-created $20,000-a-year post Zumwalt, who was selected from a field of more than 300 applicants, will have charge of the district's watershed lands.

His duties will include directing environmental and land use planning and management of district horticultural and recreational programs and watershed patrol activities. He will also be responsibile for insuring that district property is kept aesthetically and recreationally attractive guaranteeing the security of the watershed and the pure water supply and working with community groups interested in land management.

Zumwalt holds a bachelor's degree in forestry (with a major in land management) from Colorado State University and was employed from 1935 to 1958 in various professional and managerial positions with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

In 1958 he was transferred to the U.S. Forest Service Regional Office in San Francisco where he worked as assistant chief of range and wildlife management programs in California until his retirement from government service in late 1966.



CLERIN W. ZUMWALT
New environment chief

From 1967 until the present, he has been employed with the Audubon Ranch and is currently vice president of the Marin Audubon Society.

The new water district land manager is a charter member of the Society of Range Management and a member of the Sierra Club and the Marin Conservation League.

He and his wife Alis reside at 73 Via La Cumbre. The couple has two grown sons.

Arms Pact Approval Urged By President

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon personally urged key members of Congress today to approve the arms limitation agreements with Russia by Sept. 1 so that a second round of negotiations could begin in October.

At the same time, Nixon told more than 120 senators and House members at a White House meeting that U. S. defenses must remain strong so that the Soviet Union would have reason to negotiate the more stringent arms control measures.

It was the first disclosure that the next round of arms negotiations was scheduled to begin in October. It will be aimed primarily at further limitations on offensive intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Nixon said he was "totally convinced" that the treaty limiting ABMs and the five-year interim agreement limiting offensive nuclear weapons was in the interest of national security and world peace.

But he urged the congressmen to make a "very searching inquiry because only in that way will you be convinced yourself and will the nation be convinced."

"What we are asking for is cooperation with, not just rubber stamping by, the House and Senate," Nixon said.

He characterized the accords signed last month during his summit meeting in Moscow as an agreement in which "both sides won and the whole world won."

Also urging approval of his defense budget, the President noted that the Soviet leaders had "made it absolutely clear that they're going forward with programs for offensive weapons not covered by the agreement."

He added that for "the United States not to go forwardwith its programs, or to reduce them, any incentive for the Soviet Union to negotiate a follow-on agreement would be removed."

"We need a credible defense posture so that the Soviet Union will have an incentive to negotiate a permanent offensive weapons freeze," Nixon commented.

Attending the unusual meeting were members of the Senate and House Arms Services Committees, the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Nixon opened it with a brief statement and then turned the session over to his national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, to explain details of the accords.

Kissinger told the legislators that the United States and the Soviet Union "are ideological adversaries and will remain so in the foreseeabte future." But he added, "we are compelled to co-exist because each has an arsenal that could wipe out the human race."

He said the arms agreement was "without precedent in the nuclear age and indeed without parallel in modern history. Never before have two so-called superpowers agreed to place

Lawmakers Toil To Pass Record Budget; Reagan May Make Cuts

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The legislature today raced the deadline for passage of a biggest-in-the-nation $7.959 billion state budget as Republican leaders warned that Gov. Ronald Reagan won't hestitate to chop it down with vetoes.

The compromise spending proposal for the new fiscal year starting July 1 surpassed New York's state budget of $7.908 billion for the first time in recent years.

Both houses of the legislature planned to debate the budget this afternoon. Deadline for passage is midnight and Reagan has 12 days after he receives it to sign it.

The Senate had planned to act on the massive bill, which includes $263 million in extra state support for schools, Wednesday afternoon.

But Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, the Senate sponsor, delayed the debate until completion of last-minute discussions with Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, the Assembly author.

Collier declined to disclose the nature of the hang up but other sources said it dealt with a possible mistake involving the salaries of University of California and state college employes.

Republican leaders Sen. Fred Marler Jr. of Redding and Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan of Tracy said a major source of concern for the GOP was the proposed commitment of $263 million for schools without at the same time coming to grips with the state Supreme Court's landmark school finance decision last year.

The court ruled the current school finance system unconstitutional, an action that will have the effect of shifting a major responsibility for support of education from local property taxes to statewide taxes.

Marler noted the school allotment consumed most of a forecast $458 million budget surplus next year and said that committing it now to schools without meeting the court decision "could put us right back in the deficit bag" and could trigger a tax increase.

Monagan noted there were "lots of items" which Reagan would reduce with his bluepencil veto power and Marle said the school funds were "something that the governor would look at."

Reagan has said he would support allocating $188 million in extra aid to local education, approximately $75 million less than the sum proposed by the compromise budget.

Asked whether Reagan would approve the full $263 million, state Finance Director Verne Orr replied, "I would be very surprised if the governor accepted all of it."

Meantime, a bipartisan group of 54 assemblymen calling themselves "Legislators for Educational Assistance Right Now" circulated petitons indicating they would not vote for the budget until Reagan assurred them the $263 million would remain in the spending program. It takes 54 votes in the Assembly to pass the budget.

Hanoi Off Limits To U. S. Bombers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States has temporarily suspended bombing strikes around Hanoi during the visit of Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny, informed U. S. officials said today.

Officials were hoping that Podgorny would be able to persuade Hanoi's leaders to take a more conciliatory line at the Paris peace table.

Bombing of the southern sector of North Vietnam apparently is continuing during Podgorny's visit

Michigan To Fight Detroit Bus Order

DETROIT (UPI) — The state of Michigan will go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court to halt a federal court-ordered busing program to integrate Detroit schools with those in the suburbs, Attorney General Frank J. Kelley said today.

U.S. District Judge Stephen J. Roth Wednesday ordered a nine-member panel to submit, within 45 days, a specific plan for carrying out an integration plan that would involve hundreds of thousands of students in the nation's largest school busing program.

Talks Open On Ending Hostility

BERLIN (UPI)—Representatives of East and West Germany met in East Berlin today in the opening round of talks aimed at ending 23 years of hostility.

The talks were expected by Western officials to end early next year with treaties regulating the ties between the two rival states and application for United Nations membership for both.

Western officials said the most difficult problem would be to find a compromise between the East German demand for full recognition by West Germany under international law and the West German insistence that both German states are part of one German nation.

Another problem was posed by the Western demand that the East-West German treaties confirm the responsibility for all of Germany of the victorious Big Four World War II powers.

A nine-man West German delegation and a six-man East German delegation began the talks in the East German cabinet office building in East Berlin.

The chief negotiators were West German State Secretary Egon Bahr and East German State Secretary Michael Kohl, who last month signed a treaty governing road, rail and canal traffic, the first treaty between the two German states.

The successful negotiations on the transport treaty, the West German nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland, and the Big Four agreement to lessen tension in Berlin cleared the way for the new round of talks.

Western officials said if the

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Martha: Kennedy's The Man

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell, who has recovered from a recent illness, is back on the political firing line again with the prediction that "Teddy Kennedy will get the Democratic presidential nomination."

Mitchell

In an interview yesterday, Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the former attorney general who now heads the Committee to Re-elect President Nixon, said that "regular Democrats can't tolerate" Sen. George S. McGovern.

"He's trying to make this country another Russia or China," she said.

Mrs. Mitchell said she has been receiving telephone calls from prominent Democrats — "the names I could give you would floor you" — who will not vote for McGovern.

As for Nixon, "he's going to win big," she said.

Like most prominent Republicans these days, she won't say absolutely that Spiro T. Agnew has the vice presidential nomination in the bag.

"I don't know who will get it."

Nixon, Echeverria To Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Presidents Nixon and Luis Echeverria Alvarea of Mexico begin the 22nd meeting of the heads of state of both nations today with an agenda that includes the subjects of trade and illegal drug traffic.

Echeverria, the fourth Latin American president to visit Washington during the Nixon administration, will arrive at the White House for the start of a six-day state visit to the United States.

After the first of two private meetings with Nixon, Echeverria will address a joint session of Congress.

The Mexican leader leaves for New York, Chicago, San Antonio, and Los Angeles on Saturday after two days in Washington.

Apollo 17 Systems Test

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— Apollo 17 astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. Schmitt put their command ship through an important systems test today in a vacuum chamber simulating the environment of space.

The three astronauts, scheduled for launch to the moon Dec. 6, boarded their command module at 8 a.m. EDT. They wore pressurized spacesuits.

The exercise was delayed a day when an unmanned test in the airless chamber turned up a faulty oxygen pressure sensor in the environmental control system. The device was replaced and the ship was reexamined briefly yesterday.

Fidel Hits U.S. 'Provocation'

BERLIN (UPI) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has accused the U.S. of using its Guantanamo naval base for subversive activity against Cuba, the East German press reported today.

Castro made the charge in a speech to guards who patrol the Berlin Wall to halt the flight of refugees. He praised the guards, saying they face the same imperialist enemy as Cubans.

"In our country there is a piece of territory that is occupied by the United States," he said in the speech Wednesday.

"The U.S.A. has a naval base there. This base is in Oriente province in the Guantanamo area. We also have a strong border brigade there.

"For years, we have learned there the methods and the provocations, the criminal acts of the imperialists, for the Americans always have used this area for subversive activity, for attacks.

"For this reason, we understand and value the service you are doing here."

More Quakes In Ancona

ANCONA, Italy (UPI) — Tens of thousands of persons spent the night in cars in the countryside today after Ancona's worst earthquake in a five-month series of temblors collapsed walls, damaged buildings and touched off a panicky exodus.

Police said one unidentified person died of a heart attack shortly after being taken to a hospital. They said several more were treated for shock or light injuries from falling masonry.

The central government in Rome, fearing possible further earthquakes, ordered police and firemen in the Marche region to converge on Ancona for relief work and put firemen in five other regions on standby alert.

Scientists said two shocks hit Ancona at 8:56 and 11:01 p.m. yesterday. They said the first measured between eight and nine on the 12-degree Mercali scale and 4.5 on the Richter scale. The second measured seven Mercali and four Richter degrees.

Poverty Head

VISALIA, Calif. (UPI)—The director of Tulare County's antipoverty agency has been charged with armed robbery.

Henry Borbon, 35, who spent 17 years in jail, was a controversial appointment to the community action agency in April 1971. Recently, he succeeded in beating an attempt to fire him because of alleged discrepancies in the agency's operations.

Wednesday Borbon was charged with the robbery of $172 from a fried chicken restaurant in Turlock in late May.

He was released on $5,000 bail.

Japanese Jet Crash Kills 87; Bomb Hint

JAITPUR, India (UPI)— Japan Airlines said today it had not ruled out the possibility of sabotage in the crash of a JAL jetliner that exploded as it approached Palam International Airport in New Delhi Wednesday night.

The crash killed 87 persons including two Indian laborers struck by the flaming wreckage on the ground.

Five persons including two sisters aged two and four survived the crash in this desert village 18 miles southeast of New Delhi.

Seventy of the 78 passengers and 11 crew members were not Japanese. Fifteen Americans were listed among the dead by JAL officials in Tokyo.

JAL sent a planeload of investigators from the airline and the Japanese Transportation Ministry from Tokyo along with doctors, nurses and lawyers in the inquiry into whether the jet was blown up with a bomb.

The airline said its offices in India and throughout the Middle East have received numerous bomb threats since the Lod Airport massacre in Israel in which three young Japanese terrorists opened fire in the airport terminal and killed 24 persons.

"We have alerted Indian authorities of the details of the Tel Aviv (Lod) incident," a JAL spokesman said. He said the airline had ordered more strict security precautions since the Israeli massacre. But he said the possibility of terrorism was not ruled out.

Witnesses said the plane exploded and burst into flames as it headed toward the airport, then hurtled into a dry river bed.

C.R. Rao, India's director of civil aviation, said the plane was in touch with the Palam control tower at 6,000 feet at a point 11 miles from landing and that the pilot was given permission to make an instrument landing. He said visibility was cut by dust and haze.

One of the survivors was Sophie Webber, 2, who kept moaning "Mommie! Mommie!" The child and her sister, Lucy, 4, told doctors at All India Institute of Medical Sciences they were on their way to London to visit their grandmother. Their mother died in the crash.

"People were still screaming when we arrived 20 minutes after it happened," said Police Deputy Inspector Amuychand Sharma. "The ambulances took 13 people away still alive. Some died on the way to hospitals."

Grotesquely contorted bodies sprawled over a half-mile area along the dry bed of the Jamnua River, many of the corpses covered with thick dust, prevalent over Northern India during the dry season.

Police said many of the gravely injured shouted for help, asking for water as they lay pinned in the wreckage in sweltering heat.

Among those on the passenger list were Dr. Matsuki Miyazaki, 72, sometimes called the Albert Schweitzer of Japan for his work among lepers; Canadian diplomat Wayne Hubble, 37, who was en route to New Delhi to marry his Canadian sweetheart heart, Brazilian actress Diniz Leila Roque.

Murder Contract Reported Out On Vegas Hotelman

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)— The underworld has put out a $2,000 murder contract on a hotelman indicted in a killing connected with the "hollow chip" gambling cheat ring, according to law enforcement sources.

The sources said the hotelman, John William Hicks, has been warned that he is the target of the contract.

The information came from agents of the Justice Department's organized crime task force in Los Angeles, where Hicks is reportedly staying, the sources said.

Hicks is one of two men indicted on charges of murder, attempted murder, conspiracy to commit murder and burglary in the death of Robert Lee Murphy, who was shot to death May 30.

Hicks, 28, is the son of the late Marion Hicks, who owned the Thunderbird Hotel on the Las Vegas strip more than a decade ago. Hicks has no interest in the Thunderbird but is involved in the operation of the Algiers Hotel next door.

Murphy was linked with the casino cheating ring when officers found a "hollow chip cup"—the device that is the key to the swindle.

Talent Agency Licenses Urged

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tighter licensing laws and stiffer penalties are needed to cope with the spread of phony talent agencies that prey on naive Hollywood hopefuls desperate for stardom, the Screen Actors Guild told a federal-state hearing Wednesday.

Actor John Gavin, president of the guild, said the spread of fly-by-night agencies had reached "epidemic proportions."

Gavin testified at the opening session of a hearing sponsored by the Federal Trade Commission and state authorities.

Clausen Introduces Reforestation Bill

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, has introduced legislation to establish incentives toward reforestation of private timber lands.

The house already has passed a Clausen measure that would finance reforestation in federal forests.

The new legislation would enable federal cost-sharing, limited to 50 per cent, with owners of small, nonindustrial forest lands and on nonfederal public forest property.

Missing Rapid City Flood List Is Sliced By 1,200

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI)— The list of missing Rapid City flood victims has been cut by more than 1,200 persons following marathon radio broadcasts, but the number unaccounted for remains staggering.

Officials said today that the original list had been reduced from 2,000 to 864 persons missing. Officials had said Wednesday the list was reduced to 800 persons, but after going over the computerized list they discovered in some cases entire families were listed under one name and revised the missing number to 864.

The official death toll—204—has not been changed, but UPI reporters saw at least five bodies pulled from debris Wednesday.

A Red Cross survey Wednesday showed 700 homes were destroyed in last weekend's flood, 1,724 others sustained major damage and 1,900 minor damage, 500 house trailers were destroyed and 150 small businesses were destroyed or damaged.

Cameron Ferweda, a forest service spokesman, said a number of campers were still stranded because of the flood, but were safe in areas south and west of the city.

A flying service will begin spraying 4,000 acres in the Rapid City area Friday to kill concentrations of house flies breeding in sewage-laden pools and prevent any outbreaks of disease, officials said.

Joseph Schtal, an official of the National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration, told the City Council Wednesday that officials were handicapped by a "very archiac" flood warning system when they sought to alert residents to the imminent disaster.

DDT Ban—Optimism And Pessimism

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The switch from now-outlawed DDT to other pesticides should be relatively easy because the transition has been going on for several years, spokesmen for environmental groups said today.

But the farm industry was less optimistic about both the cost and the side effects of DDT substitutes.

In banning DDT except for a few scattered uses Wednesday, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) said its chief substitute would be methyl parathion—a highly toxic chemical dangerous in the hands of untrained users. The EPA delayed the start of its ban until Dec. 31 so the government could extend its training programs on methyl parathion use.

But the Environmental Defense Fund, a party to the original 1970 court suit which ultimately brought about Wednesday's DDT ban, told UPI that methyl parathion has been used for some time with good safety results on cotton crops in California and Arizona—states where DDT already was banned.

It has an equally good safety record, the fund said, in Texas and Arkansas, states which do not recommend DDT use on cotton. And in other cotton areas methyl parathion has for some time been used in combination with DDT, also with relative safety.

In addition, it is far less toxic than its chemical cousin—ethyl parathion—a few drops of which can be fatal when absorbed through the skin. It was ethyl parathion which caused four deaths and 10 cases of illness in the tobacco fields of North Carolina and elsewhere in 1970 after DDT use on tobacco was banned.

DDT, attacked because it remains virulent for years and can be passed up the food chain from plant to animal to man, and even mother to child, declined in use from 79 million pounds in 1959 to 12 million in 1970. But 86 per cent of the remaining use has been on cotton.

James M. Brown of the National Cotton Council said the ban "will mean higher production costs and higher insect losses for cotton farmers. It's going to have a serious impact on cotton production," he added, especially in areas where the boll weevil is a problem.

And an American Farm Bureau Federation spokesman said the ban was adverse to the interests of not only cotton planters but all farmers and ranchers.

Methyl parathion, when properly applied, is highly effective and degrades rapidly, disappearing from the soil in a matter of days. But this very attribute may require more frequent treatments, thereby increasing costs. And some Agriculture Department researchers believe it may kill beneficial insects which normally feed on the boll weevil and other cotton pests.

While the ban does not cover DDT exports—or domestic public health uses—some experts have expressed concern the ban might cause some less developed nations to follow suit, perhaps endangering malarial and other disease control projects.

Nor is the DDT case completely closed at home. The ban has been appealed in court.

Pesticide Ban Could Push Prices Higher

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—One of the first effects of the federal government's ban on DDT may be higher prices for some farm products.

Pesticides to replace the all-purpose DDT cost more, and the higher costs probably will be passed on to consumers, according to agricultural officials in California, the nation's leading farm state.

Among the hardest hit will be the citrus industry, officials said Wednesday. Alternatives to DDT already have been found for a majority of other farm products because of growing criticism of DDT in recent years.

"The citrus industry won't be happy with it," said John Hillis, chief of the agricultural chemicals unit of the state Department of Agriculture. "They'd like to have it on the shelf in case of emergencies."

The University of California, he said, is not expected to have a substitute for DDT for the state's $217 million citrus industry for close to another year. The DDT ban goes into effect Dec. 31.

Dr. John E. Swift, an entomologist at the University of California, said substitute pesticides have been developed for all crops except for citrus, alfalfa seed, peppers and onions.

"The substitutes are mostly phosphates," Swift said. "They are more toxic than DDT and must be used more carefully. One of the reasons for the increased cost is that they do not have the longevity of DDT and therefore must be applied more often."

In Fresno County, which for more than 20 years has topped the nation in farm income, a spokesman for the agricultural commissioner's office said the big impact would be on seed alfalfa.

"The job of finding substitutes is between 90 and 95 per cent done already," said O. W. Fillerup, executive vice president of the 20,000-member Council of California Growers.

Terra Linda Chief's Home Is Firebombed

Two molotov cocktails were thrown last night at the home of George A. Walser, Terra Linda's fire chief and public safety officer.

Walser, who wasn't home at the time of the bombing at 11:03 p.m., said one of the missiles landed in the front side yard and caused a minor fire in a planter. The other landed in the driveway.

It was the second fire bombing aimed at Walser in the past 13 months. A molotov cocktail was thrown at his car in the carport of his home, 557 Whitewood Drive, on May 8, 1971.

Walser said some of the contents of the fire bombs landed on the roof of his home and on top of the Terra Linda Community Services Districtcar, causing $60 damage to the car and minor damage to the roof of his home.

He said the bombs consisted of a substance that appeared to be kerosene or coal oil in a quart-sized beer bottle with a wick.

The minor fire was spotted by a neighbor at 564 Whitewood Drive, and the Terra Linda Fire Department put it out, Chief Walser said.

Chief Walser, who has the power to make arrests, described himself as "the cop for the area." Marin County sheriff's deputies are investigating the fire bombing.

Lieutenant Promoted By Fire Chief

The 34-year-old Quayle has been a Sausalito fireman since 1965 and has served as lieutenant since March 1967.

He holds an associate of science degree in fire science from the College of Marin and a special lifetime community college teaching credential.

Chief Halon said Quayle's duties in the $1,143 a month post will include assuming of the chief in his absence, directing the firefighting force, making work assignments and developing and supervising training and fire prevention programs.

The new assistant chief will also serve as the city's fire marshall, Halon said.

Quayle is past president of the Marin County Fire Training Officers Association and a member of the Marin County Fire Prevention Officers Association, the Northern California Training Officers Association and the Northern California Fire Investigators Association.

He and his wife Barbara have four children and live in Mill Valley at 28 Vasco Drive.

BUDGET

low-income families living in federal housing at Marin City.

The county clerk's budget, meanwhile, was slashed from $453,764 to $424,121 and requests for two new employees denied. The clerk's spending program t. is year totaled $384,570.

The administrator's proposal for the municipal court was cut $8,000 to $920,000, which is still $100,000 more than this year.

Also left virtually untouched were the public defender's request of $330,000 (up $30,000 from this year), the Louise A. Boyd Museum's request of $14,000 (up $1,500), the county assessor's request of $1,076,000 (up $100,000), communications' request of $506,000 (up $110,000) and the grand jury's request of $30,000 (up $10,000).

Hall of Justice and library bond payments totaling about $650,000 were also approved.

Pilot Blamed In Star's Death

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Transportation Safety Board has blamed poor weather conditions in which the pilot should not have been flying for the crash which killed war hero-movie star Audie Murphy and five other persons.

The crash occurred May 28, 1971 near Roanoke, Va.

The board, in a report issued Wednesday, said the crash apparently was caused by "the pilot's attempt to continue visual flight into adverse weather conditions at an altitude too low to clear the mountainous terrain." It said there was no evidence the airplane failed or malfunctioned.

Terminal Plan Due

Sonoma Sees Budget As Conservative

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A $61.8 million budget, reflecting a decrease in welfare costs for the first time in 20 years, was proposed yesterday to run Sonoma County government for 1972-73.

The spending program, offered to the board of supervisors by County Administrator David G. Nichols, is up $3.8 million over the present fiscal year. Still, Nichols termed it the most conservative budget in years.

The administrator said $1.3 million of the increase is for road projects supported by federal and state funds, not local property taxes.

The welfare budget is down $700,000 to $21.27 million.

Nichols said he slashed county staff spending requests by nearly $5 million. The budget recommends adding nine new employees, smallest increase in a decade.

County

pact of the budget on the county tax rate is not yet known due to uncertainty as to assessed valuation.

The board of supervisors began review of budget today.

Weapon Threat Charges Killed

Assault charges against two central Marin men have been dismissed for lack of evidence by a Marin Municipal Court judge.

Judge David R. Baty dismissed one assault with a deadly weapon count against Joseph Ray De Costa, 22, of San Rafael and two against Keith Norval Caslake, 28, of Fairfax, but gave the district attorney until Tuesday to file a misdemeanor charge of exhibiting a gun against Caslake.

Fairfax police arrested the two May 22 after they allegedly burst into the bedroom of Caslake's former girl friend and threatened her.

Dog Match Set At High School

Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club will sponsor a dog match at Marin Catholic High School from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, according to Mrs. Judy Beaton, match chairman, of 16 Tampa Drive, Novato.

There are 800 entries for the match which will include confirmation, obedience and junior handlers. There will be no licensed handlers unless they show their own dogs.

The Kennel Club also will sponsor a dog show at Peacock Gap on Saturday with more than 2,400 entries.

TALKS

talks were successful they could result in an exchange of East-West German diplomatic missions, a third summit meeting between West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and East German Premier Willi Stoph, and United Nations membership for the two German states.

Bahr and Kohl described the opening talks as an "exchange of opinions on the normalization of relations."

"The talks will be difficult," Bahr said. "Problems can arise from the complicated legal situation and the emotions surrounding the division of Germany."

Sonoma Has Nod To Quit Bay Agency

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The State Council on Intergovernmental Relations, reversing an earlier decision, said yesterday Sonoma County could join a regional government of North Coast counties.

The vote of 10-8 paved the way for withdrawal of the county from the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Although the council had rejected the county's request in December by a 5-4 vote, it granted a rehearing yesterday at the reported urging of Sen. Randolph L. Collier, D-Yreka, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

Collier has been a supporter of a north coast regional alliance of Sonoma, Napa, Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties that would clear federal and state grants and perform area planning functions.

At least seven members of the council were absent at yesterday's session and voted by telegram or letter, bringing objections from Joseph Bort, a newly appointed council member and an ABAG official, according to an ABAG spokesman, Lizette Weiss.

Sonoma voters approved withdrawal from ABAG in 1971, but opposition to joining the North Coast group has continued, particularly among city officials.

At yesterday's hearing, Supervisor Robert Theiller and Petaluma City Councilman Robert E. Daly were among those who spoke in favor of the change, while Mayor Helen Putnam of Petaluma and Burdette A. Shannon, city chamber of commerce manager, favored the county staying in ABAG.

The council had received a staff report in December which said the county's economic interest lay in the San Francisco-Marin area, that up to 55,000 cars traveled daily between Santa Rosa and San Francisco-San Rafael and that Sonoma County is in the San Francisco air basin.

Proponents of the switch feared domination by more populous counties if Sonoma stayed in ABAG, while ABAG supporters wondered about erosion of a local voice in a North Coast agency and about certification of such a body to funnel federal and state aid.

Petaluma Auction To Help Schools

A sketch by cartoonist Charles Schulz, use of a Lake Tahoe condominium for a weekend and various art objects will be on the auction block at 7:30 p.m. today at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building.

The event is sponsored by the Save Our Schools Committee, seeking to raise $34,000 to keep six of Petaluma's elementary schools off double sessions in the fall and prevent closing of the seventh.

Other donated items to be auctioned include a lamb, a gourmet dinner for eight persons, a personal development program, a plumber's services for a day and a Polynesian-made bikini. Value of the items ranges from $2 to $400.

Weatherman Plot Probe Is Revived

(Former Novato resident, Karen Duncan, 25, who now lives in Venice, Los Angeles County, has been held in contempt for refusing to testify before the grand jury but she is free while her citation is on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.)

While all sessions were senret and Goodwin refused comment, it was believed that the government is anxious to place as much of the Weatherman case before the jury as possible before the panel finishes ts 18-month term later this month.

At least four witnesses were called before the jury Wednesday by Goodwin.

The investigation was started in October, 1970 by a previous federal grand jury here and it appears the case will go on at least through the rest of 1972.

The first grand jury issued the only indictments to come out of the probe so far.

Indicted were John A. Fuerst, 24, Oakland, Calif.; Robert Smith, age and address unknown, and a third person whose identity is being kept secret by the government. All three remained at large.

The indictment charges that Fuerst and David A. Scheffler, 24, Venice, Calif., drove from California here in May of 1970 to purchase explosives.

It charged that Fuerst bought 120 sticks of dynamite, 30 electrical blasting caps, 20 fuse caps and 50-feet of fuse, all without registration and then transported it back to Venice to be used by a Weatherman group.

CYA Sentence On Armed Robbery Count

Charles Anthony Henry, 19, of Marin City was sentenced yesterday to the California Youth Authority for the armed robbery of a San Rafael couple at their home.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court imposed the sentence as part of a plea bargain that he had refused to follow the day before because of an unflattering probation report.

The probation report said Henry was enrolled in an ethnic minority program at the College of Marin that paid him $120 toward school expenses, but he spent most of his time "jiving around and playing pool in Marin City."

Henry had previously been committed to the youth authority in 1966-67 and 1969-70 and the district attorney recommended he be committed to prison.

Henry is one of four persons linked to the robbery Oct. 29 when John David Mackie and Sandra Ann Pazamickas were bound and gagged and robbed of $600 in possessions and cash, according to San Rafael police.

Ernest Barrow Biard, 18, a second defendant in the case, to be sentenced July 24, pleaded guilty to the armed robbery Tuesday on condition he be given a state prison sentence concurrent with one he is already serving for a San Francisco conviction.

A third man, George Gregory Watts, 18, of San Francisco is awaiting trial and the fourth man is still being sought.

have lost 5,000 men killed in trying to capture the city.

Ba said he had 500 troops killed and 1,500 wounded in the fighting for Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon.

The latest fighting around the Central Highlands city began early Wednesday when North Vietnamese artillery rained mortar and recoilless rifle fire on South Vietnamese Rangers near Artillery Base 41 on Highway 14 between Kontum and Pleiku. They followed with a ground attack. Field reports said 50 South Vietnamese were wounded.

A short time later a Ranger element clashed with North Vietnamese forces a mile to the southwest and killed 63 Communists with artillery and air support.

Ba, promoted to general from colonel by President Nguyen Van Thieu during the siege of Kontum, had said earlier he was confident the Communists would be stopped.

"Suicide units are staying around but that is all that is left," he said.

A U.S. adviser said, "the weapons lost alone and the coming rainy season will prevent the enemy from launching an attack."

10 Marinites Get Degrees At UOP

Both residents and nonresidents may participate in activites that range from a tiny tot program to dog training and baton classes, she said.

He said that recognition of the ability of both sides to inflict devastation on the other had led to a recognition of the need for a "sane nuclear policy."

Kissinger commented it was also recognized by both governments that there was a need to recognize an equilibrium of power had "a certain validity" rather than to have the two each vying for an advantage over the other.

"Anyone who contemplates a rupture of the agreement must face the fact that he will put into jeopardy not only the agreement but a broad political association," the presidential adviser remarked.

Tiburon Fire Budget Set; Tax Rate Cut

The Tiburon Fire Protection District board last night adopted a 1972-73 budget of more than $285,000 which will permit a 12-cent drop in the tax rate.

According to board secretary Wellman H. Topham, the $285,258 budget is more than $3,000 higher than this year's budget, but the tax rate will drop from 87 cents to 75 cents per $100 of assessed value.

The salaries of 12 district employees account for the largest portion of the budget, $203,000. Employees will receive salary hikes of about 8.5 per cent, said Topham.

Maintenance of fire equipment at $32,000 and operating reserves at about $25,000 are also included in the budtet.

The district has budgeted $24,000 for capital outlay, including payments on fire trucks, a down payment on a new fire truck, and payments on portable radios, new fire hydrants and other miscellaneous items.

Topham explained that the fire board expects to train and possibly recruit the two apprentices as permanent employees in the future.

Del Mar Sets Graduation

Diplomas will be handed to 153 eighth grade graduates of the Del Mar School in Tiburon at commencement exercises at 4 p.m. today.

Melanie Hess and Craig Upton, two eighth grade students, will present graduation addresses.

The class will be formally presented by Reed School District Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello, school board chairman John J. Osborn and school board vice chairman Margaret Jones.

Friend Of Animals Is Dead At 53

Margaret Y. Goodyear, of Mill Valley, a dedicated friend and protector of animals, died yesterday at her home after a long illness. She was 53.

A native of Alberta, Canada, she moved to Mill Valley at the age of 5 and lived here 24 years before moving to Vineburg, in Sonoma County where she remained 14 years. She returned to Mill Valley in 1961 and resided at 28 LaVerne Avenue.

Mrs. Goodyear's home was always open to lost or unwanted animals and she either kept the strays people brought her or found homes for them. Her concern for the increasing number of unwanted cats and dogs resulted in her founding Animal Lovers of Marin, an organization which worked to establish a clinic where neutering could be done free or for a minimal fee.

Her husband, Donovan G. Goodyear, was killed in action in World War II.

Mrs. Goodyear is survived by her mother, Anne Groll and a sister, Helen G. Benson, both of Mill Valley.

Private funeral was held yesterday in Mill Valley.

JOSEPH CARANDO

Masonic funeral service for Joseph P. Carando, father of Charlotte O'Dell of San Rafael, will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Carando died Tuesday in a local hospital after a brief illness, at the age of 83.

He was a native of Italy and a longtime resident of Stockton, where he founded the Carando Machine Works. He also operated a large ranch near Winters, Yolo County. He was a member of Buckeye Lodge No. 83, Free and Accepted Masons, in Winters.

Carando is survived by his wife, Dina, his daughter, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be under the auspices of San Rafael Lodge No. 191, F and AM. Burial will follow in St. Helena Cemetery.

J. GIZZI

Funeral was held today in Menlo Park for John Gizzi, father of Gino S. Gizzi of San Anselmo.

He died Tuesday at the age of 83 in a Menlo Park convalescent home after a long illness.

Gizzi was a native of Rome, Italy. He came to California 65 years ago and had lived in Menlo Park for 30 years. He was a retired gardener.

Gizzi was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters.

He is survived by his wife, Emily, of Menlo Park, his son in San Anselmo and a daughter, Nellie McLaughlin of Menlo Park. He also is survived by two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

MRS. RITCHIE

Funeral for Mary C. Ritchie, a substitute teacher in Marin County schools, will be held at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Community Congregational Church, 145 Rock Hill Drive in Tiburon.

Mrs. Ritchie died Tuesday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 72.

She was born in Vacaville and lived in Marin County for the past 10 years. She resided at 965 Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur.

She was a member of the American Association of University Women.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Albert Good of Bakersfield and Mrs. George R. Lum of Colorado Springs, Colo., and a brother, Ernest S. Chase, of Altadena, Los Angeles County.

Burial will be at El Mira Cemetery, Vacaville.

Downtown Facelifting Talk Slated

Attorney Steven Goldfarb, San Rafael's redevelopment consultant, will discuss the various possibilities for revitalizing San Rafael's downtown area at the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, 824 Fifth Avenue, at noon tomorrow.

A delegation of city staff and councilmen will attend the public event.

The city council last April established itself as a redevelopment agency with the aim of revitalizing the city's commercial areas.

Tomorrow's luncheon meeting marks the first step in involving residents in the redevelopment program, according to William J. Bielser, assistant city manager.

Daley Delegate Idea Challenged

CHICAGO (UPI)—The legal counsel for the Democratic National Committee has ruled that Mayor Richard J. Daley's plan to double the number of at-large delegates from Illinois violates party rules.

Joseph Califano, counsel for the committee, said in an opinion Wednesday that the 1972 Democratic National Convention rules "clearly provide that the maximum number of delegates allowed the state of Illinois shall be 170."

He said Daley's move to double the number of at-large delegates from 10 to 20 and give each at-large delegate 1-2 vote violated the rules. Consequently, he said, the Illinois delegation as it stands (at 180) cannot be certified at the July convention.

Pacheco Plan Delayed By Absentees

With three commissioners absent, the Novato Planning Commission last night postponed further discussion on the master plan for the Pacheco Ranch, south of the city and west of Highway 101 until June 26.

Commissioners approved the concept of the plan Monday night and were scheduled to set conditions on their approval last night.

The master plan by Perl Mack Enterpries calls for 400 townhouses and 300 apartment units, office and commercial areas, and 384 acres of open space on 519 acres.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

HANNA RANCH — Granted a permit for filling of 62 acres of the Hannah ranch east of Highway 101 and north of Highway 37, with the area to be filled by Freeman-Sondgroth Co. of Mountain View, which is working on the Highway 101 bypass project.

PREZONING — Approved prezoning of 88 acres northeast of H Lane from limited agriculture to limited agriculture with lot sizes of one acre, 20,000 square feet and 10,000 square feet, as requested by Western Gold Real Estate Co. The prezoning was opposed by the Black Point Improvement Club, which opposed higher density in the area.

CROSSROADS — Approved precise plans for the second phase of the McKeon Co. development northwest of highways 101 and 37, consisting of 182 townhouse units.

Lockers Looted

Clothing valued at $150 was taken yesterday from the Racquet Club locker room, 95 Racquet Club Drive, San Rafael, Richard H. Trapnell of 71 Ridge- crest Road, Kentfield, told police.

Larkspur Landmark Restaurant Endorsed

Plans to turn the historic brick-kiln on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near the Hutchison rock quarry east of Highway 101 into a restaurant got the nod last night from Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission.

Built in 1880, the Remillard brickworks are a familiar sight on the San Quentin peninsula.

The commission was required to review the proposed development by Robert H. Lee and Associates of San Francisco because the brick-kiln is designated a historic landmark in the city's master plan.

Recreation Director Harlan Barry said today the commission decided to recommend to the planning commission that a use permit for the development be granted.

The recommendation was subject to two conditions:1. In addition to the restaurant operation the kiln should be reasonably made available to public groups, especially school children, for tours, and 2.

The restaurant project developers are headed by Robert H. Lee, who is a Larkspur city councilman.

The commission's recommendation will be considered by the Larkspur Planning Commission at its June 27 meeting.

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission also:

BOND ISSUE — Deferred for one ear any action on a bond issue to fund area improvements, after discussing the feasibility of such a measure.

BIKE TRAIL — Requested the city council to authorize $2,000 for installation of a bicycle trail on the western side of Magnolia Avenue.

CORTE MADERA CREEK — Recommended the city council support Senate Bill 793 which would extend the Bay Consercation and Development Commission's jurisdiction up the Corte Madera Creek.

NORTH RIDGE — Recommended the city council allow building of three new homes in the North Ridge area after reviewing two proposed locations in the Madrone Woodland subdivision and one on Sunrise Lane; commissioners decided their construction would not pose a threat to the proposed North Ridge open space acquisition.

Official Status Urged For City's Panel On Rights

The Mill Valley Human Rights Mini Board has come up with a package of recommendations that would transform the informal board into a formal city commission.

According to board chairman William Broderick, the set of recommendations has been submitted to Councilman Gerald J. Hood, who serves as executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

Hood will pass along the suggestions to the full city council.

The human rights mini board Tuesday recommended that terms of office for its members be formally set at two years, rather than the current indefinite terms.

The commission also asked the council to establish residency requirements for members of the board.

The suggested changes, if adopted, would convert the mini board into a full-fledged commission in the city, subject to all the rules and regulations of other commissions, Broderick said.

French Coolly Endorses Boas

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Alan D. French, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Sixth Congressional District, yesterday begrudgingly endorsed the man who defeated him, San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas.

French, in a letter to Boas, said: "You have my endorsement pro forma, of course. And for a long and successful campaign against (Rep. William S.) Mailliard, you have my best wishes."

French, a 25-year-old Army veteran, acknowledged today to the Independent-Journal that his endorsement was "not enthusiastic." He said that he and Boas were "different kinds of Democrats, but we have more in common than with Mailliard."

'Defamed' Magee Sues: $100,000

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Ruchell Magee, 33, a convict who was charged with Angela Davis for the Marin County Civic Center shootings, is suing for $100,000 on grounds he was defamed by published reports of his IQ.

Magee named as defendants Wednesday in his Superior Court libel suit the Chronicle Publishing Co.; James Brewer, the Chronicle's Marin County correspondent; Jean LeVann, the records officer at San Quentin Prison, and Assistant Attorney General Albert Harris Jr.

Magee charged that the defendants conspired to "libel and defame" him by introducing into court "false and fraudulent" documents about his IQ and then causing the documents to be published.

He also said he was denied his rights to a fair trial and freedom of speech because of an "unconstitutional gag rule" imposed after the August 1970 gun battle in which four persons, including a judge, died.

The "gag rule" prohibited anyone connected with the case to discuss it publicly.

As a result, the convict said, he has been unable to refute and answer the "false and libelous" statements made against him.

In December 1970 the Chronicle reported that Magee had been judged incompetent to defend himself after the prosecution introduced evidence his IQ was 75 as measured in a Louisiana prison in 1956 and that he had dropped out of the fifth grade at the San Quentin Prison school in 1964.

The issue came up in court during Magee's pretrial proceedings in San Rafael while he was seeking the right to defend himself.

Lead Trap Seen For Car Exhaust

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A new device to trap lead before it comes out the tailpipe of a motor vehicle may be the answer to reducing concentrations of the poisonous pollution, Bay Area smog officials said yesterday.

Preliminary estimates put the cost of the device at only $10 above the regular muffler replacement cost, according to Milton Feldstein, director of technical services for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

District directors, frustrated by failure of the state and federal government to clamp down on lead pollution, have been seeking a way to act themselves on the problem. They had been working toward controls on the lead content of fuels, but yesterday learned a similar ordinance in Orange County lost its first court test.

The Orange County Superior Court found that the county did not have the right to act, ruling that only the state could regulate fuel content. The county has appealed to the District Court of Appeal.

Feldstein acknowledged that an exhaust lead trap also would require state action because the Bay Area district is precluded from regulating motor vehicles emissions.

He noted that the Orange County court test had been filed against the county by the Western Oil and Gas Association.

His report on the Orange County legal test discouraged district directors from acting further on a similar local control until the appeal is settled.

More than 99 per cent of atmospheric lead comes out of tailpipes of motor vehicles, Feldstein said.

Lead concentrations at nine sites throughout the region varied widely, according to 1970 data he presented. As measured at the district's downtown San Rafael air quality monitoring station, Marin's concentrations exceeded the state standard only during November of that year.

The standard is 1.5 micrograms per cubic liter averaged over 30 days. The San Rafael average for that month was 1.7.

Readings elsewhere in the region ranged up to more than 4, a level Feldstein said could be cut back to the standard only by cutting automotive lead emissions by about 65 per cent.

Feldstein cautioned that cutting lead out of fuels requires increased use of aromatics to maintain octane levels still needed by most cars on the road. Aromatics, in turn, increase the potential for smog, he said. The lead traps now are being tested, he said.

The automotive industry's hope for successful development of a catalytic converter to catch other tailpipe pollutants "still is in doubt," Feldstein reported.

Director Wyman Hicks of Sausalito commented that lead manufacturers have a vested interest in developing lead traps. There is no counter lobby with a commercial vested interest in removing lead from fuels, Hicks said.

Mill Valley Budget Up After Study

The Mill Valley City Council — in its first formal review of the city's proposed 1972-73 $2.3 million budget — made tentative changes that would increase the spending program by about $12,000.

The council Tuesday night added one police patrolman and one fireman for a total cost of about $25,000. The new positions were requested by Police Chief Dan Terzich and Fire Chief Joseph Regalia.

Both chiefs urged the council to augment their staffs due to increased population in Mill Valley and a greater demand for their department's service.

According to City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, the fire chief reminded the city council that his department's budget had never kept pace with the growth in other city department budgets.

The council also added $3,200 to the fire protection budget to purchase additional fireproof safety clothing.

The council then slashed more than $15,000 from the debt service budget by delaying one-half of the proposed interest and principle payments on the city's planned fire station bonds.

The city has not yet issued any fire station bonds which were approved in the $275,000 bond election in April.

Cunningham explained the city was postponing one-half of the proposed payments on the bonds until they were issued and sold.

The council also cut its own travel allowance in half, from $1,500 to $750. According to Cunningham, the council agreed that the city would save money because fewer city officials will attend the League of California Cities convention.

The proposed spending programs for animal control, civil defense, city clerk and city attorney were approved by the council without change.

Sculptures Stolen From County Office

Five sculptures by Nelson P. Crutchfield of Mill Valley were stolen from the office of the Marin County Housing Authority in Marin City prior to Friday, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

The works, some of which were two feet tall, were valued at $900, deputies said.

Court Upholds Cambodia Vote

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodia's newly-created constitutional court announced today it had approved the results of the country's first presidential election despite some irregularities and declared incumbent President Lon Nol officially elected.

The announcement, read over national radio, said Lon Nol gained 578,203 votes out of a total 1,059,505 ballots cast, giving him 20,083 more votes than his closest runner-up, former constituent assembly chairman In Tam.

In Tam had filed complaints of manipulation of votes and duress against electors with the court.

Information Minister Long Boret said the six-man court decision was unanimous.

Liquor Store Robber Killed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An armed robber was shot and killed Wednesday by a liquor store clerk.

Police said the unidentified man entered the liquor store, drew a revolver and demanded money from clerk Harold Wilson, 33.

After getting $140 from the cash register, the man started to leave, shielding himself behind a customer who was walking into the store.

But the customer kept walking and Wilson, having a clear shot at the robber, pulled a pistol from beneath the counter

Smog Cases Accumulate; No Attorney

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — An unprecedented crackdown on air polluters has been launched by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District at the same time it is without a full-time legal officer to prosecute the flood of cases.

The district's counsel, Matthew S. Walker, resigned as of last week to take a federal pollution control job after an eight-month fight by the district's top administrator to have him fired. Walker had charged the administrator, D. J. Callaghan, with coddling polluters.

The huge jump in enforcement appeared in staff reports at yesterday's monthly board meeting. They showed that 246 violation notices had been issued during May, up more than 130 per cent over May the preceding year. This brought the total number for the year by the end of May to 884, compared to 580 by the same date in 1971.

CASES PENDING

In addition, 79 new cases were referred to the legal division for prosecution during the month. The division had 61 cases pending in addition to the 79 new ones.

Thomas Brennan, deputy director for enforcement, told newsmen the crackdown was because he now has more inspectors and because regulations have been toughened.

The logjam of cases apparently will be left to grow until Walker can be replaced, a step district directors postponed until after completion in August of a management study.

They voted instead to hire a part-time interim attorney with no experience in air pollution law. Robert T. Anderson, 55, of Oakland, was hired to fill in for $50 an hour.

MARIN CITATIONS

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort, a former Berkeley city councilman and a member of the smog board, had suggested Anderson be hired.

Violation notices issued during May included five in Marin: McPhail's Inc., San Rafael; Mrs. Robert Farley of Nicasio; Guasco Market, San Anselmo, and G. L. Millin and Allan Morgan of Mill Valley.

Violation notices were issued in Southern Sonoma against the Pioneer Shell Co., Pacific Growers and Mrs. Erma Vinson, all of Petaluma, and Richard J. Fink of Cotati.

Nixon Aide Blasts Demos' Criticisms

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI)—Presidential aide Harry Dent said Wednesday Democratic candidates who criticize President Nixon's handling of the Vietnam War "are staining the honor of our nation."

Nixon has done much for world peace "in the toughest of circumstance," Dent told a meeting of the Georgia Association of Broadcasters.

Air Watchdogs Split On Key Hearing Job

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A bitter fight among Bay Area smog officials has erupted over a key appointment.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District officials, split by dissention for eight months in fights over their legal officer and top administrator, now are worrying the issue of a vacancy on the district's powerful hearing board.

The term of longtime chairman J. Joseph Sullivan of San Francisco expired Monday. The top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, reportedly strongly backs Sullivan's reappointment.

Callaghan's opponents on the board and in the public, however, want Sullivan replaced, arguing he has been too closely allied with Callaghan in the bitter fight over the district's former counsel, Matthew S. Walker.

A special meeting on the matter was set for June 29.

Another closed session of board members was held yesterday after the regular meeting to interview candidates for the chairmanship of the three-member board.

At least four others are competing with Sullivan for appointment to the board, a quasi-judical body which operates independently of the 18-member board of directors. It considers requests for exemptions from district regulations, thus is in the position of seeing that the regulations are applied uniformly and fairly.

Sullivan's seat by law must be filled by an attorney.

The candidates' are:

J. Joseph Sullivan, an eight-year veteran of the hearing board, former president of the San Francisco board of supervisors and a former candidate for mayor of San Francisco.

Ralph Trower, former mayor of Napa and currently a Napa County representative on the smog board. He has been a leader in the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Reed H. Bement, a San Francisco lawyer who graduated from Harvard College, University of California at Berkeley and the London School of Economics. He was nominated by the Stop Smog Committee, a citizens group which argued the district needed an attorney who "has been totally uninvolved in the political upheaval of the district."

Stuart L. Deutsch, assistant professor of law at the University of Santa Clara and a specialist in land use and environmental law.

William J. Kretzmer of Richmond, city attorney for the City of El Cerrito and chairman of the Contra Costa County Mental Health Advisory Board.

Novato Women To Hear Hood

Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission, will talk about young voters at a public meeting of the Novato Republican Women's Club at noon Tuesday at Nave Lanes, Ignacio.

Hood, a Mill Valley city councilman, will tell how 18-21 year old voters can be effective in having youth representation in the national election.

The theme of the meeting will be "honor thy precinct worker," according to Betty Machado, publicity chairman.

San Marin Improvers To Discuss Mountain

Open space and acquisition of Mount Burdell will be discussed at a general membership meeting of the San Marin Improvement Association at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Room 200, San Marin High School, Novato.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste; Pierre W. Joske, Marin County parks and recreation director; Jerry A. Cannon, chairman of the North Marin chapter, Marin Conservation League, and Leroy M. Gerner, president of the Novato Civic Foundation, are scheduled to speak.

Rights Leader In Senatorial Race

Williams, declaring he is the only candidate sensitive to the needs of blacks and poor people, paid his $850 filing fee as a Democrat. The field for the seat now held by Sen. David Gambrell, D-Ga., has 15 Democrats, two Republicans and an independent.

Sentencing Set In Pot Import Plot

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Corte Madera man who was a key figure in a huge marijuana smuggling case is due to be sentenced July 5 in U. S. District Court.

John Robert Franklin, 34, pleaded guilty last month to a charge of conspiring to smuggle well over a ton of marijuana into this country from Mexico.

Meanwhile, a San Francisco lawyer who represents the Grateful Dead and other rock groups, is on trial along with four other persons in connection with the same case.

The lawyer, Brian D. Rohan, 36, was named part of the conspiracy only because he helped some clients buy a ranch near Winslow, Ariz., in 1970 and helped them purchase an airplane, according to his attorney, Patrick Hallinan.

A large amount of marijuana was later seized on the property.

Rohan and 17 other persons including Franklin were accused of smuggling 2,900 pounds of pot to the ranch and then transporting part of it to a house in Tiburon and to a San Francisco residence.

Another Marinite, Janice Lynn Swang, 24, has pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of conspiring to smuggle merchandise, according to Asst. Atty. Gen. James Brannigan, prosecutor in the case. She is due to be sentenced June 23.

Two other Marin residents, Robert Halborsen of Tiburon and Frank Richard Sayre of Corte Madera, are fugitives, Brannigan said, and two additional persons, Will Walker, 27, and Joanne Fahey, 31, both of Corte Madera, are due to be tried at a later date.

Congressman Asks Reelection

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., announced today his candidacy for re-election.

His announcement had long been expected, since he has been openly campaigning for several months.

Conditional Use Permit To Kennel Club For Park

The Rohnert Park Recreation Commission has conditionally allowed the Redwood Empire Kennel Club to use Benecia Park once again for its 1973 dog show.

The commission approved the club's request after hearing complaints from neighborhood residents about noise, litter and traffic at the 1972 show, according to James Pekkain, recreation director.

Pekkain said the commission attached several conditions to its approval, aimed primarily at cooling the citizen protest. Next year's show is scheduled May 6.

Pekkain said the commission also decided to hold a June 19 session on next fiscal year's preliminary budget.

Marinwood CSD Adds $300 To Fire Budget

Marinwood Community Services District directors last night reviewed a preliminary overall budget of $258,053 and wound up adding $300 to the $107,320 fire account.

The action will not change the district's anticipated tax rate of $1.236 per $100 of assessed valuation, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager. She said that the net effect of last night's budget scrutiny was an addition of $190 since the board chopped $110 from the parks and recreation account.

She said that the board approved an increase of $375 in the fire "conference" allocation, originally set at $750.

"The increase came so that fire personnel could attend certain approved training conferences," Mrs. Bolding said.

The board decreased a proposed $500 structure maintenance account by $75, chopped hydrant rentals by $59, and cut the fire hose $800 capital outlay spending program by $50.

The board increased the fire office supply account by $75 and added $50 to Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield's small tools request.

Mrs. Bolding said that the board agreed that the district's fire cadet program remain as it is. One board member had proposed that one of the fire department's two cadets be eliminated next year, she said.

The board also approved a request that another street light be installed on Valley Stone Drive, she said.

The next budget hearing to consider employees' salaries, was set for 8 p.m. June 26 in the Marinwood Community Center.

Morals Case Sent To Superior Court

Curtis Phillip Wall, 63, of Novato has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of lewd and lascivious behavior and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He is to appear June 26.

Wall was arrested in January on a warrant charging him with molesting four children from 5 to 8 years old last September and December.

Burglars Fail Safecrack Try

Officers said the intruders forced a rear door to enter the premises between 10 p.m. and 1:22 a.m. The top layer of the floor safe was peeled off, police said, but the burglars failed to further penetrate the device.

Before leaving, the inlruders rifled a cigarette machine for an undetermined sum.

Muskie, Humphrey Claiming New Hopes

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's followers today claimed a first victory in the drive to revive his presidential campaign. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey predicts front-runner George S. McGovern will be stopped short of a first ballot victory at the Democratic convention next month.

The upbeat talk from the Muskie and Humphrey camps came as they attempted to stop McGovern from picking up the delegates he needs to put him over the top at Miami Beach. Both underdogs placed their hopes on uncommitted delegates.

Muskie, fighting off the flu, continued today a 10-state tour in search of support he hopes will deadlock the convention and turn it in his direction.

The Maine senator was in St. Louis Wednesday night to court 61 previously uncommitted delagates. Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said after the meeting that Muskie would get the votes of "40 to 50" of the delegates. The remaining 12 of the state's 73-member delegation are committed to McGovern.

Humphrey, in a UPI interview today, conceded that McGovern has a "comfortable lead" but he said he expected to pick up a "large bloc" of uncommitted delegates.

The former vice president said he believed McGovern would fall short of victory on the first ballot. He said this would turn the convention into a "wide open" battle and that it was likely McGovern's strength would erode. He said he and his strategists had decided after making a thorough study this week that McGovern does not have the nomination locked up.

It will take 1,509 delegate votes to nominate the Democratic candidate. The latest UPI tabulation showed McGovern with 1,003.75 committed delegates. Humphrey had 365.75, and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace 360. Muskie has in the neighborhood of 170, while the tabulation showed 481.3 uncommitted.

McGovern this week has concentrated on campaigning in New York, which has 278 delegates and will hold its primary Tuesday. McGovern strategists have estimated he will get 225 New York delegates and predicted he will lock up the nomination two weeks before the convention.

The McGovern backers also expect to make large inroads in the 121 still uncommitted delegates in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Kansas, Oklahoma and Virginia. They said there also should be scattered switches from the Muskie total, most likely in Illinois where Muskie has 61 and McGovern 18.

If the convention goes to a second ballot, the McGovern strategists said, there would be switches to McGovern from North Carolina, Tennessee, Maryland and Indiana and possibly from several other states.

Novato Fire Budget Hike To Be Voted

The Novato Fire Protection District board has scheduled adoption of a $753,281 budget for 1972-73 at 7:30 p.m. June 28 at the main fire station.

Directors, who approved it as a preliminary budget last month, agreed last night to set final adoption at their next regular meeting, reported Asst. Chief Richard W. Beyer.

The budget is up $138,637 from the current budget and the tax rate is expected to be 70 cents per $100 assessej valuation, up 22 cents from this year's rate.

The board also received a request from Marin Valley Mobile Homes Inc. to annex 35 acres east of its completed mobile home development, south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

School Fencing To Be Replaced

The Laguna School District board has approved replacement this summer of part of the fencing around the one-room school, according to Trustee Donald J. Moreda.

Most of the labor will be volunteer and the cost will be about $200, he said.

Auto Is Stolen

His 1959 white Oldsmobile, license BLF055, was taken from 64A Bolinas Road, Fairfax, between 7 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. Monday, Steven Savin, 1931 Novato Boulevard, Novato, told police yesterday.

Water Rate Change Hearing Scheduled

By PAT ANGLE

A proposal to charge both large and small water users in the Marin Municipal Water District the same rate for each unit of water consumed was accepted yesterday by the district board. (See another story, page 1.)

The Board, with directors Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and Robert G. Anderson absent, set a pubiic hearing on the change for its June 28 meeting at 1:30 p.m. in the district office in Corte Madera.

The plan, by Brown and Caldwell Engineers, would create a flat rate structure and result in a charge of 34 cents per 100 cubic feet of water used, no matter how much a particular user consumed.

At present, larger water users receive discounts for cubic feet of water above 10,000 cubic feet used during each bimonthly billing period.

Currently, the price is 31 cents (per 100 cubic feet) for water consumed between 10,000 and 20,000 cubic feet, 29 cents between 20,000 and 30,000, 27 cents between 30,000 and 40,000 and 25 cents for water used above 40,000 gallons.

Director Eugene A. Miller, head of a board committee, which studied the rate change proposal, said that small water usrs such as single households will not be affected. "These small users constitute 89 per cent of our customers and their rates will not go up," Miller said.

But the remaining 11 per cent of the district's customers, who incidentally use 25 per cent of the district's entire water supply annually, will find their water bills increasing significantly, Miller said.

Miller and the other committee members, Director John R. MacPhail, are recommending that the district initiate the rate increases for larger users in two phases, effecting an increase to 30 cents per 100 cubic feet by October 1 of this year and the entire hike to 34 cents by July 1, 1973.

Air Force Surrenders To Water Bill Letter Threat

Faced with the prospect of angry letters to a Marin congressman, representatives of the Air Force agreed yesterday to pay a two-year-old water bill to the Marin Municipal Water District.

The $38,000 overdue account was the result of the service's refusal to pay a water rate increase for service to Hamilton Air Force Base, one of the water district's largest users which annually consumes approximately 300 million gallons.

At its last meeting the water district board, apparently angered by the Air Force's reluctance to pay up, decided to write a letter of protest to Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, if the bill was not settled promptly.

Yesterday, Capt. Thomas Fallon, procurement officer for Hamilton, met with the board in a last attempt to get the district to agree to negotiate the water rates hikes with the base, then promised to pay when the board showed no inclination to do so.

Fallon contended that the district's contract to provide water to Hamilton and to the Mill Valley Air Force Station on Mount Tamalpais contains a clause which states the district must negotiate with the Air Force on any rate increase.

But Robert W. Elliott, attorney for the district, said he did not believe the district had a right to negotiate special water rates for the base unless it game the same preferential treatment to other public agencies.

After receiving the promise of payment, the board decided to consider whether to withdraw from the contract with Hamilton at its June 28 meeting to eliminate any future problems over hikes in the price of water.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

WEDDINGS — Granted a request to permit weddings at its Bon Tempe Lake.

PATH — Agreed to allow the city of Tiburon to use the Tiburon Top Tank site as a pedestrian path.

APPRAISAL — Requested an appraisal of land the district is considering as a site for its Chula Vista Pump Station.

FIRE TANK — Voted to proceed with construction of a 20,000-gallon fire tank at Rock Springs in the district's watershed.

LANDSCAPING — Agreed to pay $700 to San Rafael landscape architect William Kapranos for a landscaping plan for the San Clemente Tank.

CONSULTANTS — Employed these consultants, at a total cost of $18,500 to do environmental impact reports, geological investigations and designs for five proposed district tanks: Burton H. Marliave, Natural Science Education Resources, William L. Kapranos and architects Crawford and Panning.

Pat Slates Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon flies west Friday for appearances in two states. She will address 1,600 high school students at the annual leadership conference of Phi Beta Lambda in Houston Friday.

Saturday night, she will attend a dinner in her honor in Los Angeles. She probably will return to Washington Sunday.

Tickets Taken

A burglar took $75 cash and blank tickets from the office of SFO Helicopter in Sausalito June 7 or 8, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

New Board At Full Membership

Two additional members have been named to the Novato Human Needs Center board bringing the board to its full membership of nine, according to John H. Telfer, center director.

The two new board members are Geoffrey J. Bywater of 11 Brassie Court, 18-year-old candidate in the recent city council election, as youth representative, and William J. J. Smith of 740 Eucalyptus Avenue, who is retiring as chief assistant to the deputy state superintendent of schools, as senior representative.

The board was scheduled to meet at noon today at Sportsman Lodge, north of Novato.

Telfer said a supply of emergency nonperishable food is being built up at the center as the result of the parent-faculty club at San Ramon School. "Other groups are encouraged to donate emergency food" at the center, 1200 Grant Avenue, he said.

"At the present time, clothing supplies are adequate," he reported. In the future, persons who want to take clothing donations should call first to find out if the items are needed, he said.

Youths Spread Christ's Words

DALLAS (UPI)—Youthful delegates attending the week-long religious gathering Explo '72 went door to door yesterday spreading the Gospel.

"We got mixed reactions," said Jerry Boone, 23, of Ventsra, Calif. "Some people slammed the door in our faces. But some were very receptive."

Boone and about 100,000 other delegates arrived in Dallas early in the week and have been attending morning seminars, fanning out over the city to spread the "Good News of Jesus" during the afternoons, and at night they pack the Cotton Bowl for mass meetings.

Evangelist Billy Graham, who has attended the gathering daily so far, will address the group tomorrow night, and again on Saturday during the Explo finale—a mod religious music festival in an open area near downtown Dallas at which Graham expects 250,000 persons.

The House Always Has Gambling Edge

CHICAGO (UPI) — Every gambler knows in his heart he can't beat the house, but what are the odds that any of the world's major casinos will finish a year with a profit?

Each game offered the patrons, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, gives the casino a mathematical expectancy of winning and there is small likelihood the house would lose money even for one day.

But over the course of a year the odds of ending up without a profit have been calculated at about 1 chance in 50 billion.

Trustee Truancy May Force Hub Election

Election of a school board member may be added to the Nov. 7 ballot in San Anselmo School District.

The San Anselmo board has asked Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino whether failure of trustee Basil Scalabrini to attend a board meeting since early March creates a vacancy.

Godino said today apparently it does, under Section 1770 of the Government Code, which says an office becomes vacant on the occupant's "ceasing to discharge the duties of his office for the period of three consecutive months except when prevented by sickness, or when absent from the state with the permission required by law."

Six regular meetings plus a long series of special meetings have been held by the San Anselmo board since Scalabrini last attended over three months ago.

Godino said he would advise the board to notify Scalabrini by registered letter that his office appears to be vacant under the law, and then declare it vacant if no satisfactory explanation for his absence is received.

The law calls for a special election to be held within 120 days of the office being declared vacant. Godino noted, however, that this would carry almost to the November general election, and suggested the timing might be such that the new trustee could be elected at that time.

Scalabrini is a teacher in Kentfield School District, but has been on a half-year sabbatical leave since the start of the second semester. Kentfield Supt. Anthony Bacich said Scalabrini took the leave to work on a systems management study on which he is preparing his master's thesis at San Francisco State University.

The telephone at Scalabrini's home in San Anselmo has been disconnected.

Deadline Set For Petitions

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. says his office will remain open until midnight June 29 to accept petition certificates to qualify initiatives for the November ballot.

"These extra hours may mean the difference between allowing the people to vote on an issue and not allowing that vote," Brown said.

Brown announced Wednesday that hand deliveries of petition certificates — affidavits from county clerks telling how many verified signatures were collected for each initiative —will be accepted in both his Sacramento and Los Angeles office until midnight June 29, the deadline for submitting signatures.

WET AND DRY — Douglas M. Lacey of San Rafael checks both a dry submarine (top photo) and a wet submarine (lower photo), backyard creations he expects to provide him with varied and — it is hoped — safe experience at Lake Tahoe this summer. They were fashioned of abandoned aircraft wing tanks. Lacy is a self-taught designer of submersibles.

The 22-Year-Old Commodore Of The San Rafael Sub Fleet

By DICK SMULLEN

In the past 18 months he and his 23-year-old brother, Robert, have built two submarines from teardrop-shaped aircraft wing tanks.

Later this summer he hopes to take the subs to Lake Tahoe to see if their handiwork really operates. He said the initial dives will be on July 31 and Aug. 1 near Chamberlain on the California shore.

Both subs are named for the Plesiosaurus, an amphibious dinosaur with paddle-shaped feet.

The larger of the pair, Plesiosaurus II, is made of two tanks, over and under. The top tank is filled with compressed air, the bottom hold the two Laceys, motor, batteries, controls and ballast. It is a dry sub, filled with compressed air to keep out water.

The smaller half of the fleet is Plesiosaurus I, a wet sub, designed to fill with water, and made from one tank. Two cockpits have been carved in the aluminum alloy hull and dual controls operate the propeller and diving planes from both seats.

Two small compressed-air torpedoes sit in tubes on the front of the smaller sub, "just for effect. I don't even know if they work," Douglas said, smiling.

Lacey started building his first submarine, the smaller of the pair, two and a half years ago to satisfy his underwater curiosity. A skindiver since the summer of 1969, he found wetsuits constricting and decided to try other methods of underwater exploration.

He does most of his diving at Lake Tahoe. Driving back one day, he noticed the surplus wing tanks for sale. He and Robert began thinking how they could be used, and finally settled on submarines.

He has invested 15 months and $2,200 in both subs, but said "I always wanted one," adding "If it works, it'll be worth it."

He has never built a boat before, let alone a submarine. A native of San Rafael, he graduated from San Pedro School, St. Raphael's School and San Rafael High School.

During his four years in high school he took mechanical drawing, but math wasn't his strong subject. "I tried to get into the physics club," he said, but couldn't fulfill the requirements "because I just somehow never 'got' algebra." He said long division is the highest mathematics he uses.

If that's true, long division has come a long way. Safety precautions are a good example.

Manual and electric backup systems insure that no mechanical failure will cripple the sub, and in case it is rammed or there is an electrical fire, an alarm bell will ring, a warning to abandon ship.

When the two hatch covers are pressed out, the top tank begins to fill with air, taking the sub to the surface. Depending on how deep the boat is, the Laceys must get clear to make a slower ascent. If they shot upward as fast as the submarine, they might get the "bends," caused when nitrogen bubbles in the bloodstream expand.

Lacey said a scuba tank will be strapped to the outside of the hull, providing air during the ascent. All these details are necessary because the dry sub can go as deep as 500 feet. (He estimates wet sub dives will be limited to 150 feet).

All electrical wiring was done by Lacey and his brother. During an 18-month hitch in the army Lacey worked as an aircraft electrician.

The dry sub is equipped for salvage work. Lacey has installed two mechanical arms complete with claws that open and close. All he needs now are floodlights and he's ready.

He said there are salvageable items in Tahoe, including an airplane that went off the end of a nearby runway and plunged into the lake, but he doesn't intend to pay for the sub from salvage work. He has designed it with 2,800 pounds of positive buoyancy which will allow it to bring up objects that heavy.

With no practical experience to guide him, Lacey said he took design ideas and construction details from books about submarines and Navy manuals.

He was ready to test the subs last June, but met disaster before he'd left the family driveway at 41 Dunfries Terrace. Both were mounted on an old auto chassis, tied with ropes.

While the trailer was being towed down the steep curving driveway, the ropes broke and both subs fell to the street. The lead-acid batteries, used for power, exploded, spilling acid on the street and inside the hulls and causing enough damage to sideline attempts for at least a year.

This time things will be different. Metal cables tie the hulls to the chassis and the arrangement has been field tested.

Strangely enough, Lacey is more afraid of being rammed than the sub not working. While diving at Tahoe he has been narrowly missed by speedboats several times, he said.

As a preventive measure he has painted both hulls a bright orange.

If all goes well, San Rafael may have another Captain Nemo on its hands in early August.

MacKay, Net Group Sanction Squabble

By RALPH CHATOIAN

At the moment, Barry MacKay of Ross, the man in charge of the $50,000 Redwood Bank International Open tennis tournament, and the Northern California Tennis Association are in disagreement.

"I'm hopeful we will get their sanction for the tournament eventually," said MacKay yesterday in announcing plans for the tourney being sponsored by the San Rafael bank. "But regardless, we'll have a top-flight tournament for the Bay Area with all the best pros available."

BARRY MacKAY

MacKay laid out his plans at a hastily called press conference yesterday. The Redwood tournament is scheduled for the Round Hill Golf and Country Club in Alamo, Sept. 25 through Oct. 1. MacKay is assured of getting the 32 contract pros of Lamar Hunt's World Championship of Tennis group which includes the big names of tennis, guys like Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall and Arthur Ashe.

In the meantime, the tournament as yet does not have sanction from the Northern California Tennis Association which is planning a tournament of its own during the same time, the 83rd Pacific Coast International Championships which also will have a $50,000 purse. The big names of tennis, obviously, would be missing from this tourney. Even Laver can't play on two courts at the same time.

"I've guaranteed the Northern California Tennis Association $5,000," said MacKay. "I applied for the sanction and was told they wanted more time to think about it. I still expect to get approval."

IF YOU ARE a wrestling buff — I don't mean that circus stuff you see on television — you have a chance to watch some of the nation's best wrestlers in action tomorrow night, 7:30, in the main gymnasium at California State College, Sonoma.

Ken Flynn, the school's wrestling coach, is labeling it "Showcase of Champions," and charging $1 for admission, money going to the Olympic Development Fund. Competing against one another will be top wrestlers from the Western part of the U.S. who are working out at the Sonoma college prior to the Olympic trials in Minnesota.

Included are two members of the 1968 U.S. Olympic wrestling team, Russ Camilleri (San Jose State grad) in the 180-pound class, and Air Force Capt. Wayne Baughman (U. of Oklahoma), in the 198-pound group.

IT APPEARS THAT Mike McCormick is only hours away from quitting baseball. According to a United Press International story out of Phoenix, the 33-year-old McCormick pitched a 7-2 Pacific Coast League victory over Salt Lake City last night and then said he plans to retire if he is not in the major leagues by trading deadline, midnight tonight.

The left-handed McCormick, a former Cy Young Award winner, has a 5-4 record with the Phoenix Giants who are leading the PCL East by 3½ games despite all the raiding of players by S.F. this season.

TROPHY FOR THE COACH — George Lester, retiring San Rafael High School teacher and golf coach, admired a trophy presented to him by members of his golf team. "The kids sure come up with some surprises," said Lester, who taught at San Rafael 21 years and coached golf for 17.

San Rafael's Golf Coach Swings Into Retirement

By LEW CODDINGTON

Describing George Lester as the San Rafael High School golf coach is something like describing Thomas Jefferson as the inventor of the dumbwaiter — it's true enough, as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough.

Lester is also an airplane pilot, world traveler and an educator of prominence, as well as a coach in seven different sports at one time or another.

Now, he is about to become a retiree. He will turn 65 next Thursday, the mandatory retirement age, and consequently will not return to teaching next fall.

'ONLY REGRET'

"My only regret after 32 years as a teacher is that I'm sorry I didn't get into it sooner," he said, looking back on a career that sent him bouncing back and forth across California before he settled at San Rafael in 1952.

"I had a good job in the production department of a furniture manufacturing company, but I wasn't happy. Everybody must come to a reckoning with himself. In that job, I had to sublimate myself to the corporation. I never felt like an individual human being."

So Lester went back to college and became a high-school coach in 1941 in Turlock. Two years later he was in Redlands, and a year after that in Santa Rosa. The next year he was in Lemoore.

With a master's degree in health education from the University of California at Berkeley, he was a logical choice to start a health education course in Lemoore's schools. So he entered classroom teaching in 1947. Later he was to implement a similar program in San Rafael.

VERSATILE COACH

Along the way, he coached football, basketball, track, tennis, swimming, golf and baseball. He was even athletic director at Redlands.

"I lettered in tennis in college," he said, "but golf is my favorite playing sport. I had to give up tennis bacause of a hip injury, anyway."

Lester was a four-handicapper in golf at one point, but plays to a 10 handicap now, following a back injury. "I had to change my whole swing," he says.

HEALTH

Those injuries notwithstanding, Lester is in remarkable health, and is talking about updating the medical portion of

MEMPHIS SALE THE TOPIC

Finley Meets With ABA Pros

CHICAGO (UPI)—Charles O. Finley met Wednesday with trustees of the Memphis Pros of the American Basketball Association to discuss the sale of the Pros to him.

There was no immediate announcement as to what took place behind the closed doors of his office, where he huddled with John (Buddy) Leak, chairman of the board of the Pros; Avron Fogelman, president; and Martin Heller, lawyer for the American Basketball Association.

They talked about how the question of the club's $140,000 in debts might be answered, but no conclusions were arrived at.

Under a verbal agreement announced Tuesday by ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph, Finley would buy the club and pay $109,000 owed to the league by the Pros and arrange to pay off the $140,000 in debts.

Finley also owns the Oakland Athletics baseball team and the California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League.

He is known to have told the Pros owners that "Memphis would have to show good support for the team" if they wish to keep the franchise there. Finley has, in the past, been willing to shift his franchises, as he did with the A's from Kansas City.

Start For U.S. Open Golf Meet

"Sure, I've got a chance," insisted Trevino as a field of 135 pros and 15 amateurs began a four-day, 72-hole assault on the postcard-pretty Pebble Beach golf course — the first seaside course to play host to the Open in modern times.

Trevino, who got out of a hospital bed in El Paso, Tex., Tuesday after a bout with pneumonia, managed one round of practice over the ocean-bordered course on Wednesday and claimed that was enough to ready him for a defense of the title he won for the second time last year at Ardmore, Pa.

'KNOW COURSE'

"I know the course from having played here in the Crosby tournaments," he said, "and actually I don't like to practice too much over a course for a tournament. Look, the important thing here is to keep belting your drive into the middle of the fairways, and you can practice until you're blue in the face but if you can't keep the ball in the middle of the fairways, what the heck good is all that practice going to do you?"

Trevino's optimism is at variance with the theories of Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, both of whom have played many rounds of practice here and insist that Pebble Beach is a course that "takes a lot of knowing" and plays differently on different days.

"If you have never played a course before, then you need about three rounds to learn the course," Trevino disagreed. "But if you already know it, one round is enough — the little things about it come back to your quickly."

COUGHING

Trevino, coughing repeatedly and admitting that his head is "stopped up," said he will be on medicine for the next 12 days. "But I'm not weak or anything," he added. "I'm strong enough."

Nicklaus also says, "I'm ready," and the "Blond Bear" ranks as the 4-1 co-favorite with Archer, who comes from nearby Gilroy, Calif., and shares the top spot with Nicklaus because Pebble Beach is virtually his "home" course.

IRWIN

Hale Irwin of Kirkwood, Mo., shot a three-under-par 69 on Wednesday, playing with Nicklaus, for one of the best practice rounds, and Irwin came in marveling at Nicklaus, who shot "about 72."

Giants Upend Pirates, 3-1

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The lowly San Francisco Giants are making life miserable for the baseball champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

For example, the National League Western Division cellar dwellers upended the second place Pirates 3-1 last night here as Sam McDowell pitched a five-hitter.

The loss, along with New York's 8-3 triumph over Atlanta, was enough to give the Mets a half-game edge over the Pirates in the Eastern Division race.

The Giants jumped off to a 20 lead in the third on singles by Tito Fuentes, Bobby Bonds and Chris Speier and a unsuccessful Pirate pickoff play which led to a throwing error by third baseman Jose Pagan.

Pittsburgh cut the lead to 2-1 in the fourth on Manny Sanguillen's run scoring single but were unable to come up with another rally.

McDowell had near-perfect control, giving up only one walk and five singles to the hottest hitting team in the majors. It was his seventh victory against four defeats.

Dock Ellis, who pitched seven innings before giving way to Ramon Hernandez, gave up all three runs on six hits as his record dropped to 5-3.

The Pirates can move back into first place tonight over the idle Mets as they face the Giants in a twi-night doubleheader at Three Rivers Stadium. Luke Walker (2-2) and Bob Moose (4-2) were scheduled to start for Pittsburgh against San Francisco's Steve Stone (3-6) and Charlie Williams (0-2).

The Giants have signed an 18-year-old Portland, Ore., pitcher, their first choice in the free-agent draft.

Robert A. Dressler will report to the Giants' training area at Casa Grande, Ariz., before joining the Giants' Pioneer League rookie team at Great Falls, Mont., later this month, it was announced Wednesday.

Dressler, a 6-foot-3, 175-pounder, is a graduate of Madison High School in Portland. He had an earned run average of 0.38 and 87 strikeouts in 55 innings.

A GRICH GAME

Oriole Rookie Stops A's, 2-1

OAKLAND (UPI) —A Grich stole ballgame from the Oakland Athletics.

Bobby Grich, Mr. Everything for the Baltimore Orioles this year, led off the 10th inning with a home run off Jim Hunter Wednesday night to hand the Orioles and Dave McNally a 2-1 victory over the slumping A's.

It gave the Orioles a clean sweep of the three-game series, kept Baltimore tied for first with Detroit in the American League East and sent Oakland reeling to its fourth straight defeat.

"He's our Gil McDougald," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver in comparing Grich to the former utility man and sparkplug of the New York Yankees. "Grich can play any position in the infield and he could even play in the outfield too, but I already have enough trouble finding spots for the four good outfielders I have."

Grich, a rookie who attends Fresno State, has been starting at shortstop recently in place of the slumping Mark Belanger, who is hitting .163.

When sent down to Rochester by the Orioles last year, Grich said Weaver gave him only one instruction.

"He told me to be more aggressive at the plate and pull the ball more. That's what I'm trying to do."

A's Manager Dick Williams shook up his lineup somewhat in an effort to snap the A's out of their slump. Gene Tenace caught instead of Dave Duncan and Ron Clark started at second base in place of Larry Brown but both Clark and Tenace went hitless against McNally (7-5) who gave up only four hits.

Three of them came in the fourth inning when Joe Rudi's double and singles by Reggie

No Pro Cage Merger For Now — Kennedy

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI) — National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy, conceding that a pro basketball merger before next season was "impossible," says it will be at least two years before the NBA and American Basketball Association meet in the first basketball "superbowl."

Kennedy, who blames the delay in approving the merger on Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N. C., said a championship playoff could not be arranged for 1973 even if the merger were approved by this fall-which seems unlikely.

Ervin's Senate subcommittee has had the merger legislation tied up since last September, and even after his group and then the full Senate are done with it, the bill will face another hostile committee chairman in the House. Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N. Y.

"Considering that we have been faced in a series of hearings with an avowed, openly hostile chairman, I don't feel we could have looked forward to much more progress than has taken place," Kennedy said, downplaying suggestions that the merger might never get out of committee.

Congressional approval is vital to the merger of the NBA and ABA because it would allow the league to hold a common draft and end their costly bidding war for talent, without violating antitrust laws.

Because of that much of the opposition has come from the NBA Players' Association, which found an ally in Ervin. But Kennedy remains optimistic.

"I firmly believe the Senate subcommittee will report the bill out favorably to tha Senate," Kennedy said.

Kennedy and owners of the NBA's 17 teams are here for their annual two day summer meeting which begins today and is not likely to produce much news unless there are developments regarding the merger.

The ABA gave little indication anything was happening earlier in the week, when, after their own meeting, outgoing commissioner Jack Dolph proclaimed the league stronger than ever.

Kennedy himself said the ABA's action in dissolving the Pittsburgh and Florida franchises would have no effect on the NBA meeting and said he did not even expect the ABA to be mentioned here, "with the exception of the merger committee report."

"I have had no communication of any kind with the ABA since Monday and to the best of my knowledge, none of the owners has had any communication with the ABA," Kennedy said.

Pitcher Siler Leads Novato Legion '9' Win

Substitute Met Belts Key Homer

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

While all the storm clouds were swirling around Tommie Agee's dropping fly balls in centerfield during the recent New York Mets' slump, almost overlooked has been the hitting of second-string catcher Duffy Dyer.

But Dyer, who has been batting at a .429 clip over the past four games with six runs-batted-in, finally got his place in the limelight Wednesday night when he crashed his fifth homer (a career high) in leading the Mets back into first place in the National League East with an 8-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves. It was also Dyer's third homer in four games.

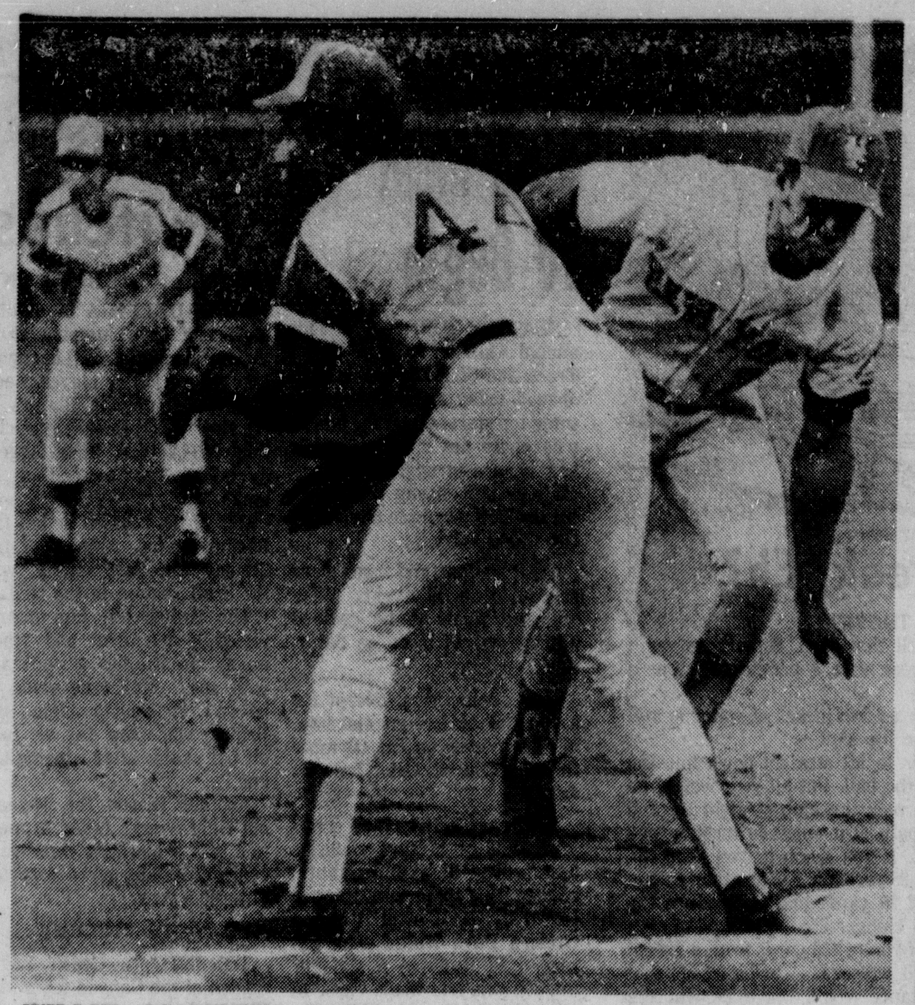
In other National League games, Pittsburgh was beaten by San Francisco 3-1 enabling the Mets to climb back into first place, Cincinnati nipped Philadelphia 2-1, Houston edged Montreal 5-4, Chicago belted San Diego 12-9 and St. Louis and Los Angeles were rained out after four innings.

While Dyer was keeping his hot streak going, Willie Mays, playing in place of Agee in centerfield, was back doing his thing too. Mays pounded out two hits in five trips to the plate and drove in one run with a double in the fourth. Agee had dropped fly balls the previous two nights to enable the Braves to rally for victories.

Johnny Bench continued his hot-hitting as the Reds ran their winning streak to seven games with the victory over Philadelphia. Bench drove home both Cincinnati runs with a sacrifice fly and his 17th homer. Jack Billingham (4-6) picked up the victory with relief help from Clay Carroll.

Bob Stinson's one-out single capped a four-run ninth inning that gave Houston its come-from-behind victory over Montreal. Jim Wynn started the ninth inning rally with a walk and moved to second on Lee May's single. After Bob Watson walked to load the bases, pinch-hitter Jimmy Stewart followed with a sacrifice fly. A wild pitch by reliever Mike Marshall and Doug Rader's single tied the game at 4-4 and Stinson's single then wrapped it up.

Ron Santo's three-run homer keyed a six-run sixth inning rally that sent the Cubs over the Padres. Billy Williams and Jose Cardenal also homered for Chicago in the game.



WILLIE SCAMPERS BACK — New York Mets' Willie Mays returned quickly to first base on an attempted pickoff as Atlanta Braves' Hank Aaron (44) waited for the throw in Atlanta last night. Mays had arrived at first base in the opening inning after singling. New York won, 8-3.

Long Island's Rubin Is NBA 76er Coach

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia 76ers today announced the appointment of Roy Rubin, head coach at Long Island University for the past 11 years, as the new coach of the National Basketball Association team.

Rubin, who took his team to the National Invitational Tournament last winter, succeeds Jack Ramsay, who resigned at the end of last season after a 30-52 record. Ramsay has since been named coach of the Buffalo Braves in the NBA.

Rubin called the appointment a "tremendous challenge" and said "I intend to work my butt off."

Regarding making the change from college to the pro ranks, Rubin said 'basketball is basketball on any level."

Don Dejardin, general manager of the 76ers, said the search for a new coach went on "longer than I anticipated."

Dejardin said the length of the search was prompted by a number of things, citing the Billy Cunningham case and added, "most if not all"" of the college coaches "said it would have been unfair to their schools to take the job just as the recruiting season was beginning."

He described Rubin as "a man who over the period of 20 years in coaching has proven he is a winner."

The 76ers and the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association have been engaged in a legal battle over Cunningham, a top forward.

The Cougars announced in Charlotte, N.C., today that Cunningham has joined the team.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last April 6 that Cunningham had to honor a controversial contract he signed with the Cougars.

Harmon Hits Mark; Lolich Wins Tenth

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Harmon Killebrew reached a milestone Wednesday night but Mickey Lolich was more than happy to settle for an ordinary victory.

Killebrew, the slumping slugger for the Minnesota Twins, moved into sixth place on the all-time home run list when he tagged Lolich for a two-run homer in the fourth inning, his 522nd. But Lolich hung on for his 10th victory on a five-hitter as the Detroit Tigers edged the Twins 3-2 to remain tied with Baltimore for first place in the American League East.

In the other AL games, Baltimore edged Oakland 2-1 in 10 innings, Texas topped Milwaukee 7-1, New York blanked Chicago 3-0, Boston routed Kansas City 11-3 and California topped Cleveland 4-3.

Chicago lost a chance to gain another game on Oakland when the White Sox were blanked by New York's Mike Kekich and Sparky Lyle, who combined on a four-hitter. Johnny Callison and Bobby Murcer hit solo homers to beat Tom Bradley.

Danny Cater slammed a three-run homer and drove in another run with an infield grounder as Boston routed Kansas City.

Rich Hand and Paul Lindblad combined on a four-hitter as Texes downed Milwaukee. The Rangers broke the game wide open with a six-run fourth inning including a two-run double by Tom Grieve. Ken Brett, now 2-8, suffered the loss.

Alex Johnson, who had more than his share of problems in California last year, made a key error in a visiting uniform at Anaheim Stadium. He dropped a fly ball by Sandy Alomar in the first inning while trying to avoid a collision with Eddie Leon. The next two batters were retired but Bob Oliver homered, Ken McMullen singled and Lee Stanton homered. Johnson's error made all four runs unearned aand they were the difference as California edged Milt Wilcox and Cleveland.

Tigers Sign 1st Pick

DETROIT (UPI)—Switch-hitting shortstop Jerry Manuel, of Rancho Cordova, Calif., Detroit's first selection in the free agent baseball draft last week, signed a contract Wednesday with the Tigers.

Mullins Joins Olympic Golf Field June 23

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Jeff Mullins of the Golden State Warriors will be among former Olympians slated to play in the fourth annual United States Olympic Golf Classic to be held Friday, June 23, at the nearby California Golf Club.

Other competitors will be pro basketballers Jerry Lucas of the New York Knicks and Rick Barry of the New York Nets. Kevin Hardy of the San Diego Chargers and Abe Woodson, former San Francisco Forty Niner, will be among the pro football contingent scheduled to play.

Stanford Boxing Coach Lunny Out After 25 Years

PALO ALTO (UPI)—Stanford Boxing Coach Ray Lunny announced Wednesday that he is quitting his job of 25 years to accept a position in business.

Bob Young, Stanford's Acting athletic director, described Lunny as "one of our most popular coaches." "It was disappointing to all of us when we found it necessary to drop intercollegiate boxing two years ago," Young said.

Lunny tutored such collegiate champions as Bob Birkie and Ed Rothman. Lunny, of Redwood City, is the father of Ray Lunny III, currently a lightweight unbeaten in eight bouts.

Cal Grid Practice Set At Santa Barbara

BERKELEY (UPI) — The University of California football team will hold a two-week fall practice session at the University of California Santa Barbara campus, it has been announced.

Athletic Director Dave Maggard said Wednesday it was the first time a Pac-8 grid team has held camp away from its home campus. He said the switch came to give the players a "change in scenery."

Miss Blalock 'Seen' Breaking The Rules

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Ladies Professional Golf Association said Wednesday spies hiding in woods and stationed on television towers with binoculars had seen Jane Blalock illegally move her ball during tournament play.

The disclosure came in affidavits presented to U.S. District Court Judge Charles Moye, who held a hearing on a request by Miss Blalock for a permanent induction against a one-year-suspension handed her by the LPGA.

Miss Blalock, the leading money winner on the women's tour, has filed a $5-million suit against the LPGA, contending it is depriving her of her livelihood.

Her attorneys contended at Wednesday's hearing that the LPGA had singled her out as an example to deter other rules' violations among golfers.

The LPGA also introduced several affidavits from regular tour players quoting Miss Blalock as saying, "I probably have been guilty of moving my ball out of spike marks, heel prints, and ball marks on several occasions. I dug my own grave and I guess I'll have to live with it."

LESTER

his pilot's license so he can fly again. "It'll be no trouble," he relates. "My doc says I'm in great shape."

Lester has logged over 1,000 hours in the air and used to own his own plane (a Piper). In fact, he spent so much time airborne that he virtually gave up golf back in the early 1950s, so it came as a surprise when a group of San Rafael students asked him to revive and coach a team.

"At the time, we were in the old North Bay League. The only two schools in the county were Tamalpais and San Rafael — well, Drake was just starting up.

"The best golfer I ever had was Donnie Hawken, who went on to play at Brigham Young with Ray Leach (Novato star). The best team I ever saw was the Drake team of the mid-fifties which went unbeaten two straight years. Tam had a great team a few years back. My 1962 team (an undefeated champion) was probably the third best.

THRILL

Almost according to script, Lester's greatest coaching thrill was reserved for his 17th and final year. "That would be Ed Thibodeau's hole-in-one," recorded at Meadow Club in May. It was the only ace in Marin County Athletic League history.

"It's every golfer's dream. I missed seeing it by a turn of the head, though. You know, I've never seen one. I've had two shots of my own hit in the cup and jump out."

Lester plans a full-scale assault on his retirement years, including another junket to Hawaii, virtually his second home. "I've been there maybe 15-16 times, maybe more," he says. "It's my favorite golfing spot."

CLUB PRO

He was offered a job as a club professional on the island of Maui, but turned it down because, "it's in the middle of nowhere. I want to be where the action is — Honolulu."

Other retirement possibilities include renewed flying, a trip to Europe, or even going back to school. "I'll certainly spend some time in Marin to be near my children," he said.

He and his wife, Mary Ellen, live in San Rafael. They have one daughter, now Pamela Handley, and a six-month-old grandson, Kelly, who live in Novato.

For seven years, Lester was on the administtative staff at San Rafael, but asked to go back to the classroom. "Teaching is hard work emotionally, but it's satisfying," he said. "It gets into your bloodstream. I'll really miss the swell people and swell kids I've been fortunate enough to be associated with.

"The time sure does slip away quickly when you're active."

Mrs. May Fires First Ace At Indian Valley

Mrs. William May, veteran golfer who has been making headlines on Marin courses for the past couple of decades, fired her first hole-in-one yesterday while playing in the Indian Valley Women's Golf Club Invitational tourney.

The 56-year-old Mrs. May, a 12-handicapper who has been playing golf for the past 30 years, used a four-iron to ace the 145-yard 17th hole on the Indian Valley course in Novato.

Mrs. May, of Woodacre, won the Women's Marin County Tournament of Champions the first year it was held, in 1968.

Yesterday's hole-in-one was witnessed by the other three members of her foursome, Mrs. Earl Berg, Mrs. Melvin Rupp and Mrs. Robert Johnson.

OAKLAND

Jackson and Sal Bando accounted for Oakland's only run.

An error by Hunter, now 6-3, on a double play attempt gave Baltimore its other run in the third. Dave Johnson led off the inning with a single and moved to second on a base hit by Grich. Don Buford then grounded into a forceout at second but Hunter let Bert Campaneris' throw to first go through him, with Johnson scoring.

The A's are off today before opening a three-game weekend series with Cleveland Friday night. Ken Holtzman is scheduled to pitch that game for the A's.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

Up A Creek, Eh?

By LEE TREVINO

Playing water shots isn't all that hard. Some guys won't bet they can get out of a creek with a paddle, let alone a wedge.

A ball covered by as much as two inches of water is still playable — unless a frog's on top of it.

The secret of getting out is to hit straight down into the water about an inch back of the ball. Put all your weight on your left leg. Then you can pick the club straight up and bring it down in the same path. The mistake most people make is trying to help it out. If you scoop it, you poop it.

If you can advance the ball 25 yards. it's better than taking a drop (and penalty). Cut off 25 yards and you reduce the distance to the green by two clubs.

I don't advise water shots if you're 130 yards from a green. Even if you get out you're still 105 yards — and a wedge shot — away. And there's a chance you'll leave it with the crawfish. So take the drop and penalty.

It's the best shot when you're close to the green, or if you're playing a par 5 where those 25 yards can help you make par.

One thing's sure: You're gonna get soaked, mate. Shankers away!

The Northern California Track and Field Officials Association will conduct a series of meets for men this summer at the College of San Mateo according to association president Harry Young.

Meets will be held every Saturday from June 17 through Aug. 12. Field events will start at 11:30 a.m. and running events at noon. There will be two divisions, open and high school.

AAU Track Title Meet To Begin

SEATTLE (UPI) —The 84th annual Amateur Athletic Union Track and Field Championships opened today as a tune-up for some top stars, a rest for others who chose not to come and a last chance struggle for many athletes still trying to qualify for the U. S. Olympic trials only two weeks away.

Qualifications and trials were scheduled in 15 events today with six finals to be decided Friday and 13 more on Saturday.

Most competitors, except for a handful of foreign entrants, had their eyes on the Olympic trials in Eugene, Ore., June 29-July 9.

Jim Ryun, suffering an erratic season of blazing victories and fading disappointments, changed his mind and dropped out of the AAU meet. Bowling Green's Dave Wottle, who ran second to Ryun in a sub-four minute mile last week, chose to skip the 1,500 meter race in favor of the 800-meter run.

A three-ring circus of the world's best shot putters moved here as world record holder Randy Matson, Al Feuerbach and newcomer George Woods continued their duel. They are the only three in the world who have reached 70 feet with the 16-pound shot and they could give America a 1-2-3 sweep in the Munich Olympics.

Other world record holders competing here were pole vaulter Bob Seagren, Olympic champion Lee Evans in the 400-meters, Donald Quarrie in the 200-meters, Rod Milburn in the 110-meter hurdles and Jay Silvester in the discus.

Bruins' McKenzie Switches Leagues

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

PHILADELPHIA — John McKenzie says jumping from the National Hockey League to take a new job as player-coach of the Philadelphia Blazers of the New World Hockey Association (WHA) was "the biggest decision I've ever had to make."

One of the reasons he left the Boston Bruins, winners of the Stanley Cup last season, was the draft system in the NHL.

The Bruins left him unprotected in the draft and "they never mentioned a contract with me," McKenzie said. "I haven't spoken to them (the Bruins) since the day we took off our skates after winning the cup."

More Hockey

TORONTO — Coach Harry Sinden of the Canada team said Wednesday he expects to be able to name next week "35 or 36" National Hockey League players selected to play for Canada in the exhibition series against the Soviet Union next fall.

At a late night news conference here, the former coach of the Boston Bruins officially confirmed the appointment of former Montreal Canadiens' forward John Ferguson as assistant coach.

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia Phillies catcher Tim McCarver was traded to Montreal Wednesday for Expos catcher John Bateman.

McCarver, 30, came to Philadelphia in 1969 in a seven-player deal that also brought Curt Flood, Joe Hoerner and Byron Brown to the Phillies and sent Richie Allen, Jerry Johnson and Cookie Rojas to St. Louis.

McCarver has played in 45 games this season and is batting .237. He played in 134 games last season, hit eight home runs, and batted .278.

Yachting

NEWPORT, R.I. — The United States maintained a slim lead over Argentina Wednesday in the Onionpatch Yacht Tournament competition which culminates Friday with a Newport-to-Bermuda race.

The United States picked up 32 points in the day's competition to boost its total to 149 points over Argentina's 147 points for the first three races of this series.

Tennis

BECKENHAM, England — Hopes of a quarter-final pairing between the veterans Pancho Gonzales and Torben Ulrich in the Greenshield-Kent Lawn Tennis Championships at Beckenham were dashed Wednesday by 23-year-old Australian Bill Lloyd.

Lloyd, a favorite to fill John Newcombe's Wimbledon place if the champion is unable to defend his title, eliminated the 43-year-old Ulrich in the third round by 7-5, 6-1.

Earlier Gonzales, calling on his experience to use telling shots to save his legs, defeated Australia's No. 11 seed, John Bartlett 7-5, 6-4, and now meets Lloyd in the last quarter-finals.

THIS WEEKEND! AN EXCITING TREASURE HUNT AT SNOWFLOWER.

Yes! A special Father's Day Treasure Hunt will be held on June 17, 18 at Snowflower, the unique family camping project in the Sierra. Bring the children . . . and turn them loose to find certificates we've hidden for some really fantastic Father's Day gifts . . . sleeping bags, fishing gear, and hats, tents, camper's stoves, dozens of valuable quality items.

And to make it more fun, a list of clever clues will lead you right to the prize certificates . . . if you just sharpen your wits a bit.

Here are a couple of actual clues:

Clue #10. The ducks on the lake that don't fly away are certainly strange birds.

You 'll get all the clues when you drive in. And, if the Treasure Hunt isn't enough, just look at what else you can do. You can swim or sail or ride paddleboats and canoes. You can hike and fish for fighting trout. And you can top off the day at our deep-pit barbecue, which will start at 3 P.M., Saturday and Sunday.

Snowflower is the new camping adventure.

Only a few people ever have the chance to experience such an exclusive, quality project. And even fewer people have the opportunity to own a share of such an area. Because Snowflower must be seen to be appreciated. It cannot be separated from highly commercial projects or money making land schemes until it has been seen...and experienced. Perhaps this weekend will be when you take a look. To decide for yourself whether camping has to be like the reported Memorial Day crush . . . or whether it can really be an adventure, like Snowflower.

This is the way camping should be. Snowflower.

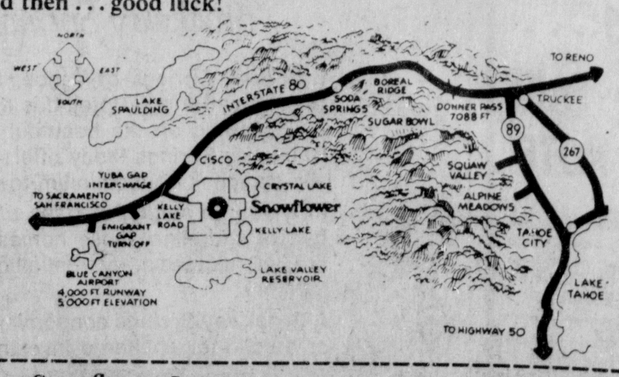
Come early for the Treasure Hunt.

We'll open the gates at 8 A.M. on Saturday and Sunday. You'll get a complete set of rules and clues as you drive in. And then . . . good luck!



Directions to Snowflower.

Snowflower is 77 miles past Sacramento on Interstate 80. Follow I-80 to the Yuba Gap Exit, then straight down Kelly Lake Road to Snowflower.

Sometimes A Loss Can Really Hurt

PITTSBURGH—Horace Stoneham skipped this road trip of the Giants. The owner of the ball club flew to Phoenix instead. His Phoenix Giants in the Pacific Coast League have been doing much better than their major league cousins.

How is Stoneham taking this season's travails of his big team? He maintains a poker face in his Candlestick Park box. But what, if any, comments does he make to his front office lieutenants who sit beside him? Has he blamed anyone for this season's painful efforts of the Giants? Has he indicated in any way that he is running out of patience?

JERRY DONOVAN, Stoneham's executive assistant, never would carry tales out of the presidential box. Yet, Donovan didn't hesitate when asked how Stoneham was taking it all.

"Surprisingly well," said Donovan. "But last weekend one particular loss got to him. It was that game in which we took a 2-1 lead into the eighth inning."

The game to which Donovan referred was the one in which Steve Stone was pitching. Stoneham admires Stone. Stoneham predicted in the spring of 1971 that Stone would be a good major league pitcher. "If we're wrong about that young man and Chris Speier," Stoneham had said, "then we know nothing about baseball.

NOW, STONE WAS just six outs away from what would be his fourth win of 1972. After he narrowed the potential win to three outs by blanking the Cubs in the eighth, Stoneham turned to Donovan and said:

"Well, we're over that hurdle. We got beat in the eighth the other day."

Then came the ninth inning. Rick Monday hit a two-run homer. Ron Santo hit a solo homer. The Cubs won 4-2 and instead of getting his fourth win of the season, Stone had his sixth loss notwithstanding the team's best ERA of 2.14.

IT WAS THE seventh time that eighth and ninth inning homers had beaten the Giants this season. On 11 other occasions they lost to late inning rallies on singles, doubles, triples and errors. So Stoneham had to be getting accustomed to such shenanigans.

However, that loss on Monday's and Santo's ninth inning homers was particularly jarring to Stoneham.

"Yes," said Donovan, "that one got to him. He didn't say anything but it hurt. Still, he is confident the team will find itself and start winning. I sincerely hope so because I have a boss who is a wonderful man, a wonderful baseball man."

San Rafael Drivers In Monterey

San Rafael's Pat Semple and Stuart Fisher are early Marin entries in the June 23-25 Olympia Sprint National Championship Road Races set for Laguna Seca Raceway in Monterey.

Semple has entered the A Sports Racing event with a powerhouse Lola T163. The car built in England is rated one of the fastest sports cars in the world.

Fisher will see wheel duty in a one seat Formula Vee Lynx. The Formula Vee race is expected to be one of the most hotly contested or the weekend card with 28 entries already filed for the event including strong southern California and Oregon entries.

In all, 10 races are planned for the national point meet. More than 300 drivers are expected to compete in the program from six western states.

Points earned will help determine western drivers to compete in the All American runoffs scheduled for this fall.

Qualifying will be held Friday with five races scheduled for Saturday and five Sunday, June 25. Proceeds from the event will benefit some 50 charities in Northern California.

Children under 12 years will be admitted free throughout the weekend.

Arizona State '9' Seeks Title

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Arizona State Sun Devils, the winningest team in the nation this year with a record of 64-4, could nail down the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Baseball World Series championship with a victory tonight over the defending champion Southern California Trojans.

The two teams are the only ones remaining from eight which came here for the double elimination tournament to decide the national title holder.

If Southern California wins tonight, the two teams would meet Friday night to determine the championship.

The Sun Devils won their fourth game in the 26th annual playoffs Wednesday night 1-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Craig Swan, who picked up his 16th victory in 17 games as he outdueled, but just barely, Temple's Ed Molush.

Swan, a strong right-hander who was drafted last week by the New York Mets, struck out 12 and did not issue a walk as he moved his team into the favored position in the series.

Southern California advanced into the championship round with a 10-inning 4-3 triumph over Texas.

The only run in the Arizona State-Temple contest came in the top of the 1st inning when Bump Wills walked, stole second, moved to third on a single by Ken Reed and scampered home on a force-out. Wills is the son of Los Angeles Dodger infielder Maury Wills.

Southern California took a 1-0 lead over Texas in the first inning but had to come from behind with single runs in the sixth and seventh innings after Texas scored three runs in the top of the sixth.

The winning run came on a double by Tim Steele and a single by Daryl Arenstein which ended the contest. It was the second time in the series that Arenstein knocked in the game-deciding run in an extra inning game. The first time was in an 11-inning battle with Connecticut.

Santa Clara Nine In Alaska Friday

SANTA CLARA (UPI)—The University of Santa Clara varsity baseball team begins an eight-day tour of Alaska Friday to play 10 games with Alaska teams.

The Broncos recently won their fifth straight West Coast Athletic Conference title under Coach Sal Taormina's tutelage.

Canadiens' Comeau Sold To Atlanta

MONTREAL (UPI)—Center Reynauld Comeau was sold Wednesday by the Montreal Canadiens to the expansion Atlanta Flames for cash and other considerations.

Comeau played last season for the Nova Scotia Voyageurs, who captured the Calder Cup in the American Hockey League.

New Hockey League Sees Hull Signing

WINNIPEG (UPI) — A spokesman for the Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association (WHA) said Wednesday contract arrangements with Chicago superstar Bobby Hull were "pretty well worked out" and the team "expects him to sign."

"There has been a meeting of the minds and details have been worked out," the spokesman said.

"I can't say flatly he is going to sign soon, but we expect him to sign. As long as he has not signed with Chicago, we feel our chances improve every day.

"Everything is pretty well worked out, but there's always the one chance that something might happen."

No details of the proposed contract were disclosed.

"Hull told (Jets president) Ben Hatskin in a conversation in Denver 10 or 12 days ago that if and when he comes to Winnipeg, he would be interested in looking around for a farm. But he didn't ask the Jets to buy one for him," the spokesman said.

Mecom Severs Ties With 'Undesirable'

At least, that's the policy Commissioner Pete Rozelle attempts to follow.

Rozelle, who forced Joe Namath to sell his interests in a New York bar three years ago because it was an alleged hangout for mobsters, Wednesday announced that New Orleans owner John Mecom was severing his connections with an investment program that was under question by the House Select Committee on Organized Crime.

Rozelle said he was endeavoring "to remove all possible suspicion of involvement with alleged undesirable persons."

Mecom was not actually charged with any wrongdoing but Rozelle wanted to make sure he had no possible connections with "alleged undesirable persons".

The commissioner was referring to comments made to the committee in Washington on May 31 by Aaron Kohn, director of the New Orleans Crime Commission.

Kohn cited two real estate transactions in which Mecom was involved with alleged undesirables. Rozelle said a U.S. Senator, whom Rozelle refused to identify, also told the commissioner, "our investigations show participation by Mr. Mecom in both the real estate transactions cited by Mr. Kohn but no underworld association of Mr. Mecom in these matters."

According to Rozelle, Mecom was involved in two separate transactions, one for $12,000, the other for $26,000. The deals were simple real estate transactions, one involving four persons, the other six.

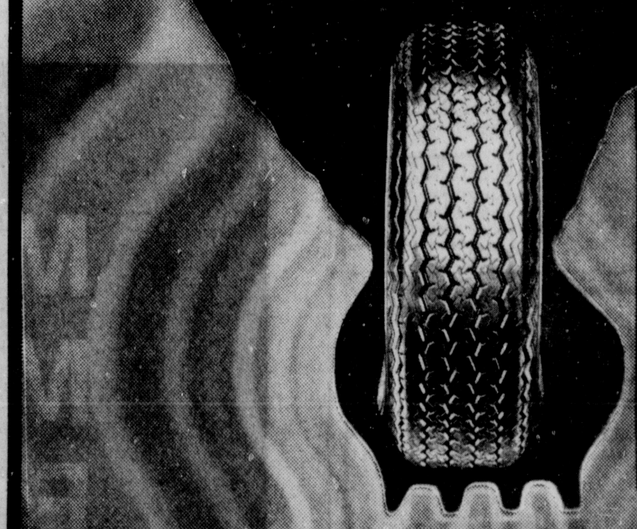
MICHELIN: THE OUTPERFORMER



The inside story of the world's first Steel-Belted Radial.

No one makes steel-belted radial tires like Michelin. Partly because Michelin invented them and has more experience in radial tire making than any of the newcomers. Mostly because Michelin makes its radials differently. With craftsmanship that starts with Michelin's own materials and finishes with meticulous inspection of each tire. The kind of craftsmanship that pays off in performance, not promises. Twice the mileage of a conventional tire. Tread-on-the-road control for easy, safe handling. The safety of Michelin's own steel-belted radial construction. Michelins are out-performers . . . Michelin builds them that way.

MICHELIN

A Message on Radial Ply Tires from Pat McAlanan.

Everyone is out with a radial ply tire. The reason is Michelin X Radial has been so successful, and everyone is trying to jump on the bandwagon. Some of these new Radials are good, some are not so good, and some are dog gone bad.

If you notice in Radial Tire ads - everyone is comparing themselves to Michelin.

Uniroyal says there are only 2 truly good steel belted radials: Michelin and Uniroyal.

Goodrich says they are the first American Radial as good as Michelin.

Pirelli says their tire is at least as good as Michelin.

Now what all these ads are saying is - WE KNOW MICHELIN IS THE BEST - WE'RE TRYING TO MAKE OURS AS GOOD.

There is a lot more to mounting radials than just slapping them on the wheels. There is a proper tire for a wheel, there is a proper air pressure, there is a precise way they have to be mounted and balanced. The air pressure and sizing has got to be right for the car.

If radials are not mounted properly, and I see so many that are not, they can become dangerous.

So why not come to the experts, who have been selling radials for 8 years. We handle the best lines.

"Car and Driver" in their June issue tested Continental - Dunlop - Firestone - General - Goodyear - Goodrich - Michelin - Pirelli - Semperit, under the most extreme stopping and turning conditions they could; they were trying to see if any of these stock radials could pass the tough racing requirements - The 2 Tires that ranked one and two - SEMPERIT & MICHELIN, the only 2 that passed all facets of the grueling test with flying colors.

Just so happens Cains carries both lines exclusively in Marin County. Told you we know what we're doing.

PRICE??
at Cain's you will pay less for a Michelin X or Semperit R Radial than you'll pay for an inferior - Goodyear, Firestone, Goodrich, Uniroyal.

Homeowners Win Preserve Hearing

San Rafael Planning Commission members have set a special hearing for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday on a moratorium to allow Mont Marin and Twelveoak Hill homeowners additional time to form an assessment district to preserve the balance of the Pimental Ranch as open space.

The planning commission meeting will be followed at 8 p.m. by a city council meeting and hearing on extension of the 90-day development moratorium, Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner's office said yesterday.

The commission at its regular meeting Tuesday also heard a detailed presentation from People for Parks and Open Space, urging support for a regional park district. Commissioners, while generally favoring the idea, called for assurances that the city would continue to have a voice in open space policy, and asked for more time to study the district formation proposal

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

SAN PABLO AVENUE — Continued to June 27 the hearing on a detailed development plan calling for 292 townhouse and apartments on portions of the 54-acre property of the McCarthy Co., of Northern California southeast of the Marin County Civic Center. Objections to the plan were raised by Las Gallinas Valley and Terra Linda Valley property owners' groups.

SMITH RANCH — Approved plans to excavate 1.4 million cubic yards from a low ridge north of Smith Ranch Road, for fill for the future Contempo Mobile Home Park on lower portion of the property. Commissioners pointed out that the ridge is shown as open space in the tentative countywide general plan, and said they did not endorse development of the leveled ridgeline.

SEMINARY — Recommended the city council rezone a portion of the St. Peter Chanel Marist Fathers seminary at Belle Avenue and Elm Street from "U" to single family residential with a 10,000 square foot minimum, and that part of the parcel be granted a use permit for church congregational use, in place of the lodge hall originally requested. Landscaping for the adjoining Marin Civic Bllet center also were approved.

NURSERY SCHOOL — Overruled staff recommendations for denial, and increased the number of children allowed at the Alouette Nursery School, 408 Belle Aenue, from 20 to 40.

GASOLINE PUMP — Denied application for a self-service gasoline pump at the market at 141 Bellam Boulevard owned by P. L. Friendshuh.

PARKING — Denied variance and architectural approval sought by owners Dr. Gar C. May and Torkan A. May for two additional parking spaces in the front setback of a six-unit apartment at 19-25 Valencia Street. Staff reported that two of the units were built without city permission.

NORTHGATE EAST — Continued to July 11, hearing on contractor Arthur R. Nicholaisen's revised plans for a multistory office building, convention center and restaurant on the hillside north of the Marin Civic Center. The builder asked more time to complete plans.

CHURCH — Granted the First Presbyterian Church of San Rfael use and variance permits to have its cross exceed the normal 50-foot height limit for structures in the area, and to use its historic stained glass windows preserved when the old bluestone sanctuary had to be demolished for safety reasons.

BUS CENTER — Continued, pending changes in landscaping plans, the use permit for Marin Transit Systems to use property at 502 Irwin Street for a bus garage, shop and offices.

APARTMENTS — Granted use permits for an 88-unit apartment project on the Kenneth Levy property, 100 Marin Center Drive, but refused architectural approval when staff objected to plans for blue roofing resembling the nearby Marin Civic Center.

$4 Hike In Food Stamp Books Set

Marin and Southern Sonoma households using food stamps will receive a $4 increase in their monthly allotment, beginning July 1.

The boost is part of a series of changes in food stamp regulations voted recently by congress.

In some cases, the increase may mean households will have to pay more for stamps, although the added cost will not exceed the allotment hike.

At present, a family of four with an adjusted net income of $280 per month pays $74 for $108 in stamps. After July 1, the family will pay $77 for $112 worth of stamps.

Another regulation will enable a household to purchase portions of a monthly stamp allotment.

No cost estimate of the increase in Marin or Southern Sonoma was given by Social Service officials.

Drownings Spur Plea For Arrest Powers

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Seven drownings in 10 days forced Ray Hutton, the Volusia County director of beach safety, to ask Wednesday for arrest powers for his 100 lifeguards.

Hutton said he has asked the County Council to pass ordinances giving the lifeguards power to arrest young surfers and others who fail to heed their whistles along the 44 miles of Volusia sand dubbed "the world's most beautiful beach."

Environment Concern —Neglecting People

We may be neglecting people while striving to preserve their environment, Sister Mary Samuel, president of Dominican College, suggested yesterday at the annual luncheon of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Sister Samuel, speaking on the overlapping roles of college and community, told her audience of Marin business and governmental leaders: "Concern for the natural environment is not yet balanced by coming to grips with some equally ecological problems."

Ecology, she noted, involves the relationship of life forms to their environment. But "ecologists" tend to overlook the human role in concentrating on preserving nature.

"We are doing a better job of preserving our natural environment than we are of preserving relations between people, and between people and their environment," she suggested.

Declaring this represents a "challenge of the moment" to which we must rise "or the moment will be past," the Catholic educator posed a series of questions that need solving: How preserve open space and make it accessible? How provide for population yet prevent urban sprawl? How attract industry yet keep the air clean?

More central, she said, is the question of how to provide an environment that meets the needs of all people. And in this, she suggested, planning and zoning practices may be failing.

For instance, she pointed out that members of several races and many nationalities "live in our neighborhood — in our residence halls at Dominican College. But could they, if they wanted to, continue to live in the neighborhood after they leave the college?"

Many could not, she suggested, simply because "only the more-or-less affluent middle-aged middle class" can afford homes in Marin. And this, she continued, tends to destroy neighborhoods as such.

New officers of the chamber, elected by the board of directors, were announced at the meeting at Sabella's in Mill Valley.

H. C. Jackson of Jackson Furniture Co., San Rafael, replaces Jack Craemer of the Independent-Journal as president.

B. A. Farlatti of Tiburon was named first vice president; Edward D. McGuire of Novato, second vice president; Albert Bianchi of San Rafael, secretary, and Donald W. Chapman Jr. of Corte Madera, treasurer.

'A NEED FOR NATURAL GOODNESS'

Two Women Just Doing Own Thing

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Food is a way of communicating — a kind of love — according to two Marin women, Carrie Krupp of Mill Valley and Susan Shippey of Tiburon. Their philosophy has spurred a food enterprise they started two months ago.

"We were looking for adventure and a way of making some money without going through the heavy structural trip of business from 9 to 5," Carrie said, "when one day Susan exclaimed, 'I've got it —a different kind of catering business!' "

Susan added, "We got excited about food because it is served on social occasions, and we like being around people, but we didn't have in mind the kind of catering that means greasy food with serving done in stark white coats."

Said Carrie, "We feel the whole catering business is lacking in people-to-people warmth and food with really good homemade taste. Our society has gone so far in packaging of food and taking out everything good that there is a need for natural goodness."

WITHOUT ANY special cooking training, Carrie took some health and nutrition courses that she believes have been helpful.

Both young women admit, however, that the opportunity the business offers to be with people is as important as the desire to provide a needed service. Their first project was an office luncheon, the second an informal reception following an outdoor wedding.

"We were like friends being there to help with the reception, and we were invited to mingle with people and dance just like other guests, and it was lots of fun," Carrie said.

Carrie, 31, and Susan, 26, have many things in common besides their joint enterprise, and they are inclined to believe astrology has something to do with it.

Sharing the same birthday on May 3, a Taurus sign, they even look alike with their long, dark, straight hair, deep tan, build and style of clothes.

"My son says we look exactly alike in the dark," Carrie said with a laugh.

Both hold degrees as art majors, Carrie from the University of Massachusetts, and Susan from California State University, San Jose, where she also obtained the teaching credentials that make possible her present employment as a substitute teacher in Marin schools.

Most unusually, they are both in the process of dissolving their marriages and are, they say, "newly liberated women."

Carrie is the mother of an 8-year-old son, Kerry, and 3-year-old daughter Kimberly, while Susan has no children.

They do not at present plan to make their new venture their sole means of earning a living.

SAID SUSAN, "The venture is a process of our coming into our own as women with our own potentials without having to get into what society sets up as business structure for women that puts them in submissive or inferior roles. I'm not a radical, but if I am put in a submissive role, that is not good.

"I think there are definite differences between the sexes and their approach to things, but there is no need for women to be in an inferior position. You've got to find what you can have control of."

So far their main specialties are homemade bread, cakes and cookies, all of which they say they may consider selling. But they hope to use the bread in sandwiches they would take around to business areas where people don't want to or can't leave the office.

"They would be sandwiches with yummy kinds of filling that are not available commercially," Carrie said.

They also are considering catering lunches or helping with service for clubs, especially women's clubs, where nowadays women seem to be increasingly unwilling or too busy to do the work themselves.

Carrie and Susan say they have friends they could call on to help them with really big events, and Carrie has a camper that she has used for serving at outdoor occasions.

With their training in art — Carrie is especially interested in crafts; Susan does collages, stitchery, painting and sculpture — they may even consider doing the decorating for special occasions as well as providing and serving food.

ROUND TABLE SERIES

Sally Stanford On Harassment, Taxes, Politicians And Sausalito

By JOAN LISETOR

"You've got a problem when the kids fly the nest and the guy you're married to has fled. You can't claim Head of Household," said Sausalito Councilman Sally Stanford, "unless you can find yourself another man."

She paused to look around the room, her sharp eyes scanning the audience.

"Hey, are all you guys single?" she asked.

An assortment of affirmative answers came from scattered areas around the room at the Edgewater Inn in Corte Madera last night.

While Sally Stanford was the right speaker for the last in a series of round table discussions sponsored by the Singles Organization of the Bay Area, Marin Chapter, the wrong ingredient was the topic. "Singles Taxation" was a bit dry for the witty restaurant owner and former madam.

Miss Stanford resumed her talk after assessing the men in the room and announced, "Every man's a prospect, you know."

BACK ON the subject of taxes, she said, "You got to keep plugging and be persistent, that's how I won the election in Sausalito. The Independent-Journal said I ran six times, but I think it was seven."

To end the discrimination she claimed is practiced against single persons, Miss Stanford suggested writing congressmen and the President and looking into a singles group in Fresno which has refused to pay taxes, as an example.

"You can't take anything off unless you have a child or get married," she said. "It almost makes getting married worth it."

People as a unit are mightier than an army, she said.

Elaine Guthrie of Ross, a former California tax appraiser, rose from the audience and offered the suggestion that the approximately 300 persons in the audience band together and write congressional and state assembly candidates such as Roger Boas, Rep. William S. Mailliard, Assemblyman William Bagley and State Sen. Peter H. Behr, urging passage of legislation equating taxes for single and married persons. Mrs. Guthrie drafted a petition and passed it among the audience.

"THOSE POLITICIANS," Miss Stanford said. "Remember, they promise anything to get elected, then you can't find them."

She said Sausalito used to run on a budget of $150,000 and now it's close to $2 million and taxes would go down if government costs, such as $19,000 a year for a city attorney, were cut.

Believing that the session was dragging, Dorothy Brand, one of the series organizers, suggested Miss Stanford discuss her experiences in getting elected.

She told the story of how, on the night she opened her restaurant in Sausalito 25 years ago, the city had all the curbs around her business painted red and put up "no parking" signs.

Following years of harassment by police, she said, Sausalito attorney Hugh Lawrence, then a member of the city planning commission, insisted she cut her new patio back 10 feet.

"I TOLD Lawrence I wasn't going to cut it back one inch," she said.

She eventually won her case, but did not forget "that bird" (Lawrence) when he decided to run for the Sausalito City Council.

"I filed (to run for a seat on the city council) just to knock him off, and I jid. I came in before him, but we both lost."

Every time an election came up after that she ran, Miss Stanford said, and then this year with just seven signs and 1,000 automobile bumper strips she entered the race.

"When I run I never get invited to coffees, but the (Sausalito) Women's Club did invite me to their candidates night," she said.

"Four years ago when I ran, Robin Sweeney, she's the mayor now, said she wouldn't serve with me if I were elected. This year she needed my vote to be mayor, and I said 'Let her do it. It's just a bunch of paper work.' If I ran my business like they run the city (Sausalito), I'd be out."

Martha attended school in Europe and graduated from Medford Senior High School in Medford, Ore., and the College of Marin. She is associated with G G of Sausalito.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

The Age Gap Does Indeed Place A Barrier On The 'Status' Life

DEAR RAP:

Several of my good friends live in a nearby town, which has the reputation of being "lower class."

Naturally my parents put a label on this town and whenever I mention it they think of "bad" or "trouble." Because my friends come from there, they're automatically the same though they don't even smoke and would never go for dope.

I'm 15 and pick my friends carefully. These kids are really great, but my folks won't give them a chance to prove it. They say if I went down to that town I'd be labeled trash, too.

Why do people judge you by where you live, not what you are? — LABEL HATER

DEAR L.H.:

. . . Because your parents' generation was brought up on "labels" — the rich — "snobs"; the middle class — "dull"; the poor — "shiftless."

How do you change them? It's not easy. Our generation is beginning to see the person behind the label but don't expect "worrying parents" to switch overnight!

Maybe you could start a "world problems" discussion at the dinner table and narrow it down. Like how can world disputes be settled if we can't communicate one country to another . . . one race to another . . . one town to another . . . one human to another. And then ask permission to have your friends over for the evening. — SUE

DEAR L.:

We're all guilty of "labeling" — the young as well as the older. You kids also fence yourselves and others off in tight little corrals called "straights," "the popular crowd," "losers," "dopers," and it's pretty hard to break out, right?

So use a little empathy and understand that your parents feel uneasy when you want to jump the fence. If they aren't complete snobs, they'll accept your friends in their home and learn to like them as people. But they may not allow you to go into what they consider a dangerous area. Not until you can convince them it isn't really "dangerous." — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My mother is a "What will people think?" freak. The doctor prescribed birth control pills for me (I'm 15) to regulate my periods. No other reason — I don't even have a steady boyfriend and everybody knows it — except some of Mom's gossipy friends.

Well, I keep the pills on the kitchen windowsill in plain sight so I'll remember them. They're in the flowered plastic holder that most everybody can recognize, if they know about B.C. pills.

Mom keeps putting them back in the cupboard, 'cuz she doesn't want her friends to know I take the Pill. Says if she starts explaining, she only makes it that much worse. So I keep forgetting and sometimes she forgets to remind me and it's a real hassle over nothing. Would you please tell my mother, Sue, there isn't anything to be ashamed of? — TERRY JEAN

DEAR TERRY:

Mothers are funny. Yours wouldn't believe me, no matter how much I said it. Here's a suggestion for drug companies: Why not call "regulators" by a different name? It is kinda embarrassing for the parents of a young teenager to say, "Yes, our daughter's on the pill." — SUE

DEAR TERRY'S MOTHER:

Most women know that birth control pills are prescribed for menstrual problems, too. If your friends don't — tell 'em! And if you're still worried — make a ruffled slip-cover for your daughter's pill case. — HELEN

JOAN BLONDELL
Word 'faded' scares some

NEW FALL SERIES

Joan Blondell Not Afraid Of Changes

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There comes a time in the life of every actress when she is handed a script in which her role is described as a faded female of one sort or other.

The word "faded" scares them away — to eventual obscurity, bad marriages, booze, pills or worse.

Joan Blondell was offered such a role in "The Blue Veil" with Natalie Wood playing her daughter in 1951. She won an Oscar nomination for her performance as a faded night club singer.

"WHEN I saw the word it turned me off," Joan said, preparing for her new television series, "Banyon." It stucg especially because Joan saw herself as still "fairly pretty."

Then she added, "But I could see the 'faded' just around the corner. I knew my cute little glamor girl days were over. I quickly went into character roles and beat them to the punch."

Since then Joan, her hair still blonde, her eyes blue and round, has prospered as a character actress, seldom out of work.

In all, she's appeared in 91 movies, scores of television shows and in the theater. Her contemporaries who shied away from "faded" are fortunate if their names are remembered.

"NOBODY STAYS young forever," Joan said. "And I refuse to have a face lift. I'm acquainted withthe face I have. I like it.

"When I worked in my first television series, 'Here Comes the Brides,' I played house mother to a bunch of pretty girls. In 'Banyon' I'm the head of a model agency. In my next series I'll probably run a boarding house for beautiful girls.

"Once you get to a certain age you play pretty much the same roles."

Appearing in scenes with gorgeous young things doesn't annoy Joan. She says, "I like to be surrounded by attractive young faces. It doesn't bother me a bit."

Don't underestimate the adjustments made by Joan Blondell. She was once married to Dick Powell and Mike Todd. As a Warner Bros. contractee Joan starred in nine movies with James Cagney, and almost as many with Humphrey Bogart. She worked with Harlow, Edward G. Robinson, Leslie Howard, Crosby, John Wayne, Gable and the best of the rest.

"I DON'T know what the secret to longevity as an actress is," Joan said thoughtfully. "It's more than talent or beauty. Maybe it's the audience seeing itself in you.

"I reminded secretaries, waitresses, reporters, chorus girls and now fading anybodies that a girl who didn't get the best of everything could eventually reach some of the goals in life."

Joan continues to prove it to herself. She has completed her first novel, "Center Door Fancy," due out next fall.

Joan Blondell may play faded females on the screen, but she hasn't faded in the least as an appealing lady off-screen.

PARENT AND CHILD

Educational Vocabulary Is Complete

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

We complete our glossary of current educational vocabulary with four terms: meaningful, needs assessment, relevant and worthwhile.

High-school attendance records show that fewer than 50 per cent of the students are present on any school day. Reason given: High School isn't "meaningful."

You meet a 16-year-old working at the local gas station. You ask him why he dropped out of school the first month of his senior year. He answers, "It just didn't have any meaning."

The word "meaningful" describes a situation in which the learner sees connection between what he must know and what he is being asked to learn.

Many of you may have already been part of a needs assessment.

IT IS GENERALLY the first step when a school system wants to change direction or to try some new ideas.

An inner city area, suffering from high absenteeism, vandalism, high teacher turnover, and poor school spirit, may institute a needs assessment to determine where the schools are failing, or to see why the schools aren't being "meaningful."

Some communities which have undergone self-study are impatient for the next step to be taken.

If the problem is high absenteeism, for example, then the need is to make school more meaningful. But saying that is not enough. Some program should be worked out to meet the need — to meet it specifically and especially the children who have been staying out of school.

THE WORD "relevant" is similar to meaningful, but even harder to define.

Teachers talk about trying to make traditional school subjects (such as the classics) relevant for today's jet set.

This places the burden on the teacher to make some connection between what Jonathan Swift said about Gulliver and what the French press said about de Gaulle.

The argument is that if the teacher doesn't make the subject matter relevant (that is, doesn't connect the material with what's vital to the student), then little learning takes place.

LIKE MEANINGFUL and relevant, the word "worthwhile" refers to what should be happening in school to make learning purposeful.

Over the past 30 years, schools around the world have played down learning specific skills in favor of more theoretical learning, considered essential for the student preparing for a professional career.

It was argued that one year of school was to lead logically (academically) to the next year — that primary school should prepare for secondary school, secondary school for college, and college for graduate school.

Today's counterargument is that this kind of schooling is not worthwhile — not even for the majority of students. In developed as well as developing countries, schooling should lead to employment, to a "worthwhile" future.

Louis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Thomas and the brother of Larry and Loren Thomas and Mrs. Darrel Chapman, all of Quincy. A graduate of Quincy High School, he received elementary and secondary teaching credentials at Chico State College and is employed with the U.S. Forest Service at Redding. He plans to work toward his master's degree in the fall.

An early September wedding is planned.

Returns In Fall

The simple little shirtdress is returning for fall wear, according to American sportswear designers. They are in navy, brown, beige and maroon solids and plaids, reports Women's Wear Daily. Small inverted pleats and kick pleats accent some styles.

Skewer Appetizer

Skinless frankfurter pieces and pineapple chunks on a skewer are a good appetizer while the coals are getting hot for the main dish. Brush the kabobs with butter or barbecue sauce.

What a Menu Of The 1980s May Contain

MENLO PARK (UPI) — A scientist predicts that by the 1980s many Americans will be eating "hamburgers" made from peanut protein.

And how about some boneless "chicken" made from cottonseed protein?

The menu of the future is envisioned by Dr. Herbert Stone, director of Stanford Research Institute's Food Science Department.

"A few years ago, high protein meat substitutes made from low-cost plant sources retained an aftertaste of the original plant flavor," he said.

"Now their taste, as well as their texture, can be made virtually indistinguishable from that of meat."

Stone forecasts that the consumption of protein concentrates in the United States will grow from about 500 million pounds today to 5 billion by 1985.

THESE EXAMPLES of costume jewelry, by Norma Sporn of Los Angeles, are not baubles and bangles. Instead, they are made of cotter pins, washers, pulleys and other assorted hardware.

New Thing: Hardware As Jewelry

By FELICE PARAMORE

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LOS ANGELES — Gears, gaskets, grommets, pulleys, rivets, spacers and washers are items usually associated with the machine shop and plumbing trades. Right?

Not necessarily, says art teacher and jewelry designer Norma Sporn of Los Angeles. She recognized an aesthetic potential in the simple design and symmetry of their basic forms. And she has designed a line of jewelry utilizing these hardware items in striking combinations.

Her talent as a designer and the excellence of her workmanship set apart Miss Sporn's compositions from the amateur craftsmen who use "found" objects to create junk jewelry.

Her pieces have found wide acceptance on the West Coast.

Being imaginative and enterprising is first nature to Miss Sporn, an art teacher at Florence Nightingale Junior High School in Los Angeles.

"IT'S A NECESSITY," she explained. "Because of a perennially limited budget, art teachers have to invent, improvise and conjure up untried materials and methods for their projects."

Miss Sporn has been recognized for her use of unorthodox art materials in the classroom and for effective results achieved by her pupils in response to this challenge.

A graduate of the art department of the University of California at Los Angeles who majored in costume and interior design, Miss Sporn has long been fascinated with the design and materials of primitive and ethnic jewelry. She has acquired a large collection gathered during frequent travels overseas.

In her quest she has gone into remote villages, exotic bazaars and dark alleys to obtain unusual specimens.

"The entire venture came about in a totally unplanned way," she said.

"It happened one day after school as I was searching for an ethnic piece of jewelry in a foreign neighborhood and I wandered by chance into a surplus hardware store.

"I'd never seen anything like it before. I was like a child under a Christmas tree, first transfixed, then running from one overflowing bin and barrel to another.

"I became totally entranced with the abundance of beautiful shapes and colors. But outstanding to me was the similarity these 20th-century items had in common with forms found in much ethnic and antique jewelry.

"For example, disks, gaskets, washers, and spacers closely resembled objects I had seen used in the stylized jewelry of many African tribes.

"ONE PARTICULAR brass pulley, anachronistic as it sounds, reminded me of an Etruscan bead. And as I examined it I saw the possibility of combining it with other elements and transforming it into a necklace. So, for fun, I took some home."

She did not foresee as she experimented with the pulleys that she was not only shaping a necklace but a new career.

The first time she wore the necklace it met with instant approval. All her friends wanted one.

And from that beginning, it evolved into a commercial venture.

"Since then, I've introduced a variety of other materials in combination with the hardware findings," she explained. "Plastic, wood, glass, bright beads, pearls, and shells for lightness and variation."

Her compositions include chokers, necklaces, and earrings. The pieces are not recognizable as hardware items except under close scrutiny, invariably followed by a gasp of surprise.

ONE PARTICULARLY popular item is an earring composed of a brass three-way fishing tackle swivel combined with steel washers. This becomes a lively spinning mobile when worn.

Another item, more sedate, is fashioned of gunmetal-color washers with jet bead drops and is reminiscent of the Victorian era.

One four-strand necklace made entirely of brass eyelets resembles a chain of nuggets, while a choker of slender cylinders, cotter pins and grommets looks not unlike an Egyptian or Assyrian artifact.

Miss Sporn works alone, individually fashioning each piece.

"Even with reorders I try to vary each piece a little," she said.

Because of her teaching, Miss Sporn's designing takes place after school hours.

"It's a pleasant kind of moonlighting," she said. "It sparks me creatively, which helps my teaching."

Many Salamis To Choose From

Salamis differ from each other in the combination of meats, spice level, salting, curing and shape, Most salami is pork and beef. Soft salami, like kosher varieties, is air dried for a short time or not at all after cooking.

Hard salami, like Italian Genoa, is seasoned with garlic and perhaps wine. Hard salamis are air dried for longer periods and are more chewy than the soft varieties.

Why Men Want Mistresses

Few men want mistresses to try and regain their youth. More often they want to enjoy again the magic of an exciting personal relationship — offsetting the stern realities of the business world. A man turns to another woman to satisfy a craving — to feel that a woman cares about what he wants . . . they way his wife used to.

Over a period of time, the tendency is for a man and wife to drift apart. He becomes involved in his work and she becomes unresponding when he talks about his business experiences. In time, she takes little care to look her best for him. She seldom makes herself up or fixes her hair. And she puts on weight. While the pace of business keeps him active and young thinking, she begins feeling older and less energetic.

Perhaps the most revealing question a woman can ask herself is, "Would my husband marry me again today?" As we've all seen, too often a woman doesn't start losing weight and taking pride in her appearance until another woman has already come along.

On the other hand, a woman who takes pride in her appearance, who keeps herself young looking and energetic is a constant source of pride to her husband. He loves nothing more than taking her out and showing her off. He takes her on picnics or camping just to be with her. Their moments together are his most treasured.

With today's emphasis on staying active and youthful in appearance, Marge Johnson, the glamorous manager of San Rafael Golden Venus Figure and Health Salon, has noted a sharp increase in women seeking professional advice on how to stay young.

"Suddenly, it's very important to women how they look and feel. They're amazed at how fast we can help them," Marge said. She pointed out that each woman has a special need and in order to achieve maximum results, must receive a program tailored to their own figure and condition, with their own instructor.

"Every woman has a natural beauty that makes her alluring, exciting and more youthful. With just a little co-operation, we can bring it out," Marge commented.

Why not call Marge today at 479-5454 and she'll explain how you can get a trial membership for as little as $2.00.

Finally! A Quiet Garbage Truck

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — The familiar strident noise of refuse collection equipment, a contributor to urban noise pollution, may be banished in the near future by a revolutionary "quiet" refuse truck.

The announcement Tuesday was made jointly by John Moscone, president of Golden Gate Disposal Co., and Don Cox, general manager of the Gar Wood division of Sargent Industries.

"It's the biggest technological advance in refuse collection in 30 years — since the introduction of hydraulic compaction," Moscone said at a demonstration of the new truck — product of a Golden Gate Disposal and Gar Wood joint effort.

Focus of the demonstration was Golden Gate Disposal's truck No. 46 — a Gar Wood 700 "Load Packer" — which was put through a normal operating cycle of loading, compressing and stowing a typical collection of refuse.

Missing from the demonstration, however, was the noise traditionally associated with daily removal of more than 1,800 tons of garbage from the city.

Utilizing a new pump system to produce hydraulic pressures needed to actuate the truck's operating cycles, the prototype unit generated a noise level averaging from 60 to 65 decibels. Today's standard truck averages 80 to 85 decibels and as high as 90 when in full opeation. An automobile produces a decibel reading of 70 to 75 when operating on a city street.

Moscone emphasized that conversion of Golden Gate Disposal's 60-truck fleet "lies somewhat in the future" because the demonstrator unit is a pilot model — the only one os its kind in the world — and still is undergoing tests.

Good News Pushes Prices Up In Market Early Hours

NEW YORK (UPI) —Investors pushed prices higher during the first two hours today amid a favoable news background. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was moderately active.

Advances led declines, 770 to 453, among the 1,593 issues crossing the tape. The two-hour turnover amounted to 7,580,000 shares.

Analysts noted industrial-production and personal income increased in May, although not as much as the previous month. Also, investors apparently were encouraged by some diplomatic moves which they believed may lead to peace in Vietnam.

Wheelabrato-Frye was the most active issue, up 1-4 at 10 1-4 on 114,400 shares. Curtiss-Wright was second, off 5-8 at 45 5-8. Some analysts said the great hope for the Wankel engine, for which Curtiss-Wright has North American rights, may not be justified at this time.

International Telephone and Telegraph was third most active, off 5-8 at 53 3-4 on 65,300 shares.

Prices were slightly higher in moderatetrading on the American Stock Exchange. Sargent Industries was the most active issue, up 1/8 at 4 1/4 on 101,700 shares.

On the NYSE, Tropicana was one of the stronger issues, up 1 1-2; after reporting higher third quarter earnings.

Airlines continued mixed. Delta fell 2 5-8, KLM Royal Dutch 1 3-8 and Continental Airlines 7- . American Airlines advanced 3-4.

Motors, chemicals and oils were mixed. General Motors gained 1 1-4, Ford 3-8. Dow Chemical added 1 3-8. Natomas lost 1 1-4, Superior Oil 1. Atlantic Richfield gained 3-4. The company has finished drilling an offshore Indonesian well.

Steel and rails were mixed. Gulf, Mobile and Ohio was off 1 1-4.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Virginia Electric: Stability, Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I started buying Virginia Electric & Power (NYSE) at $23 per share. I am disappointed in the performance. The dividend has not been increased for two years. I would greatly appreciate your advice on the 400 shares I hold. — N.W.

A. While Virginia Electric has not increased its dividend on a per share basis, the company's total common stock dividend obligation jumped $4.5 million in 1971 as a result of an increase in the number of shares outstanding. It was this factor — the four-million share offering — which also reduced the year-to-year earnings comparison in 1971. However, in the March quarter of the current year, a 3.3 per cent gain in per share profit on an 11.7 per cent gain in sales was reported.

Some rate relief has been granted this utility by the power commissions of North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia. A request to set aside $22.5 million in temporary rate increases has been filed with the Virginia supreme court.

A $2 billion construction program, which includes a conventional and two nuclear power plants, will increase generating capacity 70 per cent to 10.1 million kilowatts by 1975. Capital requirements will necessitate both equity and debt financing further adding to Virginia's already substantial interest and dividend burden.

Shares are attractive only for income investors. Some liberalization of the dividend, which yields a generous 6.3 per cent, is possible later in the year.

56 Cents A share

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Mortgage Trust of America has reported earnings of $1,925,000, or 56 cents per share, during its second quarter of its 1972 fiscal year, compared to earnings of $1,771,000 or 54 cents per share, during its first quarter.

Q. How are over-the-counter purchases handled? — B.A.

A. OTC purchases are made just like any other, as far as you personally are concerned. They are, however, handled differently by your broker, who acquires stock by negotiation rather than by auction on the floor of an exchange, as is the case with listed stocks.

If your investment house acts as a broker, it will buy shares for your account and bill you as agent, charging about the same commission as you would have to pay for a listed stock. If it acts as a dealer, it will bill you as principal at a net price which includes normal markup.

Basso Simon Estes' Credo Is Simple—Likes To Sing

By LOUIS SNYDER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Simon Estes enjoys his work.

"It's wonderful," he said beaming across the luncheon table, "and I'm grateful to my creator for it. I love to travel and to meet and work with people, and to keep striving for perfection in my singing . . . "

The six-foot tall, athlete-slim, 34-year-old black basso was pausing between engagements for a few unaccustomed days of relaxation. His spontaneous exclamation was as much a credo as a rallying cry to be up and away again. For in the next three months he would be touching three continents before settling down to do new roles in "Lucia," "L'Africaine," and "The Visit of the Old Lady" with the San Francisco Opera in September. Last summer Estes was a guest artist on the Marin Music Chest series.

Estes's prospects for seeing the world, and for it to come to know him, were not always so clear. Born in coal-mining Centerville, Iowa, he grew up in humble circumstances as one of five children in a hardworking, religion-oriented family. Nothing was easy for anyone in the course of everyday living, but there was a native devotion to music, a belief (still extant) that wisdom and understanding equal love, and a reliance on the Bible for answers to many needs as well as many questions.

"It's a great book," said Estes, "I'm reading it again. It goes along with me everywhere as part of my luggage. Did you know that if you read three chapters each day and five on Sunday, you will finish it in a year?"

In Iowa, as he progressed from boy soprano to tenor in church choir and school chorus, Simon was also becoming a three-letter man in high-school sports. And he enhanced his musical status by representing his school in a statewide competition singing "On Top of Old Smokey."

But by the time he was ready to enter Centerville Junior College, his airy tenor had gone down, down, down, and if he had ever seriously considered a musical career, he changed his mind — he would become a doctor.

Eight years of study followed at the University of Iowa, mostly self-financed by a variety of pre-and post-class jobs. First the emphasis was premedical, then a switch to theology and social psychology. And on the side, along with everything else, he gravitated inevitably to a university choral group of 24, of which he became the first black member and eventually its soloist.

The descent to bass-baritone ("late, in my case," he says) proved to have a great influence on his future. Charles Kellis, who taught voice at the university, heard him and immediately was deeply impressed with his potential. They worked together increasingly and in 1963 Kellis arranged for his pupil to audition at the Juilliard School in New York, where he was accepted at once as a member of the opera theater.

Funds were scraped together to send Simon to New York — a campus concert yielded $267 (the Kellis lessons had been given without charge) — and he was off on a journey destined to take him around the globe.

"I was fortunate to have found such a teacher," Mr. Estes declared. "He has been the only one, and we still work together whenever we're within meeting distance."

New in New York, Simon heard his first "Rigoletto" at the old Met, washed dishes and sang at weddings to make ends meet, studied to build his technique, and learned to pace himself through a grueling regimen that was divided between musical studies and keeping himself alive. He also made friends among his fellow students, all headed for the same goal — success on the operatic stage.

After one year at Juilliard, one friend had gone to Germany, and wrote Simon a glowing account of the opportunities for gaining experience there in smaller opera houses. Although some of his school advisers were against it, Simon decided — with the help of the Martha Baird Rockefeller Foundation, the New York Community Trust, and friends at the NAACP — to take another decisive step forward. A giant step across the Atlantic.

As a result, things happened unbelievably fast: a fortuitous audition at a major house, the West Berlin Opera, a hurry-up debut there as Ramfis in "Aida" (learned in 13 days for the occasion), and a subsequent guest contract with the company for appearances in Berlin and in Rome were the next events in this amazing saga.

"I hardly had time to catch my breath," Estes recalled. "I didn't speak the language when I came to Berlin, but everyone was very helpful, and I discovered I could retain words and sounds as I hear them. It reminded me of my course in behavioral psychology back at the university.

"I would always study by relating facts to circumstances, but I'd never get more than a C on my exams. Ond day the professor said: 'Estes, you know this subject well enough to make an A on exams, but you only manage C's. Why don't you concentrate on the facts next time?'

" 'All right,' I said, 'I will.' And I did — learning by rote, and made on A.

"The professor was pleased, but then I went back to my old ways of learning (and my old C,) but it was the only way that made sense to me, and it certainly has been of help in my career."

As a result, he is able to add to his large opera, oratorio, and recital repertory an increasing number of new and challenging roles and songs. "People talk to you and ask questions, on planes and trains," he said, "but when they see that you're concentrating, they leave you alone. And it's possible to accomplish a great deal this way."

In Germany, there was one person who understood his method very well. "Frau Herta Klust, an older lady, was a coach at the Deutische Opera for years and an accompanist for singers like Fischer-Dieskau. She was very patient and understanding, and I learned much from her. One night she was playing for my concert at Amerika Haus in Berlin, when all the lights went out, right in the middle of a Schubert song. Somehow I knew she'd go on and she did, without a slip, and we finished together, beautifully, just as the lights came on again."

To gain more experience away from the main stem, Mr. Estes joined the Lubeck Opera, but two major opportunities came to seek him out — in 1965 he was a prizewinner in the Munich Competition for singers, which encouraged him to go further afield the next year to enter the first vocal contest within the Tchaikovsky International Music Competition in Moscow.

It is now history that Estes emerged the silver-medal winner in Moscow, that he returned to the United States for civic receptions in New York and Centerville's Iowa neighbor, Des Moines; was tendered a White House reception by President Johnson; sang with the Boston Symphony under Erich Leinsdorf in a special televised Tanglewood concert, and with the New York Philharmonic under Leonard Bernstein. Interviews, pictures, Tv guest shots.

A hard act to follow? Estes has not gone the way of some contest winners — the slowly unwinding route to obscurity. The acclaim was fine, but it was not considered the ultimate end. So many new roles to try, so many people to work with, so many new places to go.

This summer, Estes is off to New Zealand, first stop for performances of Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with the Australian Broadcasting Orchestra, a return engagement resulting from a single recital in Perth last February. He'll go on to Australia for concerts and broadcasts with the orchestra and solo recitals until the end of July, when he'll be back in the U.S. for performances of Scott Joplin's "Treemonisha" at the Wolf Trap Festival, outside Washington, D.C., Aug. 8-14. Then to England for rehearsals with the Glyndebourne Festival company as the god Pan in its production of Cavalli's rare opera, "La Calisto," to be performed at the Festival of Flanders Aug. 28-30.

(Next year the Royal Flemish Opera wants him back for the Gounod Mephistopheles and Boris Godunov, and there is talk of Wotan and a Flying Dutchman elsewhere.)

In between Estes participates in a one-time historic event. On Aug. 24 he'll be back in Munich, chosen to be the bass soloist, with three other international singers, representative of the world's nationalities and races, in a performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, conducted by Wolfgang Sawallisch, which will preface the opening of the 1972 Olympic Games.

Estes confesses it will be a thrill to be there, not only as a hand-picked musical performer but as a former three-letter man from Centerville, Iowa.

San Francisco Symphony Will Open The Stern Grove Series

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

The San Francisco Symphony Orchestra will launch its 60th birthday celebration at Stern Grove Sunday as the annual San Francisco summer musical festival gets under way.

The symphony will feature two former San Francisco child prodigies — violinist Issac Stern and Leon Fleisher on the podium.

Stern, one of the most popular violinists in the United States today, will perform Bruch's Concert No. 1 in G Minor for Violin and Orchestra as well as Beethoven's Romance No. 1 in F Major.

Fleisher, whose pianistic talents have been curtailed since 1964 when he mysteriously lost the use of his right hand, turned to a new career — conducting — in 1970. Besides the two Stern specials, Fleisher will conduct the orchestra in Glinka's Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" and Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 in E Minor ("From the New World").

The orchestra's appearance is the first in the Stern series of 11 Sunday events (all at 2 p.m.).

In sharp contrast to Sunday's opener, the program on June 25 will feature a College Jazz Minifestival, featuring bands from California schools and the University of Nevada.

Rest Homes Proposals Not Aides'

The Independent-Journal erred Tuesday in reporting that 15 recommendations on ways to improve conditions in local convalescent homes were made by a group of nurse's aides who want the county to take over inspection of the homes.

Fourteen of the proposals were made by an ad hoc study committee on nursing homes established by the County Comprehensive Health Planning Council.

The aides have made one recommendation suggesting training and better working conditions for aides (a maximum patient load of eight per aide), adequate physical therapy, and recreation programs, proper sterilization procedures and investigation of drug abuse (tranquilizing of patients) in the homes.

Nowhere To Live For Big Family

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A mother who brought her 10 children to California to get away from drugs and liquor now can find no place to live.

Mrs. Rose Renteria and her children, age 2 through 18, were crowded into a $20-a-day motel they could not afford Wednesday and faced the possibility of either splitting up or living on the street.

Mrs. Renteria, who arrived in Sacramento in a borrowed station wagon from Jersey City, N.J. a month ago, said no one is able or willing to rent a house to a large, poor family.

Lucy Hovenden, a social worker who is trying to find a house for the family, said "landlords say they can't possibly accommodate that many children."

New Campaign Ploy: Cutting The Budget

Barbara Boxer, candidate for county supervisor, has come up with something new in campaigning for office: her own analysis of the proposed Marin County budget for next fiscal year, with specific proposals for changes.

Mrs. Boxer's proposals would, she says, reduce the budget by $1,380,230 and the county tax rate by about 20 cents.

If incumbent Second District Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. rises to the challenge, he will set out to prove he is a better budget-cutter than his election opponent. It shouldn't be very difficult.

SOME OF Mrs. Boxer's proposed cuts are easy to go along with, such as eliminating a proposed 5 per cent raise for the supervisors themselves. We can't see how any supervisor — especially one who must run for re-election in November — could vote himself a raise in the present circumstances.

She would reduce the county administrator's budget by $46,000 by eliminating three "administrative analysts." To do this, she proposes a reorganization which would take personnel, purchasing, central services, county fair and veterans' memorial building from under the administrator.

Strikes us the three jobs could be cut without any reorganization. All that is necessary is to define the administrator's duties, making them what his title indicates. He would not then need an assistant administrator and three administrative analysts plus two secretaries, as he now has. And eliminating the three analysts should also lop off the secretary.

MRS. BOXER'S big cuts would come in capital improvements. She would postpone Hall of Justice landscaping ($254,000), county fair site improvement ($275,000) and Civic Center office expansion ($288,250) for a total saving of $817,250.

Eliminating the office expansion would have a side benefit. Once more offices are ready, people will promptly be put into them, whether needed or not. It is Parkinson's Law, and it has been well demonstrated at the Civic Center.

The meataxe approech to the landscaping and fairgrounds improvements has less appeal. The choice is not between all or nothing. Certainly some fairgrounds improvements and some landscaping should be done next fiscal year. Surely the army of "experts" at the Civic Center can come up with some reasonable plans that will cost far less than a half million dollars, without postponing the whole job.

MRS. BOXER would reduce by $168,500 the "security" portion of the sheriff's budget, and would defer the county honor farm (budgeted at $231,000, which no doubt is merely the ante), but would restore $109,700 requested by the sheriff for increased patrols but cut by the county administrator.

We agree that increased patrols are more necessary than the honor farm, and believe budgeters seem more concerned with their own security at the Civic Center than with the security of the whole county.

Much of the saving in capital outlay would be wiped out by Mrs. Boxer's proposal to restore $400,000 for purchase of open space which was cut by the administrator. We suggest it stay cut. Various moves to save open space are bearing fruit, and we do not think Marin's taxpayers should be saddled with what might turn out to be more of a boon to real estate speculators than anything else. It's amazing how a piece of worthless land becomes valuable when a public agency has money to spend for it.

Legislators Ignore Limits In Search For New Taxes

By EARL G. WATERS

In the minds of the legislators and other officials toying with measures designed to alleviate the demands for tax reform, there seems to be no end to the extent "sin" taxes can be stretched.

Those who have the responsibility for providing the revenues to maintain government shun two forms of taxation. One is that which takes substantial bites out of the taxpayer and the other is the little nip which blankets everyone alike.

Rather than take either of these approaches, both of which are direct taxes and can be expected to provoke loud cries of distress from the populace, they favor two other methods.

ONE IS THE INDIRECT tax, and great momentum is building for the "value added" tax method. This is a super-duper sales tax. The sales tax as it is known to Californians is a direct tax paid by the consumer. The value added tax commences with the raw product and is applied to each transaction as the commodity progresses into the finished article. The end result is that the consumer is paying the whole compounded tax but it is hidden. All he knows is that the retail price has gone up. This type of tax has gained wide acceptance in Europe.

State Sen. William E. Coombs R-Rialto, has proposed a value added tax for California. State Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, advocates virtually the same thing only he calls his a "transaction tax." Tax experts maintain this type of tax is impractical and unworkable on the state level. They contend it must be national, otherwise states adopting it would be unable to compete with the others. It works, they say, in Europe because all countries are joined in a Common Market pact.

IT IS THE "SIN taxes" which continue to intrigue the state officials. These are taxes inflicted by some people upon others. The non-drinkers (may God have mercy on them!) support liquor taxation. The non-smokers want to up the cigarette tax. The environmentalists have climbed aboard and want to tax the motorist out of existence. A self-appointed health expert is advocating a heavy tax on soda pop because it is not nutritional.

To argue that liquor and cigarettes are already overtaxed is futile. To contend that sin tax places an undue share of the burden of government upon selected classes finds little sympathy. The fact these taxes proportionately erode a greater share of the spending power of those with limited incomes is blandly ignored.

WHAT SHOULD NOT be ignored is that there is a limit to which sin taxes can go. Having arrived at this level, each increase thereafter yields a poorer result. When it reaches the breaking point, black markets spring up. The cost of dealing with illicit markets exceeds the revenues to be gained.

The legislators in their taxation studies so far, have failed to go deeply into the philosophy of taxation. In their quest for easy answers they are overlooking the wisdom of the Victorian economist, J.R. McCulloch, who wrote: "Oppression, it has been said, either raises men into heroes or sinks them into slaves; and taxation, according to its magnitude and the mode in which it is imposed, either makes men industrious, enterprising and wealthy, or indolent, dispirited and impoverished."

There is a limit to which people can be taxed.

"Poor dad! The Gallup poll has never asked his opinion of anything."

Claims Women's Vote Defeated Judge

It was not the age of Samuel Gardiner that defeated him — it was the women of Marin County. Justice may, and should be blind, but deaf as well?

Hopes San Rafael People Save Dollar Mansion

I have heard that there is a petition out to try to save the Dollar home in San Rafael.

One woman in San Francisco saved a beautiful old home in that city.

The City of Novato has saved an historic home — the combined first post office and postmaster's residence.

I hope the people and the City of San Rafael will be able to do the same for the Dollar home.

School Budgets Should Show Evaluation Cost

As you have reported, most school districts are both finalizing their 1972-73 budgets and wrestling with the Stull Bill requirements which call for procedures for evaluation of certificated employees. Last night, I learned that the Sausalito School District, as well as those in San Rafael and Novato, is considering paying the committee which will draft their district guidelines for evaluation.

I ask that the implementation costs be anticipated within school district budgets and that these additional responsibilities not be to the detriment of the educational programs. Unless these responsibilities are adequately compensated now, either the tightness of the budgets will dictate an inadequate evaluation procedure or an extensive procedure will be developed and the instructional program will suffer.

I don't think we, as taxpayers, want either of these to happen.

Experience Of Jury Service Impressive

On 7 June I was granted the God-given priviledge of being summoned for jury duty. I walked into the magnificent building, and there on the floor was our Lady Justice — she was in various hues and to me was a neat piece of artwork. What did catch and hold my untrained eye and raised a verbal question from my being was the blank space covering her eyes. The gentleman-officer answered warmly, saying, "No, Lady Justice is not blind — she just must listen to all evidence before reaching a decision."

Armed with this knowlege of justice I advanced heaven-ward to my assigned room. After absorbing with my ears the comments of my fellow jury man, woman, whatever, 'tis a great blessing to me to know that there are judges and lawyers who are and always will be much wiser than I.

Dangers of Roving Dog Packs Cited

Night before last a pack of dogs attacked and killed my cat.

I've seen packs of dogs in downtown Mill Valley, and running loose in Boyle Park. This attack occurred about 4 a.m. I'm afraid for the safety of my daughter and other children. Why isn't the leash law enforced? Don't the owners realize how dangerous it is to let their pets stray away from home?

Former Grand Juror Retorts To Silvestri

George Silvestri's "Retort to Beban" as reported in the June 8 edition of the I-J is so filled with nonsense, distortion and error that it fairly begs for a line by line rebuttal. . .

Silvestri's conclusion that the people have assigned to the grand jury the prosecuting function and his statement "of course a grand jury is prosecution oriented," boggles the mind. He should know that this function, in our society, is assigned to a prosecutor elected by the people. We call this prosecutor the district attorney. . .

His conclusion that grand jury proceedings are not tainted by racist attitudes is apparently based on the fact that for the last several years either one or two of the 19 jurors has been non-white. This kind of contrived tokenism may reassure him, but I can provide numerous examples of actions on the part of this grand jury that disturb the hell out of me. . .

Silvestri cites Beban's appointment to the jury as further evidence that the jury is representative of the community. A careful reading of an interview with Samuel Gardiner, presiding judge of the Superior Court when this jury was appointed, carried in the Feb. 17 edition of the I-J, makes clear that he at least is only interested in the illusion of a representative grand jury. In that interview, Judge Gardiner allows that he and his colleagues on the bench knew that they were getting a couple of dissenters, but felt that they would make little difference in the large body. He concludes his interview with the admission that the views of at least two of the jury members had come as a surprise to judges after their appointment.

GERALD A. HAWES

Britain's Heath Coolly Assured He Can Solve Nation's Troubles

LONDON — A year ago Prime Minister Edward Heath confronted the hurdle of brining Britain into the European Common Market and ending the isolation of this island realm. With the terse, no-nonsense assurance that is his political style, he has cleared that hurdle, and, except for the final confirmatory stages, Britain is a partner in the new Europe.

Today with the same cool confidence he is attacking the dragons of inflation, unemployment and the ubiquitous demands of the powerful trade unions. He seems to have not the slightest doubt that he will win this one as he overcame the opposition to Common Market membership. While victory will come much harder, Heath is convinced that the score in the early skirmishes shows that his Conservative government is already winning.

STYLES IN PRIME ministers change with the times. Only the setting is the same — the cabinet room with the long narrow table with the stiff-backed mahogany chairs on each side and through the windows at the end, rare spring sun and the new green of the great trees in the garden just outside. Heath's Conservative predecessor was Harold MacMillan, "Super-Mac" in the popular press, who has just published another volume of his highly controversial memoirs. "Super-Mac" had a theatricality that charmed the voters and was a source of great amusement to his intimates.

Between the two conservative PMs was the Laborite, Harold Wilson, the leader of the opposition in the House of Commons in spite of rumblings of distrust from the rank and file. Wilson was all politician with a capacity for self-deception that left him sadly deflated when he was defeated by a sizable majority in 1970.

Under the imperturbable gaze from Heath's steely blue eyes, the members of his cabinet know that they must be ready with the answers when their turn comes. The prime minister rarely wastes words. From the front bench in the House of Commons, his delivery is as businesslike as the report of a chairman of the board.

A CLOSE ALLY of President Georges Pompidou of France, Heath agrees with Pompidou's recent strictures that there must be much more careful preparation before the forthcoming European summit cen succeed. That summit anticipates the next step toward closer cohesion of the European community.

A monetary union is one goal. With characteristic restraint Heath sees this as a considerable way off, with intermediate steps providing adjustment of exchange rates and a gradual meshing of Europe's differing monies.

The prime minister's restraint applies to the Nixon mission to Moscow. He sees it not so much as a breakthrough but as a continuation of the trend toward a more relaxed world. Similarly with the European Security Conference to be held in the fall, he believes the preliminary procedural discussions will be quickly got through with and the conference can then turn to the substance of agreed decisions. Mutual balanced force reduction on both sides of the divide is the ultimate goal.

IT IS ON the domestic issues that he is sharp and affirmative. Inflation when the Conservatives came to power was running at the rate of nearly 10 per cent. During the past 11 months it has dropped to 4½ per cent, which Heath considers, despite the general grumbling over food prices, to be at least a minor victory.

The principal battle is with the trade unions and the coming into force of the British version of a Taft-Hartley Act. Just now the conflict is with the Railroad Workers' Union.

Unemployment is above two per cent, which is high for Britain, and the Labor opposition is making the most of it. Nevertheless, Heath is insisting on reforms that will lower production costs even though they mean a reduction in the work force. One example is "containerization," with the dockers insisting that if preloaded containers are to be moved onto ships for export, they must do the loading at the plant.

TO BE THE responsible head of government in a time like the present is a well-nigh intolerable strain. Heath seems to endure it with more poise and detachment than any of his fellow sufferers. He even has a brisk word of confidence for the Concorde, the British-French supersonic plane that has been written off as a commercial white elephant. Not at all, says Heath. Businessmen on both sides of the Atlantic will be happy to cross in three hours, do a day's business and fly back that same evening.

He had just read a news story telling of the 15 California millionaires who had put up $5 million to see George McGovern through the next phase of his campaign. Incredible! Heath will be allowed to spend under the law about $3,000 on his next campaign. And, mercifully, the next election comes in 1975.

Understanding Britisher Probes At Cause Of Irish Violence

The most encouraging single thing that has happened in Ireland for quite a long time is that the British have sent to Ireland a man who understands what "it" is all about. "It" in this case is the deep distrust of the various Irish clans of each other.

That distrust goes back into the mists of time. It all began in 1177 when King Henry II of England first placed English overlordship on the Irish. It became immensely worse after the Protestant Reformation put another barrier between the Protestant English overlords and their Roman Catholic subjects. To this day Protestants and Catholics mix socially just about as easily as whites and blacks in Alabama.

WILLIAM WHITELAW was sent over from London in March to try to put an end to these 800 years of blood-drenched history. The first thing he did was to dissolve the old Protestant government of Ulster which, by its very existence, identified the British government with the political Protestants. That in turn identified the British as being anti-Catholic. And that identifcation in turn was the fertile soil in which terror and radicalism and violence flourished. So long as the British are identified with the Protestants, the Catholics seek a champion.

That role is played by the violent, ruthless, and radical men of the self-styled "Irish Republican Army." And it needs to be remembered that they are self-appointed, illegal in both north and south, and have nothing to do with the Irish Republic which sooner or later will have to settle with them. The official government of Ireland in Dublin will never be master in its own household so long as the IRA uses the republic as a base and training ground.

John Lynch is prime minister of the republic. He understands his own problem. He would, if he thought he dared, suppress the IRA. But he dare not so long as the minority of Catholics in Ulster believe that the British are their enemies. While that belief persists they turn to the IRA as their protector against the old classic combination of Ulster Protestants and British soldiery.

Whitelaw's essential task is to break the assumption of British partisanship in order to break the link between the IRA and the Catholics. He must be impartial between Protestants and Catholics; he must be as zealous in protecting Catholics from Protestant terror as in protecting Protestants from IRA terror. And this is precisely what he understands, and is doing his best to achieve.

WHETHER HE SUCCEEDS is another matter. The radicals have a vital stake in his failure. The IRA loses its constituency, its power, source of funds and its raison d'etre if Ulster Catholics can get along without them. The same goes in reverse for the demagogues of the Protestant side. There is a natural if clandestine common interest between IRA and Protestant radicals. They can't survive without each other. They live or fade away together. They feed on each other's violence.

Right now Whitelaw is having some success in earning the confidence of the Ulster Catholics. They begin to think that just possibly he may be impartial. They talk to him. And if this went on long enough the radicals of both Protestant and Catholic sides would languish, and eventually disappear.

This is why his progress so far is encouraging. It is also why both IRA and Protestant radicals will do their best to frustrate him and his effort to end the 800-year history of British rule in Ireland.

Even Best Of Intentions Get Nothing But Gripes, It Seems

Could be, it's a grouchy time of the year. Everybody seems to be rubbing everyone else's fur the wrong way.

For example, I hear that San Anselmo City Councilman Lewis W. Stewart got a chewing out from San Rafael City Councilman Fred Jensen — for daring to invade San Rafael recently to tell the citizenry how to organize a town meeting on civic problems.

Priscilla Bull and the other sparkplugs behind the town forum campaign had nothing but gratitude for Stewart's suggestions. But Jensen wanted to know how come an outsider comes into San Rafael, where the tax rate is "half" the Hub's "and tells us our business." Fellow San Rafael Councilman Harry A. Barbier reportedly said the same thing, in a more diplomatic way.

IN SAN ANSELMO, there were grumblings in the council chambers Tuesday evening over bureaucracy versus the little guy. City Planning Commission Chairman Duane C. Ragan and City Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro argued it would be an injustice if the council didn't toss a permit denial appeal back to the planning commission.

The struggling restaurateur who wanted a beer and wine license was turned down last month by a 4-2 planning commission vote because he didn't have enough parking spaces, and his sale of suds or vino with dinner might aggravate traffic on the Miracle Mile.

While Capurro and Ragan fought to keep the council from reversing the commission, audience members quietly wondered whether the beleagured businessmen's feelings weren't at least as important as the "relationship" between council and commission.

IN THE SUPPOSEDLY serene and bucolic rural haven of Black Point, things aren't very happy, either. For the umpteenth time, the worried residents of H Lane were told after 11 p.m. Monday that the Novato Planning Commission was too far behind on its agenda to get to that controversial "prezoning" of 88 acres sought by Western Gold Realty.

Other old feuds flared out there, too.

Early one morning last week, a gigantic truck bristling with chemical spray nozzles squeezed its way through the gate and up the Greers' winding driveway, sprayed a load of chemicals at some walnut trees, and crunched backwards down the hill. I demanded to know what was going on, and a hapless foreman told me his private tree service firm was following Pacific Gas and Electric Co. instructions to spray a growth retardant on all trees under the firm's power lines.

A couple of phone calls produced a visit from a tree service official and full apologies for straying onto a private property on PG&E business. But the PG&E voice on the other end of the wire only promised to "send someone out" to talk about the invasion and possible damage to hard-won landscaping.

That someone never showed up. Just like last year, when thistles thrived untended on neighboring PG&E property and infested our hillsides. They required scores of hours of tedious weeding. Complaints did no good.

I guess we all feel like that grumbling dog in the TV commercial. Only it'll take more than a taste of liver to turn us on again.

Results Of Stinson Septic Tank Survey

Most remaining undeveloped properties in Stinson Beach are not suited for the use of septic tank disposal systems, according to a recent survey by the Marin County Health Department's Division of Environmental Control.

Because of poor soil conditions, a high water table and other factors, it was concluded that most unimproved parcels cannot be built upon unless they are linked to the waste treatment and disposal system now being planned for the community.

Otherwise, they must be provided with individual waste treatment facilities other than conventional septic systems.

The survey, directed by Environmental Health Director William L. Desmond, also revealed that septic tanks are failing or unfeasible in many developed areas of Stinson.

The county department conducted the study of approximately 500 parcels in the community at the request of the Stinson Beach County Water District to enable the district to plan which areas must be sewered and connected to the proposed disposal system.

Both developed and undeveloped lands were studied, but environmental health officials admitted that, due to lack of time and money, it was not possible to examine and evaluate all the approximately 1,600 parcels in the Stinson Beach area.

"It is believed that the sampling and analysis performed is truly representative of the area in which such evaluations were made," the report noted, adding, "conditions found contrary to these conclusions will be the exception rather than the rule."

The study found septic tanks either functioning or feasible in the developed portion of Seadrift and the entire Panoramic Highway area and concluded there is no need for sewering, at least in the immediate future, in these areas.

But the survey said sewers are needed in the patios, calles and remainder of the old town area, the downtown and both developed and undeveloped properties in the Stinson Beach highlands.

Although septic tanks were found to be functioning properly on all developed parcels in the highlands, Desmond said tank runoff is flowing into a nearby creek and contributing to the pollution of the Bolinas Lagoon.

The county water district, using the survey as a reference, will make the final decision on which areas will be sewered in the first phase of its waste disposal project, Desmond noted.

John L. Jones, water district director, said copies of the septic tank survey will be available to community residents.

Apartment Tenants Must End Protest

NEW YORK (UPI)—Manhattan Supreme Court Justice Hilda G. Schwartz Wednesday ordered tenants in a 24-story luxury apartment house overlooking Central Park to end their demonstration against their landlord and remove sheets lettered with complaints from their windows.

The sheets were hung Tuesday—with such comments as "this building is a lemon"—by the tenants.The landlord then went to court to have the sheets removed and claimed damages of $1 million from the 41 tenants.

Democrats Solve Financial Woes With Campaign Relic Fire Sale

Two hundred forty-six books on Sen. Edmund Muskie with such varied titles as "From Maine to Pennsylvania Avenue," "A Day in the Life of President Muskie," "The Nixon-Muskie Debates," "Front-Runner from New England," "Quotations from Chairman Ed," "I Was Muskie's Football Coach," "Lincoln Walks Again" and "Mrs. Muskie's White House Cookbook."

Also included in the catalogue are 10,000 straw hats with "Vote For Lindsay" hatbands, 100,000 "Lindsay — Love Him Or Leave Hm" bumper stickers, 250,000 campaign buttons which say "The People Want John," and 3,670,000 feet of film of John Lindsay eating pizza, Polish ham, kosher salami and soul food.

Available in the same package are 50 one-minute TV spots of Lindsay walking through the ghettos..

ON PAGE 43, the catalogue lists for sale 300,000 pamphlets entitled "Why I Think I Should Be President" by Henry Jackson with an introduction by Joseph Alsop, a cardboard reproduction of a Boeing SST on a float, a UPI photograph of Jackson addressing a crowd from an orange box in Florida, and an autographed picture of Golda Meir.

There are also some great bargains in Sen. Vance Hartke memorabilia, including 6,000 "Hoosiers for Hartke" posters, 2,510 "Hartke Has Heart" stickers, and a letter from Dita Beard telling Hartke he can't have the ITT company plane.

Rarer still are Sen. Fred Harris souvenirs listed for sale. These include 250 bills from printers, television stations, storefront owners, airlines and ball-point pen manufacturers. Also listed are Indian headdresses and three copies of the song "Happy Days Are Here Again."

The Democratic National Committee is offering in the same catalogue "The Best-Loved Poems of Gene McCarthy as Selected by Him," "Dump Johnson" posters (from McCarthy's '68 New Hampshire campaign), and "Come Clean With Gene" aprons.

MAYOR SAM YORTY is included in the fire sale with "Stand Up America For Yorty" banners, "Yorty Will Win In Vietnam" billboard signs, and 160,000 tie clasps of the American flag with "Yorty" printed in gold across the stripes.

"Vote For Terry Sanford" beach towels, and "Chisholm In '72" bar coasters are also being offered for sale.

One million copies of "The Congressional Record of George McGovern" have been donated by the Humphrey people, and one million copies of "The Congressional Record of Hubert Humphrey" were turned over by the McGovern camp.

The McGovern people are also selling their political polls in California at bargain prices.

Chairman Lawrence O'Brien maintains this is the greatest sale of primary material in the history of the Democratic Partyj Each one is a collector's item. He said that they were expected to triple in value. A "Wilbur Mills for President" shopping bag which sells for 10 cents in the catalogue could easily be worth 25 cents 10 years from today.

Newsmen 'Like Girls In Love'

Ehrlichman, the White House domestic affairs adviser, was asked at a news conference about his remark the day before that President Nixon does not hold many news conferences because the reporters ask "a lot of flabby and fairly dumb questions."

Responded Ehrlichman:

"When people at the White House get together with the press, newsmen are sort of like insecure young ladies and they keep asking us if we love them. Then, when we tell them the truth, there is a hurt feeling that sets in.

"It would be better if you didn't ask us if you didn't want to know."

EXODUS TO PETALUMA

Marin Tough Spot To Find Economy Housing

By JEFF GREER
(First of three articles)

Marin County is a harsh place to live for the poor, for youthful couples with big plans but modest income, for large families and for the elderly.

Any family, in fact, that has an annual income less than $12,000 faces great difficulty finding anywhere to call home in Marin.

Over and over in interviewing families facing housing crises, was heard the refrain that "if we can't do anything else, we'll just have to move to Petaluma."

How long that Southern Sonoma city will reamin a mecca for Marin's displaced persons is problematical. Petaluma is trying to shut the door on its population explosion, going so far as to limit new housing construction to 500 units a year.

Last year in Marin County, only one-sixth of all new housing built was offered for less than $30,000 a unit. More than 73 per cent of the new homes sold above $35,000.

Throughout the Bay Area during 1969 and 1970 — the latest data available to the Marin County Planning Department — 34.7 per cent of all new housing units built sold for less than $25,000. But only 10 per cent of the housing built in that time in Marin was available for less than $25,000.

Planners estimate that the average family cannot afford to spend more than 2.5 times its annual family income for a home. Housing available for $16,000 in Ventura and Sacramento sells for more than $20,000 here. That is to say, a family with an annual income of $6,400 could buy the same home in Ventura or Sacramento that a Marin family would need $8,000 a year income to buy.

With five out of six new housing units priced over $30,000, the Marin market is effectively limited to families with incomes of $12,000 or more.

The rental scene is no better. For each 100 units that rented for less than $150 a month a decade ago, 60 or the units are now in a higher bracket.

Daily, apartment hunters queue up outside Independent-Journal offices, hoping to be the first to spot an advertisement for some living quarters they can afford.

The great cost of shelter in Marin has many roots, including high costs of land, spiraling labor costs, high property taxes and governmental requirements that make developers add what they consider as "extras" to their projects.

The philosophy of improving "life quality" of Marin housing versus its cost will be discussed later in this series, along with the much-debated issue of the "housing mix." That question is whether enough of Marin's average "comfortable" residents really want to have neighbors in the low or moderate income brackets.

The cold data and the philosophy of adequate shelter for all are scant comfort to the house hunters or those about to lose the roof over their head.

"I've just turned my fate over to a Petaluva real estate man," said I-J reporter Frank Fararra. For years, he rented a rambling old home with an orchard in the Dominican area of San Rafael for his wife and five children. Now the home is up for sale with a $45,000 price tag, forcing the family to go house hunting. The only possibilities they've found in Marin lie far to the west, making it difficult for the children to reach school and the farther to commute to work in Novato.

Hence, he's looking in Petaluma.

David W. Sexton, a social services worker less than a year out of graduate school, toils daily to help welfare recipients with housing problems — but he's had problems of his own in Marin.

"My wife, our son and I lived in a trailer while I was in school," he said. "We'd made up our minds to face a couple of years of poverty and hard living, thinking it'd all be better when I got out of school and had a good job."

But the take-home pay, "good as it is," can't provide more than small quarters in Novato, and leaves precious little money for enjoying the attractions of Marin, Sexton said.

He's pessimistic about solving low income housing problems in Marin. He said a San Joaquin Valley community's welfare agencies cooperated in buying a motel and turning it into emergency housing for families needing shelter for a few days or weeks, until permanent quarters could be found. But Marin's high real estate prices make him doubtful enough money could be raised here, Sexton said.

HOUSING FOR ELDERLY — Neat, modern building in Santa Venetia is part of one 36-unit senior citizens housing project opened four years ago — and filled to capacity ever since. The Marin County Housing Authority has a waiting list of more than 1,200 elderly persons or low-income families waiting for a chance to rent housing they can afford without having to move out of the county.

Homeowner Group To Hear White

H. Donald White, bus transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District, is scheduled to appear Tuesday before the Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association to report on progress toward providing commute bus service to the city's east side.

Cheryl Heringer, association spokesman, said residents are concerned over delays in service promised to the area some months ago.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at La Tercera School.

The association board also will change its meeting scheduled from the second Monday of each month to the second Tuesday, effective next month.

Large Parade Sunday To Climax Show

The West Marin Junior Livestock Show, which opens Saturday, will be climaxed Sunday with one of the largest parades in its history, with 123 entries including 20 bands, according to William H. Thomson, parade chairman.

Judging of small animals, home economics projects and livestock will be held Saturday morning with all agricultural exhibits scheduled to be ready at 8 a.m. in the exhibition area at the Point Reyes Community Center.

Livestock showmanship competition will start at 1 p.m. according to Robert A. Borello, president of the West Marin Lions Club, show sponsors.

Coronation of Katherine Hoburg, 17, of Nicasio, as show queen will be at 9 p.m. Saturday at the community center. Hugh Turner, former manager of Radio Station KTIM will act as master of ceremonies. Duke Martin and his Sundowners will play for dancing until 2 a.m.

On Sunday, horse showmanship competition will begin at 9:30 a.m., chicken barbecue at 11:30 a.m. and the parade at noon.

The parade will be led by Ernest Mangue of Half Moon Bay riding an albino stallion and will last "about an hour and a half," Thomson said.

Among the mounted entries will be Four Morgan horses from the Point Reyes National Seashore.

There will be eight bagpipe bands, the Sonoma Country Shrine Bank in oriental costume, a Coast Guard band, St. Mary's Chinese Corps from San Francisco and the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District Nonmarching Band.

Antique cars, ponies, 4-H club floats and "majorettes galore" have been entered, Thomson said.

Military entries include a Coast Guard drill team, the U.S. Naval School Precision Drill Team from Mare Island and color guards from the Sixth Army and M Co., Third Battalion, 23rd Marine Corps Reserve Unit in San Rafael.

The parade awards will be presented at the barbecue area outside the community center at 3:30 p.m.

Planning Panel In Mill Valley Favors Off-Street Parking Lots

A plan which would replace the existing middle-of-the-road parking spaces along Miller Avenue with five separate off-street parking lots has been tentatively endorsed by the Mill Valley Planning Commission.

The five new parking lots — if approved by the planning commission and city council — would enable the city to begin its bottlenecked $160,000 Miller Avenue reconstruction project.

The entire project has been help up by the city council until an acceptable scheme can be found to replace about 55 parking spaces that would be lost.

The planning commission tentatively endorsed the off-street lots after rejecting a plan submitted by the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber's alternative plan called for the preservation of the middle-of-the-road parking. A center parking bay would be built by separating the parking spaces from the regular traffic lanes with a low curb. According to the chamber's plan, all cars would enter traffic in a forward direction.

Planning Commission Chairman Ivan S. Poutiatine said the chamber's recommendation was rejected because it was similar to a plan previously rejected by the city engineer and a private consultant.

"The chamber plan is simply backtracking over ground we've previously rejected," explained Poutiatine.

The location of the off-street lots were recommended to the planning commission by its own parking subcommittee.

The five sites are: (1) two lots on the east side of Willow Avenue, off Miller Avenue, (2) one lot on the west side of La Goma Avenue, behind the auto agency, (3) one lot on Miller Avenue, on the site of the existing Enco station, (4) one city-owned lot on Valley Circle, west of property owner by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. (5) one lot behind Tad's television shop, near Brown's Hall.

The subcommittee stressed that the five lots should be used exclusively for shopper parking, rather than for commuter parking.

It further recommended that the city council urge the Golden Gate Bridge District to acquire commuter parking lots on the outskirts of the city or outside the city limits.

The five sites recommended for new parking lots have a combined assessed value of more than $57,000. The subcommittee stated that the new lots should not necessarily be financed with money from the city's general fund.

Two other potential means to acquire the five proposed sites have emerged. (1) Creation of a property owners assessment district along Miller Avenue which would tax neighboring merchants the cost of the lots. (2) Establishment of a new municipal parking authority which would be empowered to levy taxes and build parking facilities throughout the city.

The final determination of the sites and financing of the new lots will be made by the city council.

The planning commission postponed its formal adoption of the five parking locations until after a public hearing scheduled for June 26.

$684,000 Bid On New Overpass

A low bid of $684,914 was submitted to the California Division of Highways yesterday for construction of the planned Rohnert Park overpass of Highway 101.

The bid, one of 10 ranging up to $900,000 received by the division in San Francisco, was offered by Blasi Construction Co. of Healdsburg.

Cost of the project, which will link Rohnert Park's east and west sides, had been estimated by state highway engineers at $879,000.

A division spokesman said a contract probably would be awarded in 30 days.

The overpass originally had been scheduled for construction in late 1976, but the city received a $241,500 grant from the U.S. Economic Development Administration for the project.

The project, connecting Rohnert Park Expressway East with the planned Rohnert Park Expressway West, is expected to speed construction of a regional shopping center on the West side as well as provide California State College, Sonoma, students quicker access to the campus from southbound Highway 101.

Beban Takes Appeal To State Top Court

Carl B. Shapiro, attorney for the 24-year-old Beban, said the state First District Court of Appeal in San Francisco turned down the appeal without comment Tuesday, but the state Supreme Court yesterday stayed the sentenced until it makes a ruling.

Judge E. Warren McGuire on May 24 ordered Beban to go to jail until he agrees to turn over to an investigator for the attorney general's office the papers which were leaked to the press.

Beban first called the ruling an "Alice in Wonderland" decision and vowed to go to jail, but later said he would give the papers to the Grand jury if the final ruling is against him.

The report Beban refused to turn in was that of a subcommittee which charged the Sausalito police were using a quota system of arrests.

A stronger final report suggested firing Chief James D. Wright and two top subordinates and the grand jury adopted it, but an investigation of the earlier leak was undertaken any way.

Beban's appeal is based on several arguments rejected by McGuire. Among them are the claims that the jury had no power to investigate the police in the first place, the Subpoena used was defective, no quorum was present when Beban refused, and the jury had illegally given up its investigatory power to the attorney general.

Blown Tire Puts One In Hospital

Two Marin County residents were injured at 12:40 p.m. yesterday in an automobile accident on Highway 101, about 500 feet north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

According to the Highway Patrol, a tire on Snider's car blew out, causing it to swerve off the highway, strike a freeway sign and roll over.

The Failure To Overcall Can Help Locate The Missing Ace

When an opponent who has passed throughout shows up with a strong suit, don't expect him to hold side strength as well. In today's hand, for example, West could not have the ace of hearts and a good spade suit in view of his pass over one club. The situation called for strong measures.

CAREFUL STUDY

West opened the seven of spades, and the late Pierre Albarran, dean of French experts, analyzed the hand carefully before he played to the first trick. East could hold only one spade higher than the seven, and Albarran wanted to find the right play for all the possibilities.

Having thought the matter through, Albarran played the low spade from dummy. East put up the ten, and declarer won with the king!

Declarer next led a diamond to dummy and returned a low club. East played low, and Albarran finessed with the ten.

A LOW SPADE

West won with the queen of clubs and promptly led a low spade, expecting his partner to win with the jack. West got a shock and a surprise when Albarran produced the jack of spades.

Albarran then ran nine tricks: three clubs, two spades and four diamonds.

NORMAL PLAY LOSES

If South wins the first trick with the jack of spades, West will know that he has to get the lead to his partner to finesse through the king of spades.

South proceeds in his normal way by leading a diamond to dummy and a club toward his hand. West wins with the queen of clubs and sees that hearts is the logical suit for a switch since South is clearly well heeled in both clubs and diamonds. West leads a heart to his partner's ace, and then a spade return gives the defenders four spade tricks.

This has to be the best pickup in the Bay Area — because it's been our truck since new in '69.

We've used this like-new pickup as a parts truck and it has just over 40,000 miles.

Half ton with the long 8-foot bed. Fully equipped including power steering, power brakes, automatic, V-8 engine, radio, heater and almost all new tires.

This powder blue pickup is in A-1 mechancial condition and hasn't a mark of wear inside or out. We've just repainted this truck in order to erase our company signs. 70779C.

PROJECT NO. 69-008-B
CITY OF NOVATO
MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Finance Director, City of Novato, California, until 4:00 p.m. on June 26, 1972, for the furnishing of all plant, labor, materials, tools, equipment and machinery necessary for the construction of TENNIS COURTS IN PIONEER MEMORIAL PARK, PROJECT NO. 69-008-B.

The proposals will be publicly opened and read in the office of the Finance Director on the date and at the time mentioned above. Plans and specifications (but not including City Standard Specifications or other documents included by reference), and proposal forms, may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer upon payment of a printing and service charge in the amount of Six Dollars ($6.00) which amount shall not be refunded. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Novato, and should be mailed to the City of Novato, P.O. Box 578, Novato, California, 94947.

The work to be done includes, but is not necessarily limited to: clearing and grubbing, grading, drainage facilities, aggregate base, asphalt concrete surfacing, chain link fence, lighting system and all appurtenances necessary for the successful completion of the project as shown on the plans and specifications.

Notice is hereby given that on January 25, 1972, the City Council adopted a resolution determining the general prevailing rate of wages applicable to the work to be done, which shall be the minimum rates paid on this project, a copy of which wage scale is on file in the office of the City Engineer.

The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive any informality in a bid, and to make award as the interests of the City may require. This notice is given by order of the Council of the City of Novato, California.

No bid will be received unless it is made on proposal form furnished by the City Engineer. Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bid bond in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the bid as a guarantee that the bidder, if the award is made to him in accordance with the terms of his proposal, will promptly execute a contract in the required form, secure payment of workmen's compensation insurance, and furnish a satisfactory faithful performance bond and a labor and material bond. Each of said bonds shall be in the sum of not less than one hundred percent (100%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the payments to be made under the contract, computed on the basis of the price stated in the proposal. In addition to the above, and if requested by the City, the bidder shall furnish a financial statement of recent date. Failure to comply with this requirement will render a bid informal and shall be sufficient cause for rejection.

The contractor shall complete the construction of the total project within thirty (30) working days, the first day of which shall be the date of the City Engineer's Notice to Proceed.

Phone Company Says It May Go Bankrupt

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Pacific Telephone and Telegraph says that if it has to return $144 million to its customers, as the state Supreme Court has ordered, the telephone company may collapse.

The company is "in real danger of going bankrupt," said assistant vice president Arthur Y. Dunn Wednesday.

Critics of the company scoffed at the idea of it going broke, saying its parent firm, the communications giant American Telephone and Telegraph, would never allow it to foid.

The company makes $1 billion a year, has 10 million phones bringing in revenue, and the state Public Utilities Commission is expected to approve a rate increase to cushion the blow of the refund order, the critics said.

The high court last Friday declared illegal the accounting system under which the company had secured permission from the PUC to raise rates. The court ordered the company to refund to its customers the difference between the bills they have paid and those they would have paid under the former rate schedule. The only legal rates are those used the last time the company had a legal accounting system, the court ruled.

The effect, Dunn, complained, was to set the company's rates back to what was charged in 1968.

Together with rulings setting aside rate increases, PT&T will have revnues $261 million less than it had planned for this year, Dunn said.

At the end of April, the company owed AT&T —which owns 90 per cent of ts stock — more than $204 million, and had less than $23 million in the bank, equal to only four days operating expenses, he said.

"The problem is, where do we get the $144 million to make the refunds?" Dunn asked.

The refunds will be made, Dunn said, probably with money borrowed from AT&T and banks, but that will bring on a financial squeeze and "there comes a time when your major shareholder may balk at lending you more money, especially if (AT&T) sees the probability of bankruptcy."

The company will not be able to pay the $1.20 per share dividend it has paid for the past 10 years, and is considering laying off employes to cut expenses, Dunn said.

George Slaff, a Beverly Hills city councilman and former chief counsel to the Federal Power Commission, who was active in getting the rate innrease overturned, criticized Dunn's statements.

"They are the people who told the (state supreme) court that the rates could be refunded. Now, if they heven't got the money to make the refunds, or if the refunds will put them in a bind, that doesn't say much about the people running the company," Slaff said.

William Bennett, of Kentfield a former member of the PUC, called Dunn's remarks "nothing but scare talk" and said the company may be trying to influence the supreme court to reconsider its ruling.

Check Charges Are Dismissed

Three counts of writing fraudulent checks against Toi Ann Weindel, 21, of San Rafael have been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court for lack of evidence.

Judge Peter Allen Smith ruled during a preliminary hearing in favor of Miss Weindel who is currently confined at the California Institute for Women at Frontera as a result of a conviction for selling heroin.

San Rafael police arrested her on May 2 — two days before she was sent to the institution — and said she had been identified as the passer of several bad checks over a period of months.

Rules Panel Rejects End-War Resolution

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state Senate Rules Committee yesterday rejected an "end-the-war" resolution and approved a proposal urging that Hanoi be told to give a full accounting of all POWs before completion of American troop withdrawals.

Instituting a new policy, the five-member Rules Committee rejected a measure by Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, on grounds that the Senate should not act on national and international issues if one member of the committee objected.

Chairman James R. Mills, D-San Diego, the chairman, said often such resolutions which do not have a direct effect on California are introduced for "partisan" purposes to "embarrass" one party or the other.

There was no vote on the Dymally resolution and it was not clear which member of the committee withheld his support for passage. New Senate rules generally call for recorded public roll call votes on the disposition of most legislation.

Among other things. the Dymally measure urged Congress and President Nixon to immediately end all bombing of Indochina, set a firm date for American troop withdrawals, end support for the Thieu government, resume the Paris peace talks and enact legislation to terminate U.S. financial support for the war.

"The legislature has a responsibility to speak out on this very, very important matter," Dymally insisted.

Sen. Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles, asserted, "If I could push the button to end the war tomorrow, I'd push it. But this is the California State Senate and they don't pay much attention to us in Washington."

The committee did, however, approve 3-0 a measure by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach, urging the President and Congress to "demand" a full accounting from Hanoi of POWs taken in Vietnam before all American troops are withdrawn.

Sen. Stephen P. Teale, D-Rail Road Flat, observed that the U.S. already has made a similar plea and asked, "what will you have gained by this except the publicity?"

"At the moment, that's about it," Burke responded.

"It's kind of an idle act, isn't it?" Teale persisted.

"I'd tend to agree," Burke said.

The Kandinsky Collection Represents The True Gems

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — The Kandinskys at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum are the diamonds in King Solomon's mines. The first director of the Museum of Non-Objective Painting (as the Guggenheim was called on its founding in 1939), Baroness Hilla Rebay, devoted her energy to acquisition, especially of works by Kandinsky whom she regarded as the true father of abstract painting.

The collection grew to such formidable proportions in relation to the rest of its holdings that the museum held two sales of his works in 1964 and 1971.

Running through Sept. 9 at the Guggenheim, which the present director Thomas Messer describes as one of "the prime repositories of Kandinsky's artistic heritage," is the first complete exhibition of the pruned collection, standing at 133 works.

Complementing the show is the world premier production of "The Yellow Sound," "a theattrical event" based on a script written by Kandinsky in 1909, adapted and performed by ZONE, Theater of the Visual.

This group was commissioned in 1970 by Harvard University and the Architects Collaborative Inc. in Cambridge, Mass., to perform "Beyond Bauhaus Theater" in honor of Walter Gropius and is now affiliated with Boston's Massachusetts College of Art. The "play" will run for an undetermined period.

Vasily Kandinsky was born in Russia in 1866. He did not take up painting seriously until the first decade of the 20th Century, when he revolutionized it. In 1897 he moved to Germany and absorbed the influences of the Jugendstil movement, the German version of art nouveau.

During the next 14 years of his life he ricocheted from school to school, movement to movement — fauvism, orphism, expressionism, the Blue Riders all shaped him, but also confined him within their structures.

Perhaps this is why, when Kandinsky began painting his first nonfigurative works in 1910 they were not only explosive in their impact but in their appearance, as if Kandinsky were shattering objects to arrive at a higher level of truth. Klee, Miro, Tanguy, Chagall, and the abstract expressionist movement all reaped from his revelations.

Kandinsky's early style, with its riotous melange of color and shapes in whirlpools of light and motion, ran a parallel but separate course to cubism. Rather than seeking the underlying geometrical structure of an object, Kandinsky sought its sensation in a mystical, animistic sense, as if the object were alive.

He orchestrated pulsating colors, which he believed to have their own particular "affects" as if they were notes in a musical composition, and lines were the instruments that played them. Among these crucial early works are those simply called improvisations, in which he was clearly trying to achieve the intuitive and emotional purity of music, the most removed from nature of all the arts. (The apparent spontaneity of these paintings foreshadowed the automatism of the surrealists.)

The theatrical production illustrates this preoccupation with the color of sound and the sound of color through a synesthetic fusion of visual and auditory impressions. There is no "plot," no "action," only subliminal attempts to fuse the visible and the invisible worlds.

The oddity of this piece in which primeval papier-mache silhouettes glide across the stage to a background of electronic music and polarized passed on in 1944. These late light, reflects to a large extent the esotericism of Kandinsky's thought, in the conveyance of which his brush was mightier than his pen.

At the outbreak of World War I Kandinsky returned to Russia where he remained until 1922, when he assumed a teaching position at the Bauhaus. This marks a turning point in his career. The clustered chaos that characterized his lyricism up until this time now becomes ordered in increasingly geometrical, mechanical, formal configurations. Cylinders, circles, squares, triangles now discipline the splashes of color, and float against a flat background of illusionistic space. In these tensely balanced paintings aesthetics seem as allied to physics as to harmonics.

In 1933 Kandinsky uprooted himself again, this time moving to Paris where he lived until he paintings perpetuate the same principles, with increasingly surrealistic overtones.

The fascination of Kandinsky is that he not only turned the world inside out but expected it to be recognizable. Instead of focusing like the cubists or even the expressionists on the reality hidden beneath the appearance he focuses on the appearance hidden beneath the reality. While his paintings seem to have gotten rid of objects, a careful scrutinization often reveals them as part of a visual puzzle.

In his early and late periods particularly, biomorphic shapes can be discerned, but there is always the nagging doubt whether we are imagining them or Kandinsky intended them.

As in "The Yellow Sound" there is an impression of constant mutability, of colors changing color, shapes changing shape, depending on the contest in which they are placed. "Meaning" becomes both imponderable and irrelevant, and the issue instead is mystery, the mystery of the design which makes no sense but produces such a powerful sensation.

Libya Airline Training Pact

KARACHI (UPI) — Pakistan will equip and train the Libyan airline, according to an agreement signed recently by the two countries.

Under the agreement, Pakistan International Airlines will provide on a two-year lease two Fokker F-27 planes and about 70 personnel drawn mainly from PIA's engineering, flight operations accounts, sales and traffic department.

PIA will also provide ground engineers and maintenance and overhaul support.

Traffic Deaths Are Higher In Israel

HAIFA, Israel (UPI) —The top cause of violent deaths among Israelis in the past five years, a period including the 1967 Middle East War, has not been Egyptian gun shellfire or Arab guerrilla attacks.

Officials statistics show that while 1,391 died in combat or were killed by enemy fire in the half decade ended Jan. 1, almost twice as many —2,419 — were killed on the highways, half of them pedestrians.

None Of Your Beeswax, So Amscray

By RODERICK NORDELL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

The Old Crank (OC) deferred to no one in admiring the vibes of E. B. White, William Strunk Jr., and their book on writing, "The Elements of Style." But it was a drag to read that in a new edition of the work White advocates saving certain slangy words for conversation and leaving them off the printed page. White reportedly writes that "by the time this paragraph sees print, uptight, groovy, rap, hangup, vibes, cop-out, and dig will be the words of yesteryear."

Gloryosky, thought the OC, what was wrong with the words of yesteryear? Some of them were real sockdollagers. Like Holden Caulfield in "The Catcher in the Rye," the OC always wanted to telephone authors he liked, and to him E. B. White was the cat's meow if not the bee's knees or gnat's whistle.

So the OC reached for the Ameche and, while waiting for a dial tone, imagined how he could shoot the breeze with Mr. White to keep those words of yesteryear out of the soup:

"I know it's none of my beeswax, Mr. White, and I'll amscray if you say the word. But I was hoping you'd chew the rag for a minute before you lay the bad news on me.

"It's real George of you not to give me the bum's rush, and I don't want to come on like gangbusters. It's just that you've alway been hep to the jive, and you must know that a word like 'dig' has meant more or less the same thing to the in crowd since the '30's. So wouldn't it be all reet to let writers groove on it, at least in the columns of a daily fish-wrapper?

"Especially in an election year, when all the baby kissers are running like the bangtails, giving out with the old balloon juice —it's times like these a word man has to make the scene and not be left at the post like a moldy fig.

"I don't want to seen hincty about it, but a Joe has to get up in the early bright to fracture the populace these days. Otherwise he's in noplaceville with the dopes, simps, twerps, and other beauts.

"If he wants anyone to give him a tumble, he has to get on the stick when he's yea high or someone will settle his hash and he'll wind up behind the eight ball. And how!

"If he's not asleep at the switch, wasting time with the lounge lizards, he'll stay on the beam and become a solid sender with a little extra elbow grease and spizzerinctum. That's using your coconut, Daddy-O, even if you're beat right down to the socks before the mazuma starts rolling in.

"I don't mean that your true prose stylist should be saying '23 skidoo' all the time just to show he's with it or get his gloms on the cabbage. That's not the way to keep the gates swinging. It's too low-brow, not really dicty.

"If you want to hear that applesauce without getting into a swivet, it's ixnay on the eager-beaver routine and keep cool with Coolidge or you're a dead duck. Let's not be rowdy-dow about this. Of course no gentleman scribe need stoop to jiggery-pokery to be real gone.

"And don't say that's a hot one. Every purp has his day. You don't have to defy technological change and call a woman's stocking the first national bank the way grandpa did. The gals put their money in IBM now in hopes of riding the gravy train in their glad rags while they munch on pogey bait and dish the dirt with their friends.

"Some of them get so hoity-toity, it's simply the limit. When one of these frails is out with her dreamboat, they're a gruesome twosome, dressed to the nines, putting on the feed-bag in some swellegant eatery. No greasy spoons for them, nothing as ordinary as Adam and Eve on a raft with home fries, or a couple of sinkers.

"These spiffed-up cats really think they're the snake's hips, but I'd rather have a few nice apple knockers for my clambake than the whole caboodle of those snazzy types. Those dillies don't even mind if people rubber at them. I'd rather rap with a genuine humdinger like you, Mr. White. . ."

The Old Crank was having a ball, thinking of what to give out with to E.B., but he never did get a dial tone, which he took to be providential, so he shut his yap and went back to sagaciating as he had before.

20th Birthday For Agricultural Program

BERKELEY — An international teaching program begun by University of California Agricultural Extension 20 years ago has marked its anniversary with a celebration in Japan.

The 20th anniversary ceremony held April 7 at the Imperial Hotel in Tokyo, included Japan's Crown Prince and Princess. University Regent Allan Grant, president of the sponsoring American organization, International Collaboration of Farmers, headed a U.S. delegation of more than 70. Dr. George B. Alcorn, director of UC Agricultural Extension and educational advisor to the program and William Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau, Chicago, also attended.

Started as a Japan-California program to provide on-farm training for young farmers, the enterprise has now grown to include nine other states and seven other countries. It has trained more than 2,500 young Japanese farmers since 1952 and is now averaging 225 trainees a year

The average age is 21. Most of the young men spend 13 months in the United States: 12 months on the job and a month in a group attending seminars, taking field trips, and sightseeing. A longer farm advisory training program is also conducted. (U.C. News Service)

KNOW THE LAW

California Highway Patrol

Off-Highway Law Defined

The following is intended to provide simplified answers to the most common questions regarding the Chappie-Z'berg Off-Highway Motor Vehicle Law of 1971. This new law requires that motor vehicles used exclusively off-highway be issued and display an identification device. The California Department of Motor Vehicles considers this summary au an accurate interpretation of present law. However, it is a guideline only and may not be cited as having the force of law.

One of the requirements for original registration is verification of the vehicle serial number by a DMV employee or any peace officer.

Q. What types of vehicles must be registered under provisions of the Chappie-Z'berg Off-Highway Motor Vehicle Law of 1971?

A. In General, such vehicles as trail bikes, dune buggies and all-terrain vehicles used for recreational purposes on public land, and not otherwise licensed to use public roads.

Q. What types of vehicles are not included?

A. Those operated only on their owner's private property or on someone else's private property with the consent of the owner or tenant, or vehicles used solely on lands commercially operated for off-highway recreation.

Another excluded group would be motor vehicles being driven in an organized racing or competitive event on a closed course — provided that a recognized sanctioning body has approved such event, or provided that appropriate local governmental authority has issued a permit for the event.

Q. What is the effective date of the new identification law?

A. July 1, 1972.

Q. What is the fee?

A. A $15 fee for a two-year period or portion thereof, dating from July 1, 1972, and $15 for every two-year period thereafter or portion thereof, ending midnight June 30 in even-numbered years.

Q. What items does an owner receive for his registration fee?

A. Upon satisfactory proof of ownership, the Department of Motor Vehicles will issue an ownership certificate (comparable to the "pink slip" now issued to automobile owners), an identification certificate, and an identification sticker to be attached to the off-highway vehicle. The numbered sticker is 2½x4 inches, green and silver in color and reflectorized for greater visibility.

NOTE: Snowmobiles must be registered under other vehicle code provisions, and carry different identification.

Q. If my vehicle already is registered and licensed for use on the highway, do I still need to register it and pay a separate fee for off-highway use?

A. No. The new registration and identification law, effective July 1, 1972, applies only to vehicles used exclusively off the highway on public lands and not engaged in sanctioned competitive events.

Q. Where must the sticker be attached?

A. To the rear of the vehicle wherever an adequate surface permits it to be affixed so as to be readily visible. It must be kept legible.

Q. Will a new sticker be issued every two years?

A. No. Present provisions of the law require that the original identification sticker be used for at least six years. However, for each two-year renewal period, a tab or other suitable evidence of valid identification will be issued. The identification certificate also would be revalidated upon payment of the renewal fee.

Q. If an identification sticker is lost, stolen, becomes mutilated or illegible, what must be done?

A. The owner must apply for a duplicate or new identification. The cost is $3. This also applies in the case of a lost, stolen, mutilated, or illegible certificate of ownership or certificate of identification.

Q. What is the procedure if the owner of an off-highway recreational vehicle covered in the Chappie-Z'berg law wished to sell his vehicle?

A. The following answer applies to private sellers — not to dealers, who have other channels for reporting sales:

The seller endorses his ownership certificate and gives it to the buyer who within 10 days must endorse the certificate and forward it to his local DMV office or mail to Sacramento headquarters with the $3 transfer fee in applying for transfer of identification. The applicant (buyer) must pay any use taxes due unless he is exempt.

Q. How are the funds collected from identification fees to be used?

A. The $15 fee is divided this way: $5 to DMV for off-highway vehicle program administration; $4 to the owner's county of residence in lieu of all property taxes on the vehicle; $6 to the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

Q. How are the counties to use their direct $4 share of each $15 fee?

A. The Legislature's intent is that counties use these funds for (1) planning, acquiring and developing special areas and trail systems for the use of off-highway vehicles; (2) law enforcement in controlling vehicles being used off-highway, or (3) any other purpose in carrying out provisions of this law.

Q. What does the California Department of Parks and Recreation do with its $6 share of each fee?

A. First, up to one-half of this amount is reserved for grants to cities, counties, or other local agencies (special purpose districts) for recreation projects for off-highway vehicles. These projects must accord with local government planning and with plans for a statewide trail system for recreational motor vehicles being developed by the department of parks and recreation. To be eligible for these funds, local bodieu must provide at least 25 per cent of project costs in matching funds.

NOTE: The local 25 per cent share of matching funds may come from the $4 previously mentioned as being returned directly to each county.

Second, the remainder — approximately $3 — must be used by the department of parks and recreation to plan, acquire, develop, maintain and administer trails and areas for the use of off-highway vehicles.

Q. What factors led to enactment of the off-highway vehicle registration requirement?

A. The great increase in ownership of such vehicles in recent years, coupled with growing demands by the owners, conservationists, livestock interests, other groups using the public lands, and by federal and local government agencies, all of whom want some kind of regulation and control. They want specific areas to be set aside for this type of outdoor enjoyment, where such activity will not conflict with private property rights or with other valid uses of public domain. Major motorcycling organizations and conservation groups gave strong support to passage of the legislation, which was signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan in December 1971.

Paratropper Drops To His Wedding

Chan, 27, a member of the Parachute Association of Singapore, was scheduled to make a 4,000-foot jump from an aircraft. It was also the day for his marriage to Miss Lim Hui Ai, also 27.

So he donned a jumpsuit over his ceremonial army uniform and jumped, landing a few feet from the training center where Miss Lim and guests were waiting. They were married immediately and a reception was held at a nearby officers' mess.

Another Florida Boom—This Time It Is In Orlando

By DAVID L. LANGFORD

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—The U.S. Navy and Mickey Mouse may sound an illogical combination. But between them they have turned this once-quiet community, interested mainly in selling oranges and insurance, into a car-choked, housing-plagued boom town of about 100,000 residents.

The Navy's beachhead was established four years ago when it opened a landlocked recruit training center at an old Air Force base. Mickey Mouse established his beachhead last year with the opening of the Walt Disney World.

As a result, Orlando today is people and auto glutted, with too few rooms for too many tourists, inflated real estate rates. High rise buildings are climbing out of the countryside and concrete block makers can't keep up with the demand.

"They wouldn't believe me when I tried to tell them what was going to happen," said William E. Potter, a retired general and Walt Disney World vice president, who was the organization's early spokesman in Florida.

Potter was refering to his warnings to local officials that Central Florida's roads were not adequate to handle the crowds expected at the $400 million tourist attraction.

A 30-mile-long traffic jam developed on Interstate 4 during one of WDW's busier days last Fall and Disney officials now say the first year's turnout will exceed the 10 million predicted earlier.

While the impact of the Navy boot camp has been less dramatic than that of Disney World, its effects on the local economy have been substantial. Presently there are about 8,600 personnel at the base, including some 3,400 recruits. Navy officials say that number will eventually reach 18,000, including civilian employes.

The next big Navy thrust will come in July when a WAVE training center is moved here from Bainbridge, Md. About 500 girl sailors will be in training at the base at any given time.

The Orlando boom shows no signs of leveling off, at least for the next several years. Still to be built, all within a 30-mile radius, are a $50 million Ringling Bros.-Barnum and Bailey permanent circus, a $40 million Sea World marine attraction, and Wild Kingdom, a safari-type annual exhibition.

A traveling man who has been bedding down at the same Orlando motel for several years voiced to UPI a typical gripe about the bedroom entrepreneurs cashing in on the lure of Disney World.

"They jacked up my rate from $12 to $18 and for the first time they asked for a deposit," he said.

Tourists hitting town without reservations will say the salesman was lucky to have a room at all. And the $18 for a single is comparatively cheap. Many of the motels have increased their rates by about 50 per cent since Disney World opened in October and rooms in the $28 to $30 range are not uncommon.

Disney recently "readjusted" the rates at its two on-site hotels—the Polynesian and the Contemporary—with the new charges ranging from $29 to $44 a night.

The Orlando Area Chamber of Commerce said that when Disney opened there were only 5,800 motel rooms available in the vicinity. Another 3,000 were made ready by the spring holidays while construction continues on still another 5,000. Several thousand more—some say as many as 10,000—are still on the drawing boards.

The new inns range from the simple to the exotic. At the recently enlarged Sheraton Colonial Plaza, for example, a man and his mate can get a room with their own heated indoor swimming pool and a king-size water bed for $40 a night.

Among the more spectacular developments is the Carolando Corp.'s $100 million hotel and convention complex under construction near the Disney gates. And just this month the Orange County Commission approved final plans for Vistana Inc.'s $50 million complex, with a 35-story hotel which will stand much taller than any building in downtown Orlando.

The Vistana complex will be built on a 94-acre tract abutting the eastern corner of Disney's 27,000-acre layout. To be constructed in four phases, it will include hotels, motels, office space and condominiums.

Orlando's new prosperity has also driven up the price of family dwellings. Apartments are occupied as fast as they are opened.

John V.A. Holmes, an Orlando attorney, recently bought a condominium. "Four days later," he said, "the builder went up on the price $5,000 per unit."

Mrs. Sigrid Adams, the Chamber's research director, said "apartment occupancy today is averaging 97-100 per cent."

While several developers are constructing sprawling residential communities, few are catering to moderate-income families. Most of the new homes are $30,000 and up and apartments usually start at $175 a month.

Land speculators got rich after Disney announced 10 years ago he was looking at Florida.

"It has not been unusual for a guy to take 100 acres of land for $3,500 an acre and sell it for more than $20,000 per acre with no improvement and still zoned agricultural," said King Helie, president of an Orlando urban and regional planning consultant firm.

Helie said that today, however, the land near the Disney property "is now falling into the hands of users rather than speculators."

While unemployment in the Orlando area is low—recently 3.8 per cent as compared with 6.1 per cent nationally—wages are modest and 10 per cent of the residents are persons over 65 living on pensions.

Disney World employs about 9,500 persons. The payroll amounts to about $1 million a week, but a large percentage of those earn just over $2 an hour. Also, a large number of the jobs available are in the hotels and restaurants and maids, busboys and waitresses work cheap.

And the Salvation Army provides another side to the picture. It says publicity for the fabulous Disney operation has lured many persons looking for quick jobs. When they can't find a job they turn to the Salvation Army for food and shelter.

"They just envision an economic situation that doesn't exist," said Burt Tanner, a counselor for the Salvation Army.

On one night recently, he said, the Salvation Army admitted 72 homeless persons into its facility designed for 54, then had to turn away 84 others.

"After we are full, we just send them to well-lighted parking lots to sleep," Tanner said.

Disney World, in the meanwhile, regularly continues to fill up its 14,000-car parking lot. Officials are confident the first year's attendance will go well over the projected 10 million figure.

To help take care of the summer crush, after June 18 the park will remain open until midnight each day.

And another multi-million expansion program is on the drawing boards.

Dick Nunis, executive vice president, said a Pirates of the Caribbean attraction—one of the favorites at California's Disneyland—will be constructed next year, along with a Space Mountain where visitors will blast off to a ride through meteor showers.

More restaurants will be opened at the two existing hotels and three 200 to 300 bedroom hotels will be built around Bay Lake.

In addition, the park's fleet of monorails will be increased to 10 by summer. Only four were in operation when the Magic Kingdom opened. Also, two ferry boats, capable of moving 5,000 people an hour across the lagoon from the main gate to the park entrance, will soon be launched.

"Attendance has exceeded our own expectations," said one Disney official.

Candidate's Pitch Is Misdirected

MONTOGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Mrs. Nancy Chambless, running for the Couty Board of Education, gave her campaign pitch to two men in Montgomery's public affairs building.

"That sounds real good and we'd like really like to vote for you, but we're prisoners," one of the men told Mrs. Chambless. She thanked them and said she hoped they would be released soon.

Reinecke Says Tourism Funds Just Too Low

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke says California state government spent the lowest amount of money among the 50 states in the current fiscal year for promoting tourism.

Reinecke said in a speech Tuesday to the point service club luncheon the "underbudgeting" has hurt the effectiveness of the state Division of Tourism.

He expressed hope that the legislature will approve a $250,000 budget augmentation for the division in 1972-73. He said this would move California to 49th place in tourism promotion funds ahead of Nebraska.

California budgeted $41,000 for division activities in the current fiscal year.

Beer Is Considered Top Offender Drink

BONN (UPI)—Beer is the No. 1 offender in drunken driving cases in Germany, according to studies made between 1968 and 1971 by universities in three cities.

The studies, conducted by the Universities of Hamburg, Frankfurt and Mainz, showed beer responsible for about half the cases. When drunk with liquor or wine, beer was blamed for 75 per cent of drunkenness behind the wheel, the universities said.

AT DAY'S END

The Town Hall of Stockholm, Sweden, makes a striking picture subject as the summer sun drops low into the sky, transforming the river that flows in front of the building into tiny sparkling diamonds.

American SST Proponents Pin Hopes On Concorde

By PETER TONGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Proponents of an American SST — still recovering from congressional defeat of the project last year — are pinning new hopes on tne Anglo-French Concorde.

They hope the sleek and slender craft, which promises to put no spot on earth more than 12 flying hours away from another, will swing public opinion around to their side.

They hope it will do this, they say, by:

Proving the fears of the environmentalists groundless.

Stimulating trade.

Operating at a profit.

Meanwhile, the Concorde has embarked on a 40,000-mile, 10-nation sales promotion flight. Its message: that speed is what flying is all about: that just as the businessman can no longer afford to travel by train or ship, he cannot ignore supersonic flight with its prospect of time for journeys cut in half.

At the same time, observers say, there is no guarantee that Concorde will accomplish everything its makers claim or that backers of the American SST hope for.

And environmentalists in the U.S. are keeping a sharp watch. The plane was defeated in the Senate last year largely on the grounds that it would harm the environment — and cause damage and inconvenience by sonic booms.

A spokesman for the leading Senate foe of the SST, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said it would have to be shown that the SST would not hurt the environment — and that the federal government would not put up the funds.

Both friends and foes of the SST are studying the economics of operating so expensive a plane which, at $49.4 million (with spare parts) will cost something like 80 per cent more than a 747 Jumbo jet. It will also need a 51 per cent passenger load to break even where most subsonic aircraft require 40 per cent. Then, too, there will be a surcharge on Concorde travel — hopefully only 10 per cent up on existing fares.

British Aircraft Corp. and Aerospatiale of France, makers of Concorde, agree: the majority of passengers won't pay the higher price. They are vacationers who want economy: by and large they travel on low-rate excursions.

But the first-class travelers and businessmen will pay, Concorde's makers contend.

Civil Aviation Board figures show that on key routes the businessman makes up only 30 per cent of airline passengers, yet he contributes 60 per cent of airline fare revenue.

Now he is beginning to ask why he should pay so much more — sometimes nearly three times as much — as the fellow passenger on a low-fare group special. On an SST, say Concorde officials, he'll get something special for his fare — a journey in half the time.

Moreover, there has always been a tremendous upsurge in trade between two points the moment they have been brought with 12 hours travel time of each other, the officials say. The Concorde has the ability to bring any area within half a day of another.

Businessmen "didn't hesitate to leave the train for the airplane because of increased fares," said Roger Munt, resident BAC representative in the United States, "so why should he hesitate to pay more for the Concorde's speed?"

Concorde will offer the largest single increase in public transportation speed the world has known, and mankind has always found using a new capability irresistible. Concorde boosters claim.

Concorde will fly at twice the speed of sound, or somewhere between 1300 and 1400 miles an hour. It will beat the sun on its journey around the earth. A passecger could leave London midmorning and still make it to New York in time for breakfast. An official of a West Coast airline said: "We could pick up a businessman after work at Los Angeles and put him on the beach at Waikiki in the middle of the afternoon."

Businessmen took to the airlines in increasing numbers as the speed of aircraft went up. There was a major boost in business passengers when jets pushed air speeds from 300 to 600 miles an hour.

But the speeds have stayed relatively constant since that time and statistics show that the increase in business traffic slowed up and levelled off altogether in 1966 by which time the jet dominated air lines. Increase in passenger traffic has since been maintained only by enticing the vacationer aboard with low-priced specials.

SST proponents see subsonics of the future as catering almost exclusively for the vacation trade, with planes like the Concorde providing the speed which business may increasingly demand.

Meanwhile the office of Proxmire, who led the anti-SST fight, indicates it will not be opposed to the plane's development if:

Planes such as the Concorde and the Soviet version (the TU-144) prove flight in the stratosphere does not harm the environment and Public demand for supersonic speed is such that an SST would be profitable.

"But, we would insist on private development," said Dick Wegman, spokesman for Proxmire. "If Concorde proves profitable there will be no shortage of private investment capital," he said.

By terrestrial standards Concorde's pollution factor is low — something like 5 pounds of hydrocarbons per 1,000 passenger-seat miles compared to 50 pounds given off by the standard automobile.

But a high-flying aircraft places water vapor in the stratosphere where it doesn't belong. It could damage the ozonosphere — a protective gaseous layer in the stratosphere — to the detriment of the environment, say enviornmentalists.

SST proponents point to natural phenomena which periodically place water vapor in the stratosphere. The vigorous updraughts associated with thunderstorms do this and in 1883 the Krakotoa eruption placed more water up to heights of 150,000 feet than projected SST fleets could in 1,000 years of flying promoters say.

Environmentalists tend to agree but ask: Would SST's overburden an environment already burdened by natural causes? Meanwhile the proof of the plane — economic and environmental — will be in the flying thereof.

Recently BOAC served notice it would conduct the crucial test by ordering five Concordes. Air France is expected to place a similar order soon.

A successful Concorde, then, will increase pressure for an American SST observers believe. To quote a common phrase in the aircraft industry here, the United States "will have to build one if we're not to become a nation of second-rate plane builders."

An SST program that got the go ahead this year would enable America "to put the plane on the market by 1980," according to Boeing officials.

HOLDS HOPE IN U.S. — The Anglo-French Concorde, shown in a recent test flight, is being hailed as one of the last hopes for an American super sonic transport jet in the U.S. Proponents in the U.S. hope the sleek and slender craft will swing public opinion to their side.

Tsui Kin-Kwang Of China: His Job, Home And Family

By JONATHAN UNGER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CANTON, China — Chinese worker Tsui Kin-kwang, his wife, and three children squeeze into a two-rooms-and-a-kitchen apartment in Canton's burgeoning suburbs.

The one-story dwelling is clean, well-maintained, and the rooms are well lighted. But the floors are of concrete, and the out-of-doors toilet is 40 yards away.

Yet Tsui says he and his family are more than satisfied with the accommodations. Chinese workers, he says, have never before had it so good.

Tsui was discussing his daily life over a plentiful Sunday dinner of pork, vegetables, fish, and rice, served in the family's cramped front room.

Most Canton homes this reporter visited contained all three popular consumer items: bicycle, radio, and sewing machine.

Tsui, who has worked at the same enamel factory since 1945, says that over the years the lot of the worker has continued to improve. He recalls laboring 12 hours a day for barely enough to eat before the establishment of the Communist government in 1949-1950.

The state assumed partial ownership of the large enamel factory in 1955, and its capitalist owners relinquished the remainder of their shares in 1968 (after the "cultural revolution").

Tsui approves of the changes. He says he enjoys his job, in part because he feels he is making a worthwhile contribution to national development.

Six days a week, Tsui pedals off to an eight-hour workday. His wife, who can stroll to her job at Canton's No. 11 rubber factory, drops the youngest children at school along the way.

Almost all able-bodied women in Canton hold full-time jobs. Mrs. Tsui approves. She says that her own job and independent income have helped her achieve equality with her husband and a more independent life.

Following each childbirth, Mrs. Tsui has returned to her job after two months' paid maternity leave. Each new baby was cared for during working hours at the factory's nursery ward, and Mrs. Tsui says she was able to go frequently to nurse and fondle her newborn child. At the age of 1½, each of the children entered the factory's nursery school, graduating at 7 into primary school.

The Tsui family nine years ago moved into its present home so that the three children could more conveniently attend the factory nursery. The housing estate they now live in, a well-spaced collection of one-to three-story whitewashed stuccos, is close by the factory and is operated by Mrs. Tsui's employer, a producer of medical gloves.

The Tsuis have their breakfast and lunch in their factories' dining rooms, where a hot lunch costs about eight cents.

They individually study Mao's political philosophy a half-hour each day before their shifts. And time is allotted during working hours for them to join their workmates in reading and discussing the daily newspaper.

During the harvest season they take leave of their jobs and go into the countryside to help the peasants bring in the crops.

As salaries in Canton's industry are determined largely by seniority, Tsui's monthly income of $38 is above his wife's monthly wage of $26. Like many Chinese women, Mrs. Tsui was first able to enter the work force only in 1957 at the advent of the "great leap forward," when the day-care centers were established across the nation.

HOME FOR SOME — This is Kuntong Village, the home for some. But in China, a home for many are the burgeoning suburbs of Canton which contrast starkly with the quiet, uncrowded streets of Kuntong Village. Although workers say their lot has improved steadily in Canton, families still must make do with two-rooms-and-a-kitchen apartments.

Continued Fat Defense Budget Seen

By ROBERT P. HEY

WASHINGTON — American troops have been coming home from Vietnam. And two arms limitation agreements have been signed with the Soviet Union. So taxpayers shouldn't have to spend so much money this year on the military — right?

Not necessarily

The Nixon administration has asked Congress for $83.4 billion for defense for this next fiscal year; last year it received $77.1 billion.

Represented by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, the Nixon administration now has told Congress that while Vietnam War expenses are lower than under the Johnson administration, the U.S. will have to spend some $3 billion to $5 billion extra to help fight off the current North Vietnamese offensive.

Further, it says, the two strategic arms limitation agreements won't save very much — only about $650 million this year and $5 billion eventually. These savings, it holds, will be more than offset by other defense needs.

Besides, testified Laird as he fired his most powerful salvo, further arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union will be fruitful only if the U.S. negotiates from a position of military strength. He told both the Senate and House Appropriations Committees recently that the U.S. consequently must continue the costly process of modernizing its defense forces.

These last two are points of considerable contention. Many in Congress are dismayed that the Nixon administration has not sought a lower defense budget. They will push hard to cut deeply into this one.

The fight, already underway with the Laird testimony, will be lengthy and close. Defense cutters may win.

During the testimony House Appropriations Committee Chairman George H. Mahon indicated displeasure that two arms limitations agreements signed during the Moscow summit would not save much money.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, running for the Democratic presidential nomination, wants to cut the annual defense budget back to some $55 billion within a few years. Far too deep a cutback, said Laird, when asked about the proposal by Sen. William Proxmire, another critic of Pentagon spending. Laird said that if that proposal were carried out if would leave the United States military so weak as to be tantamount to surrender.

One of the major areas of congressional debate is expected to be development of new long-range offensive weapons. In effect Laird led off the debate during his congressional testimony.

He indicated that despite the two signed arms limitation agreements the U.S.-Soviet offensive arms race still is on. He said the U.S. must develop new long-range weapons in order not to fall behind — and falling behind, he indicated, would preclude future arms limitation agreements.

Many in Congress disagree, especially dovish members, say privately that the Soviet Union apparently still would be unable to shoot down the long-range B-52 bombers which carry nuclear-tipped Polaris missiles. If the U.S. long-range weapons are adequate, they argue, why spend billions now to build new ones? This argument will reverberate through Congress before the debate ends.

New Worry—Protection

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON — How do you bring art close to the people — and still keep them at arm's length?

This is the dilemma facing museums around the country in the wake of new cases of vandalism and theft.

A Monitor survey of museum officials in the United States finds that their partial solution to the problem is to tighten security — and to re-think the whole modern, more-open approach to exhibiting art. Measures being taken by some museums include:

1. Hiring more guards — some of them from professional services.
2. Closer scrutiny of visitors.
3. Installing sophisticated electronic equipment.
4. Flooding galleries with lights, inside and out, plus parking areas.
5. Erecting new barriers.
6. Putting some art works behind plexiglass.
7. Discouraging people from touching and handling objects.

The museums' battle against vandalism and theft was brought into sharp focus recently with the damaging of Michelangelo's sculpture of the Pieta in Rome and the theft of a Picasso, a Rembrandt, and two Gauguin paintings worth more than $1 million from the Worcester Art Museum in Massachusetts.

In question now is the whole concept of bringing art physically closer to the people.

The general tendency in recent years in the U.S. has been to popularize great art — to encourage people of all classes and education levels to make art a part of their everyday lives. Making art accessible to a broader spectrum of people has meant more vandalism and theft.

In some museums the tendency has been, figuratively and literally, to cut many of the red-velvet ropes that separate art and the viewer with the aim to have him "experience" art as intimately as possible.

Besides theft for profit, and damage by vandals and the mentally ill, the destruction of art in a few cases is believed by some museum officials to be a means of political or ideological protest.

And, too, some forms of modern art trigger violent reactions from some people.

The Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York even put up a barrier to keep the public away from a collection of Barnett Newman's coolly abstract, seemingly inoffensive paintings, some of which had previously been slashed in a Swiss exhibition.

Most officials will not discuss the details of their security systems, for obvious reasons, but here are some of their comments:

Adding more guards, said Guggenheim's director, Thomas Messer, is not necessarily the answer.

"If someone starts shooting it out," he said, "you cannot have an army with machine guns protecting art objects. Neither can you take the risk of guards shooting bystanders. These are horrid problems."

But in spite of the complexities, Messer said the Guggenheim is "at full security readiness, and we are tightening the screws."

Jeffrey Brown, curator of collections at the Indianapolis Museum of Art, reported that part of his institution's increased security program includes "just a little more careful screening and greater attention to the kinds of visitor flow that we have."

At the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, officials are experimenting with psychological methods to limit gallery thefts.

"Where things are placed has a lot to do with it," said special assistant to the museum director, Diggory Venn. "Basically, the larger the space, the less likely the theft will occur there. We want to remove the psychological feeling of safety in small spaces."

Venn also said that museum directors are installing more intense lighting systems in their galleries to discourage vandalism as well as theft.

How to pay for expensive, maximum security systems is also a problem for museums across the country.

The huge Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York with its labyrinth of galleries and rooms has already limited the public's access to some treasures.

"We're caught in the general financial pinch," said a spokesman for the Metropolitan.

"As salaries for guards go up, we can't hire as many as we used to. And we can't reduce the number of guards in a specific area. So we have had to close off some galleries on a rotating basis."

The Metropolitan doesn't feel that this is too much of a hardship on the public since the same galleries are not closed on consecutive days.

Other, smaller museums where the money squeeze is even tighter will have severe problems if the security risks increase.

Daniel Robbins, director of Harvard University's Fogg Museum, said that if that happens they may have to close one day a week to cover the cost of hiring another guard.

One expert who deplores making collections easily accessible is Prof. Caroline Keck of the State University of New York's graduate program for Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works in Cooperstown.

The attitude of some museum officials, she said, "is that everything has to be a 'happening,' which lets people touch, handle, and 'experience' art objects."

This, she said, leads to a casual attitude toward great works of art. "You can't expect things to last that way. We must realize that we're not the only ones who are going to enjoy the art. What right have we to expend it now?"

Many of the people working in museums today, she asserts, are so busy putting on the next show that they forget to question whether or not they are succeeding in their aims.

"Sure, this technique brings more people into museums, but I'm not sure the quantity is necessarily indicative of a greater effect on them. I don't think you get direct contact between an artifact and a person who doesn't know anything about it — except perhaps, one case out of a thousand."

Many museum directors and curators say their primary job is to save art for future generations.

The Guggenheim's Messer said that he does not think the situation will become desperate, but if it did "I think the ultimate conclusion would be to withdraw all public manifestations of art, which is a horrifying thought. But I would feel that preserving art comes first simply because there is no education without it . . ."

Arches Park Is Nation's Newest

By R. NORMAN MATHENY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

ARCHES NATIONAL PARK, Utah — Nobody knows exactly how many there are. The Park Service hesitantly says 89 — but that's not counting the little arches.

Whittled out of 150-million-year-old sandstone, the bizarre landscape of the Arches is the newest national park in the U.S. Dedicated May 13, it is the 38th area of natural resources to be so designated.

This part of Utah is desert land pocked with clumps of sagebrush, "black brush," juniper, and patches of prickly pear. When the sameness is first split by an arch and sun shines through where it shouldn't, you'll either search for an exclamation or just look up in awe.

If these arches had streams running through them, they would be "natural bridges." But they were sculpted by wind, rain, frost, and sun from a 300-foot layer of sandrock and now they're very dry.

"That's slick-rock," someone said in my group of visitors. "You'd know why if you got caught on it when it was damp."

But "damp" is something it doesn't get very often.

"Hasn't been any rain at all since last December," said Mitch Williams, our veteran guide. "Then we had one of our six-inch rains. You know, six inches between raindrops."

Mitch is the perfect guide — rich with anecdotes and facts. His father, Dr. John Williams, is considered the "father of the Arches," having pioneered in the quest for protection and proper recognition until the area was made a national monument in 1929.

No matter how many arches you see, you'll remain impressed by the dimensions: Skyline Arch, 138 feet wide; Landscape Arch, 291. Delicate Arch is 85 feet high, Double Arch is 157. Each is interesting in its own way, but toward the end of your tour you might not scramble up so fast to get closer.

Wait. A real thrill is still to come. The road — paved now, when before it was little more than a trail —rolls up from a gully, rounds a redstone bluff (just like 100 other redstone bluffs). And then you see it. Balanced Rock.

A better job of dramatic staging would be hard to imagine. Three thousand, five hundred and fifty-seven tons of redstone is perched at an odd angle, 128 feet on a pedestal away from all possible support. It can't stay up. . .but it does.

National Park System's 100th Year

By RALPH HUBLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Dedication of two new national parks in the U.S. highlights centennial observances of the National Park System being held throughout this year.

Capitol Reef in south-central Utah, dedicated April 7, and the Arches in eastern Utah, dedicated May 13, bring the total of national parks in the U.S. to 38.

The nearest town to Capitol Reef National Park is Torrey, Utah. The park is open year-round and derives its name from domes, towers, and pinnacles atop high sand tone cliffs stretching 20 miles across a vast scenic region. There are a visitors' center, guided tours, hiking, a museum, and campgrounds in this area of fantastic shapes carved by wind and water.

Arches National Park, the newest of the parks, is filled with natural rock "bridges," some nearly 300 feet wide. Its bizarre landscape, which according to the U.S. Park Service has 89 "big" arches — and many more smaller ones, is whittled out of 150-million-year-old sandstone in the desert area of eastern Utah.

Two other national parks are yet to be dedicated. Guadalupe Mountains National Park, Texas, was authorized in 1966 and opened to the public in 1970, but there has been little development. Overnight facilities are available at Carlsbad, N.M., about 50 miles away. Campgrounds are located in adjacent Lincoln National Forest. The most prominent feature of the park is El Capitan, a 1,000-foot cliff with Guadalupe Peak just north of it, the highest point in Texas.

Voyageurs National Park on the Minnesota-Canadian border was authorized as the 36th park but, because of land acquisition difficulties, it may be some time before it is dedicated.

Named in honor of the energetic French-Canadains who overcame enormous hardships in carrying on fur trade during the past two centureis, Voyageurs National Park covers 219,431 acres of excellent boating, fishing, and hiking areas. It's open only in the summer and has limited park facilities. The nearest town is International Falls, Minn.

Both the Arches and Capitol Reef previously were national monuments. To become a national park, many requirements must be met that may not be necessary for a monument. Only the Congress can authorize a national park. A monument can also be established by presidential proclamation and has national significance worth preserving whether for scientific, historic, or natural values. A national park is usually large and spacious, much of it primeval wilderness. The extent of use must be balanced judiciously to avoid marring or destroying its essential features. Some national monuments have been accepted with "diverse uses," such as mining and cattle grazing, which are forbidden in national parks.

President Nixon in proclaiming 1972 as National Park Centennial Year said: "In every time and season, our parks give us their joys and beauties. They have enriched the citizens of this land beyond measure and have inspired more than 100 nations to set aside over 1,200 national parks and reserves."

The Second World Conference on National Parks is scheduled to be held Sept. 18 in Grand Teton National Park because of the rundown conditions in Yellowstone, the granddaddy of all national parks, established by the Congress in 1872.

Still the largest national park, Yellowstone's major troubles at this time have come mostly from steadily increasing numbers of visitors. Thus the appropriateness of the official centennial year theme: "Parks, Man, and His Environment."

In setting up the National Park Service in 1916, Congress gave it a dual purpose which at times has seemed at odds: "To preserve for all time the natural wonders of the country in an undisturbed state and to make them available for the enjoyment of all the people."

With recent emphasis on ecology and conservation many groups of outdoorsmen are seeking to limit visitor facilities and urge more areas to be set aside out of reach of the public.

Besides the national parks, the park service administers more than 250 historical parks, monuments, military parks, battlefields, battlefield parks, battlefield sites, historic sites, memorials, cemeteries, seashores, parkways capital parks, the White House, recreation areas, lakeshores, scenic riverways, scenic trails, scientific reserves, and parts of international parks. The total area covers nearly 30 million acres.

In an extensive report last year to U.S. Secretary of Interior Rogers C.B. Morton, a citizens advisory board which had sent inspection teams to national parks, found a "high morale in the National Park Service and a sense of mission that would become any agency of government." However, it found staffing and funding so thin as to injure permanently the quality of the visitor experience.

The advisory board reported that its most important conclusion was in regard to funding: "For at least a decade the growth of the park system has far outpaced its funding. The deficiency of support has accumulated, year by year, to a degree that could be regarded as an emergency."

The report had high praise for park service staffs working under these difficulties. It said that many innovative ideas have been carried out successfully at visitors centers and where traffic conditions have been the biggest problem.

George B. Hartzong Jr., director of the National Park Service, points to the success of an experimental project at Yellowstone to broadcast information through car radios.

At the five entrances to Yellowstone are signs urging the motorist to tune his car radio to 650 to get information on entrance fee, where to park, and the state of accommodations.

Radio transmitters are also located at campgrounds, scenic overlooks, and developed areas giving warnings and other advice. There will be 33 transmitters in operation at Yellowstone this summer.

Jack N. Anderson, superintendent of Yellowstone, said: "On busy days, we can move cars through our entrances nearly twice as fost as we could before these transmittars were in operation.

"Where there are notable features within walking distance, we urge motorists to get out of their cars, stretch legs, and take a closer look at nature's beauty."

A few transmitters have been installed in other U.S. national parks and more have them on order.

In another recent development, the auto tape tour seems to have come into its own. Outside the entrances to Great Smoky, Glacier, Rocky Mountain, Grand Teton and Yosemite, the motorist can rent a lightweight tape player, prerecorded remarks, and a cord that plugs into the auto. The tours have been produced in close cooperation with the National Park Service.

Other centennial events planned by National Parks Systems of the U.S. this year include:

June 24 at Yellowstone: dedication of Old Faithful Visitors Center.

Aug. 1, at Cape Hatteras National Seashore, N.C.: commemoration of first national seashore.

Aug. 27 at Wolf Trap Farm Park for Performing Arts, Vienna, Va.: commemoration of first national cultural park.

Oct. 13 at Lake Mead National Recreation Area, Nevada: commemoration of first national recreation area.

Students To Study San Jacinto Fault

RIVERSIDE — The San Jacinto Fault System, perhaps the most active in Southern California, will be studied this summer by undergraduate students at the University of California, Riverside.

The student research team has been awarded $24,570 from the National Science Foundation, the second highest amount of funding granted this year by NSF in its special Student-Originated Studies Program. The NSF stipulates that the research be entirely originated and conducted by undergraduate students and that projects be multidisciplinary studies of problems related to the environment. The NSF funds will be augmented by an additional $1,500 from the UCR Department of Geological Sciences.

Fifteen UCR undergraduates will investigate the geological, sociological and economic aspects of the San Jacinto Fault in the project which will be conducted from June to September.

The researchers hope their work will provide knowledge which will help to minimize the human and financial loss in case of an earthquake and also assist in the proper future planning and development of the Riverside-San Bernardino area.

One of the primary purposes of the UCR student study will be to accurately map the fault. "This has never been done in detail," said Sieh.

The students, after compiling their survey findings, will evaluate current precautionary programs in this area.

"This is the first pre-quake survey of this type ever attempted," as nearly as we can tell," Fisher said. "There have been several post-quake surveys, but never one before the fact. (University of California News Service)

Michigan Gains In Health Occupations

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The state of Michigan gained 213 licensed physicians and 7,108 nurses during 1971, the Michigan Health Council reports.

Michigan now has a ratio of one physician for every 792 residents, compared with a national ratio of one per 631 population. At the end of 1971, there were a record 9,090 medical doctors and 2,124 osteopathic physicians licensed in the state.

Tax Legislation Is No Bombshell

By RICHARD NENNEMAN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

The surprise Mills-Mansfield tax legislation is not as much of a bombshell as it looks at first glance.

The two Democratic lawmakers introduced a bill May 31 that would abolish tax preferences — the famous "loopholes" — in three annual steps, beginning Jan. 1, 1974. The preferences would not be cut in steps, but three packages of preferences, equal in number, would be tossed out come each New Year's Day.

Thus, in 1974 the percentage-depletion allowance for oil and gas would be thrown out. Come 1975, capital-gains treatment for lump-sum pension distributions would end. And in 1976, interest on state and local bonds would be taxable.

But wait a minute —is that what would really happen? Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, a shrewd politician and the committee chairman who has seen other tax-reform bills take shape under his guidance, doesn't have that in mind at all.

"It is expected that many of these terminations won't in fact be allowed to occur, but that, instead, the Congress will evaluate the provisions in the years ahead and provide for their continuation as they are or, if it is considered desirable, in a modified form," he said.

What the two Democrats are doing may be an end run around any tax-reform proposals the Nixon Administration may have up its sleeve. Or just possibly they are trying to save their own party's presidential candidates from embarrassment. The details of tax reforms are hardly a proper subject for debate in an election campaign. The erroneous impression is always left that by taxing business and the rich more, there is some bonanza waiting around the corner for the average taxpayer. There isn't.

Yet taxation does need to be fairer and, if possible, simpler. Most of the special provisions that we call loopholes were originally written into the tax code for some specific purpose. Just like government programs that are no longer needed, some of these loopholes could also be closed.

What the Mills-Mansfield bill would do is require that Congress look at all the major loopholes, not in isolation, but in conjunction with each other. If anything, it would be preferable to have them all studied at once. This, though, may not be feasible because of the time it takes. But by establishing cut-off dates for 18 provisions in each of three years, 18 of the so-called loopholes would at least be studied in the same year.

There have been ample studies that show the cost to the government of each loophole. It isn't always as clear what the benefit from the loophole is, nor is it clear how much economic behavior would deviate if the law was changed and thus throw off a priori calculations.

Along with a study of the economics of each loophole, there should be a determination of whether the social or economic purpose behind the tax preference was valid and, if it was, whether it still is. I, for one, would like to know just how much the mortgage-interest deduction has been a major reason the middle-class homeowner has bought a house instead of renting. Or how much it has indirectly helped the building industry. Or, if it was once a high priority to push out the boundaries of the American city and fill up the fields with single-family homes, how much have our perceived needs changed?

Perhaps before we can make the cities truly livable again, it needs to become a stated priority to make it harder to buy new single-family housing and easier to find good rental housing and even transportation in the cities. How we write the tax code will have a lot to say about our sense of priorities.

The danger, of course, in requiring that all the tax preferences be either reinstated by new legislation or else automatically terminate. is that a suddenly populist Congress might make some unwise economic decisions. But given the generally slow pace of change in the composition of Congress, at least at the committee-chairman level, and as long as Wilbur Mills is on the scene, this is a chance we can afford to take.

P.S. Mr. Mills: Would it also be possible to establish a cutoff date for all federal spending programs? You might not need so much in taxes if you had to reexamine all federal spending, say every five years.
